D. F. KELLY SEEKS $10,350,000 TO PAY TEACHERS

Sees Bankers Today to Work Out Plan.

An application for $10,350,000 to pay employés of the city, county, and board of education was made to Chicago bankers yesterday by D. F. Kelly of the citizens' committee. Mr. Kelly will work out details of his plan with the bankers today.

The funds are to be obtained, it is expected, through a loan from the Reconstruction Finance corporation. Of the sum to be asked $8,350,000 will be used to make up a six weeks' pay roll for teachers and other employés of the school board and city employés, including firemen and police. The remaining $2,000,000 will go toward a pay roll for county employés.

"We understand that our banks here will have to make an application for the loan to the Reconstruction Finance corporation," Mr. Kelly explained, "but we haven't heard anything definite from Washington."

Follows Mayor's Appeal.

Mr. Kelly said that his plan followed the appeal for $40,000,000 which was made by Mayor Cermak to the banks ten days ago and the application that had been sent by Emmett Whealan, president of the county board, to the citizens' committee.

It was also revealed that the banks might be asked to take care of $8,000,000 in bond redemption, interest and fixed charges, obligations of the city and board of education which fall due on July 1. The payments must be met if the two bodies are to preserve their credit.

Favors Federal Loan.

The prospect of a teachers' pay day brightened yesterday with news from Washington that Senator Robert F. Wagner [Dem., N. Y.] had announced he favors legislation authorizing loans to cities for the specific purpose of paying back salaries to teachers. Senator Wagner added the belief that the senate, if proper safeguards were set up, would favor a bill or an amendment providing upwards of $50,000,000 for such a purpose.

Senator Wagner is the principal author and supporter of the $300,000,000 relief bill which passed the senate recently.

His statement followed the announcement of Congressman Fred A. Britten [Rep., Ill.] that he would offer an amendment to the Wagner relief bill raising its total to $350,000,000 and providing that the extra $50,000,000 should be loaned by the Reconstruction Finance corporation to cities to pay overdue salaries of teachers.

Loaned on Tax Warrants.

The funds would be loaned by the corporation on tax warrants or other municipal securities. A provision empowering the finance corporation to make such loans would be included. Mr. Britten said that he would also offer an amendment to the Wagner two billion dollar general construction relief bill, still pending, to provide that the fund be divided among the states according to unemployment rather than on the basis of population.

Should both amendments become law, it would be possible for Chicago to obtain close to $20,000,000 for the teachers and approximately $30,000,000 for other relief purposes.

"Many states have no major relief problem and do not need the money," Mr. Britten said. "Illinois needs a large amount of federal cash and I think she should have it."

Will Owe $24,000,000.

By July 1 the Chicago board of education will owe its employés $24,000,000, of which $19,000,000 represents pay for teachers.

Teachers are seeking any kind of employment to tide them over the summer, according to school officials, and many have been forced to appeal to the charities for assistance. William J. Bogan, superintendent of schools, said that generally the morale of the teaching force had been "nothing short of marvelous."

PRINCIPAL DIES

Miss Agnes Clohesy, president of the Elementary Teachers' union, last night sent to Mayor Cermak a letter requesting immediate pay for teachers and pointing out that a school principal died this week because he "was too impoverished to obtain medical care."

"His own orphan children," Miss Clohesy continued, "may now appeal to public charity while the citizens of Chicago sit supinely by and witness the tragedy. It is time to face the facts. We appeal to you to prevent

Machine Gunners Kill "Red" Barker

RACKET CHIEF IS SHOT DOWN BY GANGSTERS

Death Ends Career of Criminality.

The assassination of Red Barker as told below was not the only gangster killing of the last 24 hours. In the afternoon Samuel Katz, Harold Partner, and Frank Rogers, extortionists, walked into a police trap at 208 North Wells street, tried to extort money from a gambler, and in an exchange of shots with the police the three were shot dead.

George (Red) Barker, ex-convict, labor racketeer, and gunman, who was credited with an ambition to succeed to the gangland crown of Alphonse Capone, met his death by machine gun bullets early today.

He was walking in front of 1502 North Crawford avenue when there was a burst of gunfire; then another. Whether it came from an automobile or from window on the second floor of the house at 1502 is undetermined. Some witnesses reported seeing an automobile driven away immediately after the shooting. The police found a room in the house that had evidently been used as a machine gun nest. There were shells on the floor and a rifle that had been abandoned.

Barker fell. A count a little later by physicians showed that thirty-six bullets had struck him. The long, low car passed on and disappeared down the dimly lighted street. Two men and a woman, believed to have been friends of Barker, were said by other witnesses to have been only a few feet away when the shooting occurred, but the aim of the gunmen was so accurate that none of these persons was struck.

Carry Him to Norford Hotel.

Half carrying, half dragging the bullet riddled man, these companions took him to the front door of the Norford hotel at 1512 North Crawford avenue. There they were joined by Larry Evans, a waiter in the hotel dining room. Barker was thrust into an automobile and hustled away to the Keystone hospital.

When they arrived there—the hospital is at 1623 North Kostner avenue—the door was closed and locked. The men with Barker, or his body, for he was dead then, were impatient. They did not wait for the door to be opened. They kicked it in.

To Miss Elizabeth Curran, night nurse who answered the rude summons, they shouted:

"Take care of this man. Money's no object."

They helped to carry the body back to a bed. Miss Curran told them there was no hope. Without delay the four men fled. The woman had apparently stopped at the hotel. Three of the four escaped in the car.

One of Men Captured.

The fourth, Evans, was captured by Policeman John Trecker of the Fillmore street station. Trecker, off duty, standing at North and Crawford avenues, had heard the shooting and gone toward it. The men with the body had passed him in their car and he had commandeered another and pursued. Evans was just leaving the hospital when he arrived.

Dr. L. K. Eastman, head of the hospital, notified Barker's brother, Dr. C. C. Barker of the Martha Washington hospital staff, of the killing and the brother assisted in the post-mortem examination of the body.

Police squads from the Austin station, headed by Lieut. Maurice Byrne, and from the detective bureau, under the command of Deputy Detective Chief Walter Storms, started an intensive investigation of the shooting. Several employés of the hotel were taken into custody for questioning and Barker's wife, who was at her home, 429 South Austin boulevard, when the machine gun bullets were poured into her husband, also was questioned.

Motive Is Mystery.

Several hours after the killing, however, there was still a deep aura of mystery about the motive of the slayers. The facts in the case were fairly plain—a killing in the traditional gangster fashion that gave the victim no chance to fight for his life. Speculation alone could show the reason for such a killing.

Underground rumor for some months had indicated that Barker, with Jack

JUDGE ASSAILS DEFENDANT FOR DUPING JOBLESS

"You are the meanest man in the world," Municipal Judge John J. Lupe told John Gasior, alias John Wright, as he held him to the grand jury yesterday in bonds of $35,000. Gasior was charged with defrauding 33 jobless men by promising to get them positions as conductors on the South Shore interurban line.

Gasior, witnesses testified, called at small stores in the South Chicago district asking for some nonexistent person and saying that he had a job for him as a conductor on the South Shore line, of which he claimed to be an official.

When he was unable to find the man he asked for, the proprietor of the store generally had some relative who was out of work. Gasior would measure the man, "for a uniform," take money from him as a "deposit," and tell him to report in a week at the railroad offices. Officials of the South Shore line began an investigation when the men began to appear there.

Dentist Found Dead in His Office Room in Winnetka

Dr. Valentine Massman, 63 years old, a dentist, was found dead yesterday afternoon on a couch in his office at 992 Pine street, Winnetka. Dr. Paul W. Greeley, 545 Lincoln avenue, Winnetka, who was called to examine the body, said that there were indications death was due to heart disease. There was a towel beside the body and a nearly empty bottle of chloroform on a shelf in the room. An investigation of a theory that chloroform may have caused Dr. Massman's death is to be made. He had been practicing in Winnetka for many years. The office is in a room of the dentist's home.

Physician Uses Seaplane to Visit Patient at Sea

Philadelphia, Pa., June 16.—(AP)—A doctor, summoned by radio, paid a call in a seaplane to a ship 30 miles at sea and today his patient is in a local hospital where officials say he has a good chance of recovering. David Tobin, engineer of the steamer San Antonio bound for this port from Houston, Tex., was taken suddenly ill yesterday, and the steamer radioed for help. Within less than half an hour Dr. F. R. Hughes of Cape May arrived in a coast guard plane. When the vessel reached Philadelphia a waiting ambulance whisked the patient to the hospital.

Hoover Wires His Thanks for Renomination

President Hoover, notified of his renomination in a telegram dispatched to Washington, D. C., by Chairman Bertrand H. Snell, sent the following message to the convention:

"I have your telegram advising me that the Republican convention has renominated me as the party's candidate for President of the United States. I am deeply grateful for the highest honor that the party can confer. It marks your approval and your confidence.

"I shall labor, as I have labored, to meet the effects of the world-wide storm which has devasted us with trials and suffering unequaled in but few periods of our history. That storm still surrounds us.

Sees Business Recovery.

"The measures which we have adopted and the policies which you have outlined will, with patience and courage, restore confidence and with it employment, agriculture, and business. These policies and measures will hold our hard-won American system of ordered liberty and government. Our youth will continue to find that the doors of equal opportunity are open.

"But beyond platforms and measures there lies the sacred realm of ideals of hopes and aspirations, those things of the spirit which make the greatness and soul of the nation.

"These are our objectives and with unceasing effort, with courage and faith in Almighty God, they will be attained.

"If the American people shall again commit to me the high trust of this great office I pledge to them the full measure of my devotion to their service."

Curtis Expresses Gratitude.

Vice President Charles Curtis, who was also in Washington, sent the following telegram to Chairman Snell as soon as notified that he had received the nomination:

"I have received your telegram informing me that the Republican national convention again has nominated me for Vice President on the Republican ticket with President Hoover. I wish to thank you for the message and ask that you express to the convention my deep appreciation for this signal honor.

"I congratulate the convention on renominating the President. I feel very sure that the record of the present administration is such as to insure the election of the entire ticket in November."

FLY FROM COAST TO COAST IN 14 HOURS 49 MINS.

Santa Monica, Cal., June 16.—(AP)—Making three stops across the continent, James O. Dickson, pilot, and three passengers flew 2,480 miles from Newark, N. J., to Santa Monica in 16 hours 49 minutes elapsed time and 14 hours 49 minutes actual flying time today, they computed.

They claimed a record for flying distance in one day between sunrise and sunset, leaving Newark at 5:52 a. m., eastern daylight time, half an hour after official sunrise, and landing here at 6:41 p. m., coast standard time, half an hour before sunset.

Allen Van De Mark brought three passengers from the eastern coast to Los Angeles, 16 miles east of here, in 15 hours 45 minutes flying time on Feb. 28, 1931.

The plane Dickson flew is owned by Hal Roach, motion picture producer. Passengers were Arthur Loew, theater magnate; Henry Ginsberg, general manager of the Roach studios, and William Meinicker, South American manager for Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studios.

They landed at Indianapolis, Wichita, Kas., and Albuquerque for food and fuel.

N. U. PROFESSOR FALLS OFF TRAIN TO HIS DEATH

Vicente M. Diaz, 35 years old, 1935½ Orrington avenue, Evanston, an instructor for five years in romance languages at Northwestern university, either jumped or fell to his death from the restroom of a Pennsylvania train near North Judson, Ind., yesterday. He was on his way with his wife to visit her relatives either in Richmond, Ind., or Dayton, O.

Diaz's contract with the university expired at the end of the last semester, according to Courtland Eyer, another language teacher in the university. Eyer said that two weeks before the end of the school year Diaz had suffered a severe illness that had resulted in a nervous breakdown. This was ascribed to hard study he had done for an advanced degree. He was a native of San Juan, Porto Rico, and took his M.A. degree at Northwestern.

Hollywood, Cal., June 16.—[Special.]—John Gilbert, motion picture star, was reported as probably suffering with appendicitis today. He was at home under the care of physicians.

Solid South's Federal Squad Beats Repeal

BY ARTHUR EVANS.

Wet Republican leaders, after analyzing the roll call of states on the Hoover moist plank, voiced the conclusion yesterday that the prohibition "straddle" had been nailed into the national party platform by the postmasterships of the dry [politically] south.

Thirteen states in the south, a normally Democratic area, which Hoover cracked in 1928 when he carried 40 of the 48 states, won the administration fight for the dampish plank against the repealists.

The other 35 states, covering Republican areas, gave a majority for repeal.

Roll Call Is Analyzed.

Analysis of the roll call tells the story of southern domination in the great controversy over repeal of prohibition, the great issue of the Republican convention, as follows:

	For repeal.	Against.
13 southern states [excluding Mississippi]	8	253
35 remaining states, Alaska, District of Columbia, Hawaii, Philippines, Porto Rico	452	430
	460	683

Fractional votes were not considered in the above table, the reason for the slight departure from the vote as officially announced.

It shows what postoffice and federal patronage in the Democratic south can do in the control of Republican national conventions.

The delegate body seemed permeated with dissatisfaction. From the industrial states, where the tide was for repeal, the votes must come in November for the party to get anywhere.

Point to Repeal Vote.

Wet leaders in the battle on the floor of the national convention Wednesday night pointed to the heavy repeal vote piled up in the northern and western states as evidencing that the sentiment among the delegations from the great normally Republican strongholds was preponderantly for submission of repeal of the 18th amendment. They held that the party policy has thus been written by the south, traditionally Democratic until the Hoovercrat slide four years ago.

The general feeling among the liberal Republicans was that the straddle itself goes much farther than it would had it not been for the battle for direct repeal. The vote in the northern and western states and the total vote itself was regarded as showing the tremendous swing of anti-prohibition sentiment, particularly as it was piled up in resistance to pressures and squeezes exerted by the full administration forces, including eight cabinet members on the ground.

Await Action of Democrats.

The wet and dry organizations withheld comment until the Democrats take their stand some two weeks hence.

But among the party workers and the state chieftains there was plenty of talk during the final session, most of it, however, being not for quotation. They pointed out the repeal vote, though it lost, would have been unthinkable a year ago, or six months ago—in 1928 in Kansas City it did not even get a roll call but was smothered with a pillow.

VICE PRESIDENT WINS BY A NOSE ON 1ST BALLOT

Party Closes 3 Day Convention.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.

President Hoover and Vice President Curtis were renominated by the Republican national convention in its closing session in the Stadium yesterday afternoon.

With this ticket in the November presidential election the Republican party will make its bid for retention in power, standing on the platform adopted Wednesday night, which proposes to modify the 18th amendment in such manner as to allow states to restore the manufacture and sale of intoxicating liquor under conditions defined by congress.

Hoover Expresses Gratitude.

To a telegram sent by Permanent Chairman Bertrand H. Snell of the convention informing him of his renomination the President replied with expression of his gratitude and prediction that Republican policies will yet dispel the economic depression. Prohibition he did not mention. The President will be officially notified of his renomination a few weeks hence by a committee headed by Mr. Snell.

Within two hours after the convention had ended at 4 p. m. the new national committee which is to conduct the campaign was organized with Everett Sanders of Indiana, formerly congressman and later secretary to President Coolidge, as chairman. Postmaster General Walter F. Brown transmitted to the committee Mr. Hoover's desire for the choice of Mr. Sanders for this post.

Curtis Has Close Call.

While President Hoover was renominated by 1,126½ of the 1,154 votes in the convention, Vice President Curtis, the one time Indian jockey, won by only a nose. Like President Hoover, he was named on the first and only ballot, but with only 634½ votes. At the close of the roll call Curtis was 19 votes short of the necessary majority of 573, but a switch of 75 votes by Pennsylvania sent him across the line.

The vote on the nomination for President was:

Herbert Hoover of California	1,126½
John J. Blaine of Wisconsin	13
Calvin Coolidge of Massachusetts	4½
Joseph I. France of Maryland	4
Charles G. Dawes of Illinois	2
James W. Wadsworth of New York	1
Absent or not voting	4

On the ballot for the nomination of Vice President the tally was:

Charles Curtis of Kansas	634½
Hanford MacNider of Iowa	183½
James G. Harbord of New York	161½
Alvan T. Fuller of Massachusetts	87
Bertrand H. Snell of New York	56
J. Leonard Replogle of Florida	22½
James Couzens of Michigan	11
Charles G. Dawes of Illinois	9½
David Iseralls of Ohio	8
Patrick J. Hurley of Oklahoma	3
William S. Kenyon of Iowa	3
Hiram Bingham of Connecticut	1
Gen. Edward Martin of Pennsylvania	1
Absent or not voting	6½

Apathetic Over Curtis.

In contrast with the enthusiasm accompanying the renomination of the President which expressed itself in a protracted demonstration—much cheering, flag waving, singing and marching of the delegates about the hall—in contrast with this was the apathy with which the naming of Curtis was greeted. There was scattering applause when he was placed in nomination and again when the result was announced, but dead silence when the chairman announced success of the motion to make the nomination unanimous.

The revolt against the renomination of the Vice President, founded on the desire for a younger, more vigorous, and more colorful personality for second place on the ticket, continued to the very moment of the balloting. When National Committeeman R. B. Creager of Texas, prime mover in the booming of Gen. Charles G. Dawes, took the platform a hush of expectancy fell on the delegations. But the man he proposed was not Dawes but Snell, who quickly declined.

Then Ralph Williams of Oregon, vice chairman of the national committee, rushed from the platform to the Illinois delegation to say that now if ever was the time to put Dawes forward, despite his announcement that he would not accept if nominated.

Two Illinois delegates—Richard Prendergast and Ald. Oscar F. Nelson—followed Williams back to the platform to move and second the nomination of Dawes. At that moment the Dawes boomers were claiming there were 300 votes for the general in sight, chiefly in Illinois, Texas, Iowa, Missouri, Pennsylvania, Massachusetts, New York and New Jersey.

When the mission of the two Illinois delegates on the platform became known the administration leaders became alarmed. Senator Simeon D. Fess of Ohio, retiring national chairman, hurried down to the Ohio delegation and informed Postmaster General Walter F. Brown, political mentor of the administration, what was impending. Mr. Brown went to the platform and entered into a whispered conversation with Ald. Nelson.

The postmaster general adjured Mr. Nelson not to present the name of Gen. Dawes. He said that Gen. Dawes positively would not accept, if nominated, and that if the convention were stampeded to Dawes it would be necessary to prolong the convention to procure agreement on the second choice.

If the convention, Mr. Brown argued, were to display a preference for Dawes over Curtis in that manner and the nomination were then to go begging, President Hoover and the party generally would be embarrassed at the outset of the campaign.

The Illinois delegates were impressed by this plea, abandoned their project, and accompanied Mr. Brown back to the floor. This was virtually the end of the movement to shelve Curtis.

MacNider Boom Falters.

Hanford MacNider, who was the runner-up in the vice presidential contest, looked promising for a time to the anti-Curtis group, but it was soon found that enough strength could not be mustered to put him over. He was put into the race by the ex-service men.

His nomination was moved by J. N. Darling, the Iowa cartoonist, who dwelt on the youth of the candidate, which was a dig at 73 year old Curtis, and conjured up visions of all the veterans in the country voting the Republican ticket if MacNider were on it.

Illinois gave 23½ votes to MacNider and only 13½ to Curtis. Pennsylvania, New York, Massachusetts, New Jersey, and Texas were other states which displayed conspicuously a preference to a candidate other than Curtis.

Pennsylvania, however, was only waiting to see which way the cat was going to jump. When the roll call ended it was known Curtis lacked a majority. Then up popped Mrs. Worthington Scranton, Pennsylvania committeewoman, announcing her state would change its vote to Curtis.

Scott Nominates Hoover.

President Hoover was placed in nomination by Joseph Scott of California, whose laudation of the President moved the convention to a high pitch of enthusiasm. There followed upon the conclusion of his speech the usual protracted noisy demonstration with which candidates customarily are acclaimed by their followers in nominating conventions.

When this was over Chairman Snell recognized L. B. Sandblast of Oregon to move the choice of Mr. Hoover's only avowed rival for the nomination, former Senator Joseph I. France of Maryland. Dr. France had won the presidential preference primary vote in a number of western states by default, Mr. Hoover having refrained from entering his name in these contests because of unfavorable political weather forecasts.

In Maryland, however, where the forecast was favorable, Mr. Hoover entered and beat Dr. France. Thus Dr. France lacked the support of his own state, but he had won the preference vote in Oregon, which under its primary law was obligated to present his name.

France Tries to Speak.

Mr. Sandblast had no more than concluded his nominating speech than Dr. France made his way onto the platform and demanded recognition with the intention, as he afterward explained, of withdrawing his own candidacy in favor of Calvin Coolidge. He wanted to make a speech proposing Coolidge, which he was sure would stampede the convention into the choice of the former President in place of Mr. Hoover.

Chairman Snell, however, informed Dr. France he could not be recognized because he was not a delegate.

"I am a delegate," replied Dr. France, producing two proxies, one for National Committeeman William P. Jackson of Maryland, who was not a delegate, and the other a proxy for an alternate of the Oregon delegation.

"You are not a delegate, you have no right to speak here," persisted Chairman Snell as he blocked the way to the lectern with his bung starter gavel in hand.

France Shows Fight.

Perceiving the altercation, N. W. MacChesney, assistant sergeant at arms, moved swiftly to Mr. Snell's side and began edging Dr. France toward the steps leading from the platform. Sergeant at Arms Everett Sanders seized Dr. France by the arm and began leading him off. Dr. France resisted and showed fight. He shook his finger under the noses of Snell and Sanders.

"You will have to carry me off," he shouted. "I have my rights. You know what I am going to do and you are trying to stifle me."

By this time the altercation and scuffling on the platform had attracted the attention of the 20,000 people jamming the Stadium, though they didn't know what it was all about.

Then four bulky policemen, who had been summoned by Sanders, shouldered their way onto the platform and, surrounding Dr. France, took him forcefully down the stairway, so forcefully, in fact, that he plunged headlong and was only saved from a bad spill by one of the policemen.

Firmly, if not gently, the only rival of Mr. Hoover for the nomination was led and pushed to the little police station that had been established in the Stadium. After he had given interviews and been comprehensively photographed and had promised that he would go forth in peace and disturb the convention no more, Dr. France was released and departed. It was the first time in the memory of living politicians that a candidate for the nomination for President had got into the clutches of the law while wooing the favor of the delegates.

Windup Comes Quickly.

The President was renominated at 2:20 p. m. and little more than an hour later Vice President Curtis had been renominated and the convention was winding up its business with the spectators trooping from the hall.

Mr. Snell having been named chairman of the committee to notify Mr. Hoover, Senator L. J. Dickinson of Iowa, who was the temporary chairman of the convention, was chosen, in accord with custom, to head the committee to notify Mr. Curtis.

On motion of Senator Fess the convention dispatched a telegram of greeting and best wishes to Mr. and Mrs. Calvin Coolidge. Then the convention adjourned sine die.

TWO SENT TO CELLS.

Robert Corcoran, 27 years old, and James Mumford, 30, were sent to the house of correction yesterday by Judge Thomas A. Green to work out fines of $200 each. Police testified that the men have records as pickpockets.

HOOVER'S NAME IS CUE FOR SOME A NO. 1 BEDLAM

Bennett Tells of Scene at Renomination.

BY JAMES O'DONNELL BENNETT.

. . . "and I give you as your candidate our great, glorious Californian—Herbert Hoover."

With those words Joseph L. Scott of Los Angeles flung the Republican national convention the cue for the quadrennial performance of that traditional medley of spacious drama and noisy farce known as "the demonstration."

A quarter of a century ago "the demonstration" could be counted upon to last an hour. But we are a less emotional people now.

Lasts Half an Hour.

In the bright noontime of yesterday in the Stadium the bedlam of jubilation lasted half an hour and at its close it was pronounced by party managers a very creditable bedlam.

At 12:20 o'clock Mr. Scott uttered the cue in the presence of 20,000 people. Forthwith nearly 2,200 delegates and alternates, a brass band, and a pipe organ swung into action.

Bushels of bright colored toy balloons floated down from the roof and bounced in benediction upon the heads of marching men and women. Some are waving paper plumes. Some are carrying banners and streamers that admonish the commonwealths from Maine to California to "Press on with Hoover."

Ask What It Spells.

The killjoy we have ever with us and in this moment of well pepped jubilation certain killjoys in the guest seats pretend not to be able to read the banners and ask whether the billowing letters spell "Depression."

Certainly not. For behold now those richly framed Hoover portraits surmounted by golden eagles which are being lifted high before the people.

Behold, too, that woman delegate from Utah who is being carried into the march on the shoulders of men delegates. She is not depressed. She is having a great ride.

Behold United States Senator Hiram Bingham and John Q. Tilson, former Republican leader of the national house of representatives, helping one another to carry the standard of their state—Connecticut—into the parade. A few hours ago they were at variance during the party's secret conferences on how to clear up the muddle of bogus prohibition. Sweet is the reconciliation that springs of party fealty. For now Bingham and Tilson, far from depressed, are marching hand in hand—and in their wake the band is playing loudly.

Blossoms with Flags.

Tiny American flags seem suddenly to blossom in the hands of delegates, and these bannerettes are coyly and briskly waved.

More bushels of toy balloons, ingeniously weighted to descend, float down from the roof 117 feet aloft. Fresh bundles of paper plumes are carried to the performers. The Republican property room must be a rich storehouse of gewgaws, such a multitude of pretty things to take home to the little ones "from Maine to California" does it emit.

Flags of the commonwealths are giving the procession dignity—the Lone Star banner of Texas, the bear of California, the Palmetto of the Carolinas.

Songs of the states are being sung by the marchers. The band is blaring back the tunes and the organ is thundering them—"On Wisconsin," "Illinois," "California, Here I Come," and "Iowa, Where the Tall Corn Grows."

With apologies to rational children it may be recorded, as it often has been by detached observers of previous convention "demonstrations," that men are but children of a larger growth, for now white haired men, heady with band music and tickled with paper plumes, are pausing in the march to perform the cunningest jigsteps, and they roar with delight when they catch a toy balloon in its descent from the roof. How little it takes to make loyal party men happy! A toy balloon and a consulate in a sunny clime, and heaven on earth is theirs.

The standard of the Illinois delegation is the last to go bobbing into the jubilee for Hoover.

Len Small, chairman of the delegation and resentful of Hoover and all his works, does not wish it to go in at all. But his co-delegate, Mrs. Bertha Baur of Chicago, insists.

"O," says Small, "we've got to go through all those performances in November."

"We will go through some of them now," Mrs. Baur replies, and summons Assistant Sergeant at Arms Ray Grable, who carries the standard into the parade while former Gov. Small sits sulking.

21 Minutes of Jubilee.

The jubilee is sagging a bit when a willing worker on the speakers' platform holds aloft a huge black figure 2 painted on white cardboard and a figure 1 in the same style, indicating to the willing workers below him that they have jubilated for 21 minutes. This renews waning pep and the delegates and the alternates determine to register joy for 9 minutes more, thus achieving the satisfactory bedlam of one-half hour's duration. They wind it up by singing "Onward, Christian Soldiers," and then sink into their seats, limp and moist but conscious of duty done.

To the end of the spectacle the thousands of onlookers in the galleries are amused but remain calm; politely aloof, one may fairly say.

Torrents of oratory floated the renomination of Mr. Hoover into harbor.

Men and women, white men and black men, men from Michigan, from Wisconsin, from Illinois, from Pennsylvania, and their sisters in the Republican faith from New York, from West Virginia and from Kentucky followed with seconding speeches the nominating speech by Scott of Los Angeles.

Colored Orators Hold Delegates.

And, believe it or not, the two colored cannoneers in the rhetorical battery—Delegates Roscoe Conkling Simmons of Chicago and John M. Marquess of Philadelphia—were the most successful in commanding and holding the attention of the huge audience.

Full voiced, fluent with gorgeous words, impressive in manner without being pretentious, they possess the essential equipment for platform spellbinding. Such gifts may not be very profound, but their effect upon an audience is very exhilarating.

Simmons, named for one American orator, has the style of another. Named for Roscoe Conkling, he has made the more ornate Ingersoll his model—not a safe model, but one that bewitches listeners who love gorgeousness and melody, whether the words mean much or little.

In far carrying tones Simmons gave his 20,000 hearers—and Hear him they did—sheer georgeousness, saying in his tribute to Lincoln and Hoover:

"History will dip her pen in the dews of truth and beneath the story of Lincoln's patience she will write the story of Hoover's endurance."

And again when recalling an orator of his own race:

"Frederick Douglass, the forensic genius in black, had seen your fathers go away when Lincoln called, thousands never to return except as they return in me who speaks to you now. He had seen my emancipator fall in death as he lifted me, and those with me, from the living, merciless death of fetters. Led on by memory, urged, too, by gratitude, Douglass uttered his cry, 'The Republican party is the ship; all else is the sea.'"

Prolonged applause for that.

Gazes at Flags.

When Marquess reached the platform he paused an instant to look up at the hundreds of flags swaying far aloft. That glance made the people wonder a little, so intent was it. Marquess meant that they should wonder. For then he gave himself to his opportunity and his task with these words of proud surrender:

"I yield to the inspiration of this occasion, the inspiration of the flag and the inspiration of Hoover!"

Bravo for the good drama in that!

In his seconding speech Judge Frank R. Bentley of Madison, Wis., gave the convention the kind of news it best liked to hear—news of party regularity restored. He told the delegates that regularity is again in the Wisconsin saddle by a satisfactory majority, adding, "For many years we loyal Wisconsin Republicans have been eating crow, but we are eating turkey now."

Great Day for the Scotts.

It was a great day for the Scotts. For not only did Joseph Scott of Los Angeles make the speech that placed Mr. Hoover in renomination for the presidency but Charles Scott, the highly regarded editor of the Register in that pleasant city, Iola, Kas., made the speech that placed Charles Curtis of Kansas in renomination for the vice presidency.

Scott of Kansas released ringing phrases about Curtis of Kansas. What a career!—the career of a lad with the blood of American aborigines in his veins who, said the speaker, "has marched the long road from an Indian reservation to the vice presidency and to the council chamber of the chief magistrate of the land."

Nor did those words go merely to the making of well turned and well tuned phrases. Mr. Scott was sincerely for Curtis as being a safe and sagacious counselor and he closed with this statement in support of his estimate of the Vice President:

"President Hoover is proud to be associated with Charles Curtis. He wants his advice. He has often received it."

Nomination Is Seconded.

The Kansas and Colorado delegations seconded the nomination with cheers and with waving banners.

That neighborly demonstration was followed by speeches nominating for the vice presidency Alvin T. Fuller, former governor of Massachusetts; Bertrand Snell of New York, chairman of the convention now ended; Maj. Gen. James G. Harbord of the Radio Corporation of America; Hanford MacNider, former national commander of the American Legion and now our minister to Canada, and J. Leonard Replogle of Florida.

But Curtis won in his quiet, leisurely way—the way that he brings to bear on poker.

NORTH CAROLINA'S 26 VOTES FOR ROOSEVELT; REJECT REPEAL PLAN

Raleigh, N. C., June 16.—(AP)—North Carolina's Democratic state convention today refused to direct its delegates to the national convention to vote for a platform proposal for ascertaining the will of the people on retention, repeal or modification of the eighteenth amendment. The convention instructed its 26 votes for Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt of New York for President.

The prohibition question caused the only fireworks, debate on the issue being provoked when two members of the platform committee presented a minority report instructing the delegates how to vote in Chicago.

The majority platform plank on prohibition which was adopted recognized the right of the voters to amend the constitution at any time, but called for law enforcement of all kinds.

Instruction for Roosevelt virtually was unanimous, being given by a standing vote.

COMMITTEE NAMED TO NOTIFY HOOVER, CURTIS OF VICTORY

Representative Bertrand H. Snell of New York, and Senator L. J. Dickinson of Iowa, were named at the close of the convention to head the committees which will notify President Hoover and Vice President Curtis of their renominations. Senator Dickinson was the convention's temporary chairman and keynoter and Mr. Snell was permanent chairman.

Middle west representatives on the presidential notification committee include: William B. Hull, Illinois; Norman A. Perry, Indiana; Charles Beecher Warren, Michigan; E. P. Adler, Iowa, and George W. Mead, Wisconsin.

In part, Chicagoland will be represented on the vice presidential committee as follows: John G. Oglesby, Illinois; Walter J. Riley, Indiana; Casius L. Glasgow, Michigan; E. P. Chase, Iowa, and George M. Andersen, Wisconsin. No date for the notification was set by the convention.

FOREIGN WARVETS ATTACK HOOVER FOR BONUS STAND

Sterling, Ill., June 16.—[Special.]—The veterans' bonus, bonus marchers, President Hoover and J. Hamilton Lewis were subjects of several hours of discussion at the opening session of the Illinois department, Veterans of Foreign Wars' thirteenth annual encampment here today. Hoover was denounced by William Orthman, Chicago, and a number of other delegates for his attitude on bonus payment. He was accused of being the champion of "twelve thousand millionaires made as result of the world war."

Lewis was criticized for remarks to the bonus marchers, but his supporters denied his alleged statements. The question was referred to the resolutions committee.

Danville made a bid for the 1933 convention. Henry F. Marquard, Chicago, vice commander, is the only candidate for commander. The Rev. Francis J. Thomas of Chicago, commander, presided. The veterans will hold a parade and military ball Friday.

ITALIAN FLIES 430 MI. AN HOUR; BREAKS RECORD

DESENZANO DEL GARDA, Italy, June 16.—(AP)—The world airplane speed record has been broken by an Italian ace with a speed of 430 miles an hour, but his trial was invalidated by a last minute accident. The flyer was Lieut. Neri of the Italian air force and he beat the speed of 408.8 miles an hour set by Flight Lieutenant George H. Stainforth at Calshot, England, a year ago.

The accident was the loss of an elevation rudder on the final lap of the trial held here yesterday. Just as Lieut. Neri was on the verge of the record, the violent air currents set up by his terrific speed tore off the rudder.

The flyer was forced to use all his skill as the ship plunged off the course, but finally maneuvered down to the surface in safety. He insisted he was going to try again in the immediate future. Lieut. Stainforth established the world's speed record over a three kilometer course.

ECONOMY TO BE G. O. P.'S MOTTO IN CAMPAIGN

Much Less Cash in Sight; Sanders Chairman.

BY OSCAR HEWITT.

The Hoover-Curtis campaign will probably be more economically conducted than any the Republicans have known in 20 years. Only a fourth of what was spent four years ago is likely to be available for the 1932 campaign.

The information regarding the lack of cash on hand—or lack of prospects of getting a large sum—was conveyed to the new national committee at its initial session last night; and all but overshadowed the election of Everett Sanders, former secretary to President Coolidge, as chairman of the committee. Mr. Sanders was the choice of President Hoover, whose wish was conveyed to the committeemen by Postmaster General Brown.

Little Cash in Sight.

The election was unanimous. Mr. Sanders expressed his thanks; then J. R. Nutt, treasurer of the committee, informed the committee that it will have relatively little money with which to conduct the campaign.

It is reported that to date Mr. Nutt has been able to get pledges for $500,000, which is only one-tenth of the amount actually spent in 1928.

"It should be understood at the outset," started Mr. Nutt, "that this campaign will be considerable different from that conducted in 1928. In the last four years more than $7,000,000 has passed through the treasurer's hands. Some of that was joint collections and about $1,700,000 was redistributed to the states.

Subscriptions Are Attenuated.

"Men who gave us $25,000 four years ago I cannot now ask for $1,000, because they cannot afford to give that much. In 1928 we had 900 paid employés at one time. This year we cannot have anything like that number. Frankly, may I suggest that we will have to get much volunteer service, because we will have much less money to spend.

"It now seems probable that the states will have to finance themselves. The women were much more economical than the men in 1928 and the men this year must be as thrifty as the women."

As one means of economizing, Mark E. Reed, new committeeman and banker and lumberman from Washington, suggested curtailment on "literature." He remarked:

"Four years ago I saw tons of literature out our way, which I was told cost us $1,000 for the express alone. It looked to me like a waste of money. I suggest that the committee this year ascertain whether the literature sent to a state will fit in before it is shipped. Why not send out a copy of what is proposed in advance to ascertain whether the state chairman thinks it will be of service and worth the expense."

Expect G. O. P. to Win.

Aside from the lack of the usual amount of cash, those who expressed an opinion predicted that the Republican ticket will win. Mr. Sanders the new chairman, started that trend of expression.

"When the smoke of this (convention) battle has cleared away," he said, "and a clear idea is presented of our platform, we will go forward with a feeling that we will win. We will win because between now and November the people will be convinced that the party and nominees stand for sound government. The public will realize that in this crisis their greatest safety lies in reëlecting Herbert Hoover and Charles Curtis."

Dr. Hubert Work, chairman of the committee four years ago, spoke in a similar vein.

Sanders an Ex-Congressman.

Chairman Sanders was a congressman from Indiana until 1924, when he became private secretary to President Coolidge. Since 1928 he has been practicing law in Washington with connections also in Chicago. He was sergeant at arms of the convention.

All of the other officers of the national committee were reëlected, except the third vice chairman. Daniel E. Pomeroy of New Jersey, who has held that post, nominated J. Henry Roraback of Connecticut for that honor. Ralph E. Williams, oldest member of the committee, was reelected first vice chairman and Mrs. Alvin T. Hert of Kentucky second vice chairman.

Headquarters in Chicago?

While Mr. Sanders said he had no plans for headquarters word came from Washington that chief headquarters will be located in Chicago. Also that President Hoover will probably make his speech of acceptance from the south portico of the White House in late July or early August, instead of returning to California for that festivity.

DELEGATES PRAISE TRIBUNE FOR LIGHT ON WET-DRY PLANK

Delegates to the Republican national convention, as they packed their bags and started their journeys home last night, praised the enterprise of THE TRIBUNE in its free distribution on the convention floor Wednesday night of copies of this newspaper containing both the Hoover plank on prohibition and Senator Bingham's minority plank asking repeal.

In the hours just preceding the evening session, several state delegations had adjourned caucuses without taking a definite stand on the prohibition plank because they were unable to learn the exact wording of the two planks. Their perplexity was increased rather than relieved by the reading of the platform in the convention, partly due to the ineffectiveness of the loudspeaker system in the hall and partly because of the wordy involutions of the majority prohibition plank itself.

Meanwhile, copies of both the majority and minority planks had been rushed to the Tribune Tower from the Congress hotel and printed in the first edition of THE TRIBUNE. When the platform was presented to the convention THE TRIBUNE was the only newspaper available at the Stadium giving the text of the controversial planks.

Two thousand copies of THE TRIBUNE were hurried to the Stadium by this newspaper's circulation department. There they were turned over to a dozen members of THE TRIBUNE editorial staff. These impromptu newsboys hurried onto the convention floor just as the reading of the platform had reached the plank on prohibition, and within a few minutes they had placed copies of this newspaper, with the exact wording of that plank and of the repeal alternative, in the hands of every delegate.

CRIPPLE CALLED DEVIL POSSESSED IS FOUND DEAD

Baltimore, Md., June 16.—(AP)—The body of a 26 year old cripple, who, police were told, was believed by his mother and brother to be "possessed of devils," was found today by officers on a couch in his home here.

The coroner, examining a diary kept by the brother, said he found a notation that death had occurred April 4 and beside the entry was written, "He will rise from the dead" June 24.

"God knows all about this," Taul Aubel, 30, the brother, told the police who came today to take the cripple, Grant Aubel, to a hospital.

The mother, Mrs. Annie Aubel, had been arrested earlier in the day for interfering with the work of a health officer. All she would say at the police station was "God will take care of me."

From neighbors the police had learned that the cripple had not been seen for weeks and that in the past his mother and brother had avoided him, refusing to touch him, because they believed him possessed.

KILLED CLEANING SHOTGUN.

Benton, Ill., June 16.—[Special.]—J. R. Overture, 60, a farmer residing ten miles east of Benton, was killed today while cleaning a shotgun.

OFFICIALS FIND IT WAS ORDERLY, SAFE CONVENTION

More than average order prevailed at the Stadium during the convention, a survey showed last night. No serious accidents were reported; the police pickpocket detail made a few arrests on suspicion but received no complaints, and seating of the vast throngs was accomplished without disorder, according to convention officials who expressed themselves as well satisfied with the record.

The three emergency hospitals, placed at vantage points in the hall under the direction of Dr. A. M. Harvey, treated only 25 cases for minor injuries—principally persons suffering slight bruises and fainting spells. Dr. Harvey attributed this, in part, to the fine weather.

Capt. Frank Matchett, in active charge of the police detail, gave his 500 men credit for maintaining the traffic flow evenly. Maj. John Bauder, principal police officer at the convention, gave similar praise. The temporary postoffice handled 10,000 pieces of mail, most of which were delivered on the floor of the convention. About 200 pieces were left undelivered to be returned.

SEIZE LIQUOR ACROSS STREET FROM STADIUM

Prohibition agents yesterday raided a saloon at 1825 West Madison street, across the street from the Republican national convention. Three barrels of unlabeled beer were seized. Clarence Baker and Morris Freedman were seized as operators, but no delegates or other customers were found. The scene of a recent raid, the place had been rejuvenated and a temporary bar erected.

Raids were also made at 1660 Augusta street, where liquor was seized and William Bayer arrested; 2422 South Oakley avenue, where liquor and Augusta Fornaciara were seized by agents, and 4814 Norwood street, where a still was found in a garage at the rear of the lot.

HOOVER STARTS MAPPING PLANS FOR CAMPAIGN

He Thanks Convention for Renomination.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., June 16.—[Special.]—Within a few moments after notice had been received at the White House of his renomination President Hoover today thanked the Republican convention for the honor conferred upon him and immediately plunged into the task of working out the major plans for his campaign this summer and fall.

It was learned at the White House that the President now expects to cancel his plans for traveling to his old home in Palo Alto to deliver his formal acceptance speech some six weeks hence. The program now calls for a campaign which will find the President conducting his fight for reelection from the White House and from the privacy of his fishing camp on the Rapidan river.

Toss Bricks at Dry Plank.

With the exception of the White House and the office of the Vice President the receipt of the news that the Republican national campaign ticket this fall would again be Hoover and Curtis caused scarcely a ripple in official Washington. At the capitol senators and representatives of both political parties were so busy tossing bricks at the Hoover prohibition plank in the Republican platform that the President's nomination was not even noted in the senate.

In the house the Republicans greeted an announcement that President Hoover had been renominated with a scattering of applause that was drowned out a moment later by shrieks of glee and loud handclapping from the Democratic side.

"That fixes it," a Democrat shouted, as Representative Carl E. Mapes [Rep., Mich.] rose to inform his colleagues that President Hoover had been selected.

Curtis Bows Acknowledgment.

Announcement on the senate floor by Senator David A. Reed [Rep., Pa.] that Vice President Curtis had been renominated elicited a burst of handclapping by occupants of the galleries. On the rostrum the Vice President bowed acknowledgment, then Senator Joseph T. Robinson [Ark.], minority leader and Democratic candidate for the vice presidency in 1928, rose to his feet.

"If the country accepts a Republican Vice President, the indications are that it will not," said Senator Robinson smiling. "I am sure that we on this side of the chamber will be pleased to have the present occupant continue in his place. But God save the country from another Republican administration."

Immediately after receiving telegrams from Representative Bertrand H. Snell, permanent chairman of the convention, notifying them that they had been selected, President Hoover and Vice President Curtis telegraphed their acceptances to Chicago. In his message the President expressed his deep gratitude, adding that if the American people again elected him to the highest office in the land he would give them "the full measure" of his "devotion and service."

Takes Renomination Calmly.

President Hoover was listening in on the radio in the Lincoln study of the White House when announcement was made that he had been renominated. With him were Mrs. Hoover, George Akerson, his political assistant for the campaign, and Theodore Joslin, a White House secretary. According to those in the room at the time, the President took his renomination calmly, smiling when his renomination was made sure and then rising to shake hands with his guests.

A few moments later it was learned at the White House that Everett Sanders, secretary to former President Calvin Coolidge and a native of Indiana, would handle the President's campaign as chairman of the Republican national committee.

George Akerson, who handled the press contacts for the President during the 1928 campaign, will again take over this work. The principal headquarters almost certainly will be at Chicago, although President Hoover will play a big part in the campaign from his office at the White House and from the Rapidan camp.

Comments on Irregularity.

The plank in the platform criticising party irregularity drew a spark from Senator Hiram Johnson [Rep., Cal.] today. He recalled that James R. Garfield, chairman of the resolutions committee, who read the platform, had himself bolted from the party in 1912 to follow Roosevelt.

"I listened last night to a gentleman named Garfield read the Republican platform," Senator Johnson said. "My memory went back twenty years when I knew another Garfield—a man unafraid who went forward in the glorious adventure of the Progressive party under Theodore Roosevelt. No party tradition bound that Garfield. At my age and with my memory I cherish the Garfield I knew in 1912."

WOUNDED BY BANDIT'S SHOT.

Charles Turnell, manager of the cleaning and dyeing plant of I. M. Iralson & Son at 4242 Cottage Grove avenue, was shot in a finger of his right hand when he grabbed at the gun of one of two bandits who held the office up. The bandits took $35 from the cash register and fled.

REPEAL DEFEAT LAID TO STAND OF DIXIE STATES

Wet Leaders Analyze the Vote on Planks.

the tickets from top to bottom it was pointed out that the moist plank itself is a take-it-or-leave-it proposition. The plank proclaims that the liquor question is not a partisan issue, and it says no public official or party member should be forced to choose between his party and his convictions on the question. This was regarded as akin to the arguments presented to the resolutions committee by the Anti-Saloon league that a liquor plank would amount to "coercion" of Republican officials. It was interpreted as hoisting a sign that the plank is not even a moral obligation on candidates.

Pledge Held to Be Empty.

So the party has got something which means nothing as a pledge on candidates, as the view of the delegates went. A lot of them give token that they will ignore it in the state and local campaigns. Four states, Indiana, Michigan, Illinois and Wisconsin, all a great Republican field normally, went for repeal by a vote of 120 for and 28 against. Delegate sentiment in this Republican area, however, was nullified by the vote cast in a handful of southern states where postmasterships control.

Many delegates after sleeping upon the straddle plank said even a dry plank itself would have been better, as taking a direct position. Now they are wondering what the Democrats will do two weeks hence, and the wet Democrats are wondering whether in their party the prohibition plank will be dictated by the dry [politically] south.

Bingham Points to Vote.

Senator Hiram Bingham of Connecticut, leader of the repeal forces in the convention, said he was gratified over the result of the anti-prohibition drive—first, because of the large vote cast for the minority amendment for straight out repeal, in spite of the cracking of the whip by party managers, and, second, because he appreciates that the plank adopted is much better than it would have been but for the persistent demand for a repeal plank. Bingham declared he would continue his campaign and vote in the senate for outright repeal.

"A bird in the hand is worth two in the bush," said Bingham. "Birds may not be able to fly far, but it's a pretty good little bird just the same. Half a loaf is better than no bread. I didn't suppose they would come as far as they did for a long time.

"I think that any one would have been called crazy who one month ago had the temerity to predict that a Republican convention and the party leaders would have voted as strongly as they did for a resolution calling for prompt submission by the congress to conventions chosen in a manner to assure proper representation, proper revision of the 18th amendment.

Hints Party Whip Cracking.

"I am terribly sorry that the party overlordship, by cracking the whip, refused to give us in congress a chance to come clean on this question in which all the people are so intensely interested.

"If I am nominated by the Republican convention in Connecticut in September I shall accept the nomination only on condition that I do not accept the limitations of this plank.

"The vote for repeal would have been larger if the whip had not been cracked. I am very much pleased with the action of some states which were unexpectedly helpful, such as Arizona and Mississippi. I was much disappointed with the vote of Massachusetts, Ohio, and Minnesota. Of course, in Ohio we had the influence of Walter Brown, postmaster general, and James R. Garfield, chairman of the resolutions committee, to contend against. The Ohio votes were inconsistent when we recall that they nominated David Ingalls, assistant secretary of the navy for aviation, a dripping wet who is for outright repeal, as their candidate for governor.

"Also in Minnesota the convention went on record for repeal. That cracking of the whip pulled many votes away from a repeal plank. And remember if there had been a change on only 105 delegates our amendment would have carried. Also remember that the party managers and its dry forces did not give the delegates a chance to study their planks."

EDITORIAL COMMENT ON REPUBLICAN DRY LAW PLANK

Newspapers throughout the country commented editorially on the prohibition plank adopted at the Republican national convention. Some of their comments follow:

Atlanta Constitution—The timorous and vacillating attitude of the Republican convention on the prohibition question is not surprising. It has endeavored to present a declaration that will be satisfactory to both wets and drys, which is as impossible as it is to ride two horses going in opposite directions. Mrs. Mabel Willebrandt warned the committee not to "disguise the real object behind the measly word resubmission," but the White House preferred to straddle and a pussyfooting declaration is the result. It will satisfy neither side. The convention, under the lash of long distance and weak kneed control, has adopted the evasive tactics of the Wickersham commission.

Arkansas Gazette—For the Democratic south the plank has no political significance save the service it should render in stripping from the minds of southern drys any last shred of illusion that the G. O. P. is the peculiar defender of national prohibition.

Baltimore Sun. — While Senator Borah on behalf of the drys launches his thunderbolts at the plank on prohibition adopted in the Republican national convention, and Dr. Butler, Senator Bingham and other wet spokesmen heap scorn upon its weasel words, the people should understand that a substantial political victory has been won for reform of national prohibition and moral victory of genuine importance.

Boston Herald — The anti-prohibition plank of the Republican platform should cause rejoicing among the wets, for it is the longest step away from absolute prohibition since the passage of the 18th amendment. The Republican party has broken ground for the first time. It is the spirit of the Republican platform, not the phrasing, which ranks the spirit of the Republican plank as definitely anti-dry.

Butte Standard—Modification and state rights make a better defensive issue for the Republican party than repeal. The Republican strategy has come to the rescue of President Hoover.

Chattanooga Times — Compromise, evasion and obscurity characterize the Republican prohibition plank.

Cincinnati Inquirer—The long preamble concerning the duties of obedience and enforcement of law, in the light of what follows, is almost infantile. Ten years ago it could have been written with some sincerity; today after a decade of universal flouting of the law, of widespread corruption of those very officers who are called upon to enforce it, of an era of prohibition paid gangsterism and winking hypocrisy, it is simply childish.

Cleveland Plain Dealer—The platform's evasion of the issue of prohibition repeal emphasizes the opportunity which confronts the Democrats. As a matter both of sound principle and sound strategy the Democratic platform should declare for outright repeal. Republicans dodge the issue. Democrats must meet it without equivocation if they are to merit the confidence of the republic.

Des Moines Register—The first main fact about the plank is that it advances the country toward a day of redecision on prohibition. Whether it comes in four years, or eight, or ten, the day of redecision is brought within vision. It can perhaps be said that the Republican plank makes it certain, eventually.

Duluth News Tribune—While the stand taken on prohibition is unsatisfactory to many drys and wets and is described as a straddle, it's an encouraging sign that the party no longer is committed blindly to enforcement regardless of public opinion.

Los Angeles Times—America is still predominantly for prohibition, the dry cause will gain immeasurably by such a test and definite removal of such a vexatious issue. If a fair vote shows a majority against prohibition as now enacted, a change would be mandatory.

Louisville Courier-Journal—The prohibition plank is a contemptible, cowardly straddle, designed in the hope of holding both the drys and wets. It means, so far as its meaning can be worked out, aside from flat opposition to repeal, anything or nothing, as one may choose to construe it.

New York Herald Tribune—In some paradise for politicians there may yet be devised a compromise more inclusive and vague than the wet-moist-dry plan. To date it has no rival. Has anything been left out? Repeal? It might easily be argued that this, too, has been included. For by the time the new amendment got through wrecking, revising, adding to and subtracting from the eighteenth amendment the latter would be about one-half of 1 per cent alive. If the great compromisers have left anything out we cannot recall what it is.

New York Post—Well, the administration has put it through the convention. A political compromise has met and defeated a national demand for courage and plain speaking. This "victory" for Mr. Hoover is like the "victory" for Mr. Taft in the convention of 1912. The great Republican states, the heart and center of the Republican vote, were overridden by the black and tan delegations from the Democratic states of the solid south.

New York Sun—Out of the mountain of minds at Chicago comes a ridiculous mouse. This is the chapter of the Republican platform which deals with prohibition. It is great in length, tenuous in substance and yellow in color. It is about the most cowardly mouse that could be. The evident purpose of its authors was to be obscure and they have succeeded.

New York Times—Doubtless the Republican platform would have made a better impression upon the country if it had been as frank and manly as Mr. Rockefeller was in saying: "I was wrong about the eighteenth amendment, and now I think it ought to be repealed." But, in spite of all its shifts and verbal evasions, the Republican plank does finally commit the party to an efficient plan of repeal. Moreover, the proceedings at the Chicago convention showed that the great bulk of the Republican party is openly for outright repeal, even against the wishes of the President. The minority report favoring that course was defeated only because 262 votes against it were cast by southern states, not one of which the Republicans now hope to carry next November.

Omaha World-Herald—In the long debate but one lone voice was lifted in defense of the eighteenth amendment. The leadership on both sides of the discussion was wet leadership. . . . The drys have been subjected to a humiliating defeat within the party they regarded as their own. They are cast out into the world, orphans without a party home.

Providence News Tribune—May we not suggest an opposite slogan for Republicans: "Hoover and Hokum." These three words express the substance of the platform adopted by the Republican national convention.

Richmond Times Dispatch—It is a timid and equivocal statement written with obvious trepidation. The plank will probably please neither wets nor drys. It is a little better than a pusillanimous straddle and one which puts the Republican party in the dubious attitude of trying to hold with the dry hare and run with the wet hounds. Altogether the platform submitted to the Republican convention is a pussyfooting document which tries to carry out St. Paul's injunction of being all things to all men.

St. Louis Post Dispatch—The ghost of 1928, when Mr. Hoover declared against any modification of the eighteenth amendment, would not down. The plank adopted by the Republicans at Chicago is only another of the compromises of politics.

San Francisco Chronicle—Naturally the plank as adopted is unsatisfactory to both the extreme views. There are those in the Republican [and Democratic] party who regard alcohol as a sin and prohibition as sacrosanct. There are others in both parties who regard prohibition as an outrageous invasion of personal liberty. Each of these factions would like to compel the other to accept its doctrine. But neither party could truthfully say that either of these is its doctrine. This is simply not a party question; both parties are divided on it, and any utterance by either, taking either of these positions, would be misrepresentative of the party membership.

Washington Evening Star—The Republican prohibition plank squarely draws the future issue on this question between "substitution" and "repeal." A new order of wets and drys henceforth will fight it out over the question whether a new amendment to the constitution, some time to be submitted to the people, will modify the eighteenth amendment. Between whom is this battle to be fought? Its importance as a partisan issue may be determined by the Democratic plank.

WET ORGANIZATION ASKS DR. BUTLER TO HEAD LIBERAL PARTY

New York, June 16.—(AP)—Burgoyne Hamilton, president of the Blue Cockade, Inc., an organization for the repeal of the 18th amendment, today invited Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, president of Columbia university, to head a Liberal party, featuring prohibition repeal.

In a telegram to Butler, who is in Chicago as a delegate to the Republican convention, Hamilton said the invitation was issued as the result of "straddling" of the prohibition repeal question by the Republican convention.

The Blue Cockade was organized less than two months ago. Besides Hamilton, who is a real estate operator and who stumped for President Hoover four years ago, the organizers include Frank F. Winans, former president of the Chicago Association of Commerce; Sherman B. Joost, treasurer of the Better Business bureau of New York City, and H. D. Cleveland, cousin of the late Grover Cleveland.

Membership in the organization is gained by taking the pledge not to vote for any candidate for public office "who does not clearly and unconditionally commit himself and his candidacy to the repeal of the 18th amendment."

Washington, D. C., June 16.—[Special.]—A prohibition against the dispatch of additional marines to supervise the Nicaraguan elections next fall was voted by the senate today in conjunction with the passage of the navy department appropriation bill carrying nearly 343 million dollars.

HOOVER PLANK IS SANE, FARCE, FAIR, HOAX, RIDICULOUS

"Straddle" Draws All Manner of Comment.

The Hoover prohibition plank adopted by the Republican national convention was alternately praised and condemned yesterday. Many liberals denounced it as farcical or hypocritical, a number of drys viewed it with misgiving, and some of the moderates expressed approval. Comments of representative Chicagoans follow:

MRS. HENRY W. PEABODY. [Acme Photo.]

Frank J. Loesch It has too many words and is confusing. There should have been a straightforward pledge to allow the people to vote on the prohibition question, as recommended by the Wickersham commission.

Superior Judge Denis E. Sullivan—To borrow an expression from the late Theodore Roosevelt: 'Weasel words.'

Emmett Whealan, president of the county board—It's an attempt to befuddle the people. We Democrats will, I hope, adopt a plank which anyone can understand and give the people a chance to vote without consulting a lawyer. Republicans gave up hope when it was adopted.

"A Clear Cut Issue."

Harry Olson, former chief justice, municipal court—The plank is a statesmanlike document and presents a clear cut issue to the people.

Judge Joseph B. David—A piece of pussyfooting. The Republicans have made themselves ridiculous.

George E. Q. Johnson, United States attorney—I am well pleased. The platform is sane. It is not a question of liquor but of control.

Ralph M. Shaw, director, Association Against the Prohibition Amendment—It's a swindle and a hoax. It concedes the failure of the 18th amendment but still asks the retention of federal control.

Women Plan Protest.

The professional drys here from all parts of the country for the convention viewed the platform with mixed feelings. Mrs. Henry W. Peabody of Massachusetts, general chairman of the Woman's National Committee for Law Enforcement, went forward with her plan to call a convention July 4, in Indianapolis, looking to the formation of a feminine prohibition party.

"The reference to resubmission in the plank brands it as a repeal measure," Mrs. Peabody said. "Dry women oppose it and will accept no compromise."

Other drys were less critical. Some of their comments follow:

Dr. Ernest H. Cherrington, chairman, prohibition board of strategy—Inclusion of the resubmission clause was a disappointment. Except for that the plank was satisfactory. The board of strategy will withhold judgment until after the Democratic convention.

"Drys Now on Offensive."

Charles R. Jones, vice president, American Business Men's Prohibition foundation—It's a triumph for back home Republicans against an attempted stampede of the party by the wets. The wets lost everything. The drys are now on the offensive.

Alonzo Wilson, director of the prohibition foundation — Studying the plank I found fourteen instances where the platform makers adopted the dry view in language almost identical with that suggested by the dry board of strategy.

Dr. George B. Safford, superintendent Illinois Anti-Saloon league—The resubmission plank seems a fair proposition to me. My general feeling is one of relief. There is no doubt that the eighteenth amendment and its enacting laws will be retained.

ILLINOIS G. O. P. END WHERE THEY BEGAN—NOWHERE

Fail to Have Voice in Naming Chairman.

BY PARKE BROWN.

The Illinois delegation wound up the close of the Republican national convention yesterday exactly where it started out last Monday — the night before the big meeting opened — unable to agree on the selection of a national committeeman.

FRANK L. SMITH.

As a result, the state was unrepresented when the new national committee met at the Congress hotel last night and it had no voice in the election of the national chairman and other officers of the committee. It was the only state unable to present the name of its committeeman to the convention before the adjournment.

A Hopeless Break.

But far more serious, it is said, is the fact that the situation has disclosed an apparently hopeless break in the ranks of the party in Illinois. A majority of the delegation refused persistently for four days to permit the Small forces, which won in the primary, to control this election.

It is probable, however, that victory now will come their way. With the adjournment of the convention, the right of the delegates to act in this matter was terminated. Their "commissions" expired. Now the election passes into the hands of the state central committee and it is conceded that at present there are enough votes for Frank L. Smith of Dwight to win on the first ballot.

Small Leaders Confident.

Maneuvering and dealing may shift the count, but the Small leaders asserted they had at least thirteen of the twenty-five congressional district votes on the state committee. Some of the Emmerson lieutenants conceded the truth of the assertion. They implied, however, that the situation might be changed. No date has been set for the state meeting by Chairman Franklin J. Stransky, who was elected as head of the committee following the April primary.

The analysts say that the Deneen group could not muster more than three or four votes for the present committeeman, Roy O. West of Chicago, and some of them said that Gov. Emmerson could not control more than eight or nine as matters stand now. Under these conditions it is expected that Chairman Stransky will call an early meeting before the lineup can be shifted. He is for Smith.

The Illinoisans held their final caucus in the Stevens hotel during the morning, when they took the thirty-fourth and final ballot on committeeman. On this Smith received 27 votes, Emmerson 26 and West six.

Four Drown When Horses Pull Wagon Into a Pond

Ellington, Mo., June 16.—(AP)—Four members of the John Hall family were drowned near here today when their horses, led to water, pulled a wagon into a pond and the wagon bed floated away. Mr. and Mrs. John Hall and their two children, 8 and 4 years old, were the victims.

Car Upset at Lincoln

Lincoln, Ill., June 16.—[Special.]—Mrs. L. L. Emmerson, wife of the governor, and her two daughters, Mrs. Henry Ward and Mrs. Harold Watson of Mount Vernon, en route from the republican convention at Chicago to Springfield, were injured tonight when a rear tire blew out and caused their car to turn a somersault near Broadwell. E. D. Van Diver, the chauffeur, was uninjured.

The machine turned over and landed on its wheels crossways of the paving. Mrs. Emmerson, who was riding in the front seat, was thrown into the back seat. She received an injured back and Mrs. Ward received an injury to her shoulder. Mrs. Watson was only severely bruised.

Passing motorists took Mrs. Emmerson and her daughters on to Springfield.

1,600 SOLDIERS REHEARSE FOR 11 DAY SHOW

Sixteen hundred troops encamped besides Soldiers' field in Grant park are rapidly perfecting the maneuvers they will perform for eleven successive nights at the George Washington bicentennial military tournament, June 24 to July 4. The field artillery has added a spectacular stunt to its repertoire, that of firing its 75 mm. guns while they are in full motion.

The troops rehearse daily between 9 and 12 noon, and beginning Monday will rehearse twice daily, the second time at 8:30 p. m.

REPUDIATE WET PLANK, PLEA OF DRYS TO HOOVER

Boston, Mass., June 16.—(AP)—Leaders of three New England prohibition organizations today accused President Hoover of "leading them back into bondage" and called upon him to repudiate the "wet plank of the Republican platform." Otherwise, they said, they hoped he would not be re-elected.

The organizations protesting were: the National United Committee for Law Enforcement, Clinton N. Howard, chairman; the International Reform federation, Dr. Robert Watson, chairman, and the Massachusetts Loyalty league, Dr. A. Z. Conrad, chairman. In a telegram to President Hoover, they said:

"The drys of America have followed you with the same loyalty and confidence as the children of Israel followed Moses and Joshua, but instead of leading them into the promised land, you have led them back into bondage.

". . . The plank of 1932 repudiates Abraham Lincoln. Its adoption would lead to constitutional chaos. It makes a scrap of paper of the constitution. Gov. Smith as a wet had the courage to repudiate the dry plank of the Democratic platform. We call upon you to repudiate the wet plank of the Republican platform which opens the gateway to repudiation and ruin. . . .

"This is the doctrine of nullification. . . . We hope they [the American people] will not countenance it in 1932 by your reelection."

MRS. SABIN SEES VICTORY DESPITE ACTION ON PLANK

Points to Vote Given for Repeal Cause.

BY KATHLEEN M'LAUGHLIN.

"Gone, but not forgotten," was the philosophic epitaph inscribed yesterday over the departed G. O. P. convention by the Women's Organization for National Prohibition Reform. Paradoxically enough, the atmosphere in the headquarters on the Blackstone hotel mezzanine was not gloomy. It was gay with a tinge of triumph. No damp hankies obscured the view of smoothly powdered noses as these resolute campaigners packed up their buttons, badges, and literature, counted their newest recruits, and escorted their national chief, Mrs. Charles H. Sabin, to her train.

MRS. CHARLES H. SABIN.

Nobody had worked harder for the lost cause of the repeal plank in the party platform than this former Republican national committeewoman. Nobody had greater hopes of its popular victory. No one's voice was as husky as her own in testimony of her constant verbal battle for its passage.

No one measured the influence of the plank on the feminine vote more carefully or lost with better grace. For even in defeat she claimed a victory.

"I am more than pleased with the result of the vote on Senator Bingham's minority report," she declared in the minor key her overtaxed vocal chords necessitated. "It is larger than we expected. If there had not been a large number of government office holders as delegates the minority report would have won 'hands down,' but there were some 400 delegates present whose future jobs depend on the administration patronage. We knew this situation to exist.

"The people of New York state will be interested in ascertaining who the twenty-one delegates who voted against the honest straight repeal of the eighteenth amendment were."

Mrs. Sabin will be back from New York before the Democratic convocation is called to order, she warned as she boarded the eastbound limited.

What the Illinois branch of her camp thought about the "straddle" plank could be ascertained only through the personal expressions of the co-chairmen of the group, Mrs. William H. Mitchell and Mrs. Leslie Wheeler, who stated that they could not speak for their organization officially until after the Democratic gathering.

"We feel, personally," they phrased their reaction to the developments, "that the plank in its present form is absolutely no victory for the drys, as it is only within the past few weeks that there has been even a possibility of anything but a strict enforcement plank. We agree with Mrs. Sabin that many of the delegates' votes were controlled by administration patronage."

Mrs. Courtlandt Nicoll, who captained the W. O. N. P. R. delegation before the resolutions committee, and Mrs. Archie Roosevelt, both of New York City, accompanied Mrs. Sabin on her return trip. Democratic women will take over their roles in the forthcoming convention.

G. O. P.'S PLANK ON PROHIBITION IS UNDER FIRE

Democrats See Chance to Win on Repeal.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., June 16.—[Special.]—Although a number of administration senators and representatives accepted the Republican prohibition plank somewhat reluctantly, the major theme of the chorus of comment today was one of disapproval. Advocates of repeal in the Republican party assailed the convention for "dodging the issue," while the Democrats, wets almost to a man, asserted that it was now up to the Democratic party to adopt a plank pledging repeal of the eighteenth amendment.

Senator William E. Borah [Rep., Idaho], leader of the extreme drys, had nothing to say regarding his attitude toward the plank or toward the candidates. Friends of the senator asserted that he had characterized the plank as "hypocritical" in his private conversations. Among those who approved the plank were Senator George H. Moses [Rep., N. H.], author of a plank similar to the one adopted, and Senator James Watson [Ind.], Republican majority leader of the senate. Hardly a dry senator or representative had a good word for it.

"Disappointing," Glenn Asserts.

Senator Otis F. Glenn [Rep., Ill.] today assailed the plank as "disappointing to those who want a clear cut issue."

"Representing the third largest state in the Union whose attitude was expressed in a state convention," said Senator Glenn, "I would rather have had a straight out repeal plank."

Senator Millard E. Tydings [Dem., Md.] led the attack on the Republican plank in a caustic speech from the senate floor in which he asserted it was so filled with "bunk, vague promises, hypocrisy, sham, pretense, and so lacking in honesty, candor, decency, and statesmanship that it could only be described adequately as a monstrosity."

Plank of "Splinters."

As a leading senate wet, the senator from Maryland asserted that the plank was not a plank, "but a conglomerate gathering of splinters, made up of every kind of wood in the whole wood category, including even a few splinters from the sidewalks of New York."

And, as a Democratic partisan, he shouted:

"I do not want anybody to appeal to me henceforth to follow the leader in the White House, because if that is the kind of orders for battle that we get in this great emergency we had better get a new general at the head of the army. And, if the Democratic party adopts this philosophy, God save the republic."

He renewed the question he has so often tossed at the silent senators on the Republican side.

"I still ask where the President stands on the question of prohibition," Senator Tydings taunted, and again received no reply.

Among Democratic leaders who asserted that the Republican "straddle" on prohibition had presented the Democrats with a great opportunity to win the presidency by coming out for direct repeal were Majority Leader Henry Rainey [Ill.] of the house Democratic wets; Representative J. Charles Linthicum [Md.], leader of the house wets; Senator William H. King [Utah], and Senator Harry B. Hawes [Mo.].

"I think the course for our party is clearly marked," Mr. Rainey asserted. "We should accept the Bingham repeal plan as written, with a declaration against the return of the open saloon."

"The people will not be satisfied with a straddle," agreed Mr. Linthicum. "There was a period when the people would have been satisfied with a resubmission plank such as adopted by the Republican convention. We have passed that stage now and the people will demand absolute repeal."

Jouett Shouse, chairman of the Democratic national executive committee, assailed the Republican plank as a "straddle" foisted on the party.

Senator Hiram Johnson [radical Rep., Cal.]: "The prohibition plank is a snare and a delusion."

Senator Morris Sheppard [Dem., Tex.]: "I am trying to find out what it means, studying it to ascertain its effect."

Other comment was as follows:

Senator Joseph T. Robinson [Dem., Ark.]:

"The rallying cry of the delegates seems to be 'Give us liquor, but also give us dry votes.' The Republican platform plank on prohibition is a marvel of prolixity. More than 500 words are employed in the declaration favoring a proposal that the repeal of the eighteenth amendment be submitted in the manner provided in the constitution, and that, if a repeal results, efforts will be made to prevent the states from authorizing saloons.

"The plank includes contradictory implications of viewpoint, designed to attract the support of both the wets and the drys. It is a jumble of ambiguity and inconsistencies."

Representative Earl C. Michener [Rep., Mich.], acting minority leader during the absence of Representative Bertrand H. Snell [Rep., N. Y.]:

"It is a comprehensive declaration of principles which should have been set forth in many less words."

Representative John J. O'Connor [Dem., N. Y.]:

Dolly Gann Gives Girl Reporters Cold, Cold Shoulder After Brother Wins

BY GENEVIEVF FORBES HERRICK.

Dolly Curtis [Sister-in-a-Million] Gann, so plucky and pleasant during the doubtful hours of her fight for Brother Charlie's renomination, changed yesterday into a nerve nettled person the moment Vice President Curtis won.

The Kansas campaigner became the Washington second lady.

All the stored up animus that she must have had against her brother's political foes was redirected at the newspaper women who asked for a brief moment of her time. For the first time during this convention she was impatient, evasive, angry.

Those New York Votes, Perhaps.

Perhaps her tired nerves had snapped. She looked fearfully warm. Perhaps she saw that they saw that none of the prominent officials or their wives were coming up to her box to shake her hand. Perhaps she was still recovering from the chill that had quivered through her body when New York had cast those 95 votes against Curtis. Whatever the reason, she turned a campaign smile on the cameramen and a cold shoulder on the news recorders.

"Can't you see I'm busy autographing this card?" she snapped in answer to their plea for an interview. A voice suggested that a line in the papers of the country might be just as valuable politically as a line scribbled on the card of an obscure bystander.

"Get away!" shouted Edward Everett Gann, her husband, and he waved his hat as if he were wafting away a pestilence. Then he grumbled that he'd been called "Mr. Dolly Gann." And we understood his ill temper.

But by this time the happy little interview was developing into something of an incident.

"Get Away!" Says Husband.

"Get away!" repeated Mr. Gann, with another wave of his hat. "Newspapers? What do we care? You can read about it in the other newspapers."

"There aren't any 'other newspapers,'" chorused the crowd, representing press associations and metropolitan dailies. And their representatives turned to walk out on the show.

Perspiring, Mrs. Gann swung around, stepped forward, as if to detain the departing group.

"Just tell them I'm so happy and thank everybody for being so kind," she called out.

"Are you going to telephone your brother?" she was asked, and she replied crisply, "He knows all about it already."

"And what do you think about the platform?"

First she said, "I haven't a thing to say about the platform"; then she added, "The platform's all right," and turned back to her autographing.

It was all very trying for everybody. Nor did it improve the situation any to have a strolling celebrity hunter edge into the crowd just then and inquire, "Where's Alice Longworth sitting?"

Alice Longworth Far Away.

Mrs. Longworth was sitting far across the hall, with Mrs. Ogden Mills, wife of the secretary of the treasury. They both remained far across the hall. Mrs. Hurley, wife of Pat Hurley, secretary of war, and Mrs. Walter F. Brown, wife of the postmaster general, were sitting very near. But they didn't come over.

In fact, the only prominent person that any of us had ever seen before who joined the pilgrimage of victory to Dolly Gann's box was Mabel Willebrandt. She had been scheduled to second Mr. Curtis' nomination, but last moment strategy reckoned that California had been sufficiently in the limelight, and so an Arizona woman, Mrs. Wilma Hoyal, a childhood friend of Mr. Curtis, took Mrs. Willebrandt's place.

But Mrs. Willebrandt rushed over, shouting congratulations; then she huddled the Ganns into her arms and whispered something earnestly into their ears.

The Ganns, accompanied by the Vice President's son Harry and his wife, came early to their box. They gave respectful attention to the nomination of Mr. Hoover; waited for the secondary show that was to them the whole show.

The moment the roll call starts, Harry Curtis gets out his pad and pencil and begins to figure.

"Alabama, 16 for Curtis," Dolly Gann smiles.

"Arizona, 9 for Curtis." The smile deepens.

Silas Strawn, Chicago lawyer, walks up, holds out his hand, says, "It's all over; I congratulate you. You've won."

Mrs. Gann clasps his hand, then releases it with a flop as the teller bellows, "Connecticut, 17 votes for Harbord."

Now he's calling, "Indiana, 31 votes for Curtis." Harry Curtis is talking to himself, adding up the numbers. Ed Gann is high-signing a friend in the crowd. But Mrs. Gann sits rigidly forward, anxiety written all over her face.

"Not nervous, are you?" It's H. P. Wilson of Washington, D. C., who has come by.

New York Vote a Shock.

"Should say not," says Gann. Mrs. Gann's fingers beat a quick little tattoo on the rail of the box.

"New York, 95 votes for Harbord."

There's a little gasp of surprise from Mrs. Gann; her fingers come to a tight standstill on the wood.

A little later Harry Curtis looks up from his sums and says, "He's got 570."

Just at that moment Pennsylvania announces a change in the vote, the entire delegation goes for Curtis.

"He's in," shouts that most loyal of brothers-in-law, Mr. Gann.

"And on the first ballot." Dolly Gann's voice is almost a whisper.

"And on the first ballot." That's the refrain she says to each well wisher who passes the box.

"Nervous about the outcome? Not at all," she frequently adds. "And it was on the first ballot."

Mrs. Gann will leave this morning for Washington, where she will be the nation's second lady until June 24. Then she will go to Newport as a Kansas campaigner to deliver a speech for the "grand old party" who put her brother back on its ticket.

Lone Bandit Robs Bank in Winnipeg; Gets $5,000

WINNIPEG, Man., June 16.—(AP)—A bandit entered the Corydon and Osborne branch of the Royal Bank of Canada here today, bound the staff of four and made off with $5,000. The robbery was not discovered until an hour later when a passerby noted the bank was open after hours.

CITY EMPLOYE TELLS OF LIGHTS AT FRAUD TRIAL

H. D. Manship, an investigator for the city, yesterday took the witness stand in the Criminal court of Judge John Prystalski and testified against four former city employés and Harry A. Johnson, president of the Electrical Contracting company, charged with conspiracy to defraud the city of $200,000 in an electrical contract.

Manship said that he investigated the street lighting extension contract in question and found the work improperly done. Cables were poorly sleeved, transformers improperly jointed, and light post manholes were full of water, he said.

On trial with Johnson are former employés of the department of gas and electricity. They are Eugene A. Quinn, city inspector; Frank Wargoske, stockkeeper; John Muerling, engineer, and Joseph Duffy, a custodian.

HITLER'S "STORM TROOPS" PARADE AS BAN IS LIFTED

400,000 German Nazis Don New Uniforms.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, June 16.—The decree of Chancellor Franz von Papen, restoring Adolf Hitler's "storm troops" and the right of Germans to wear the uniforms of political parties and organizations, was issued and published today simultaneously with an energetic warning from President Paul von Hindenburg.

He said that he expected "national political struggles will be carried out in milder form than heretofore and that all violences will be avoided under the provisions of the new decree."

"If this expectation is not fulfilled I am determined to proceed against the offenders with the utmost powers granted me by the constitution," the president added.

Nazis Parade in New Uniforms.

The Hitlerites in their brand new uniforms and high riding boots paraded the streets of Germany tonight, though the suppression of uniforms will not be lifted officially until tomorrow.

It is estimated that 400,000 new uniforms for the Nazis cost close to $4,000,000. Hitlerites point out that the new uniforms "provided jobs for the jobless."

Only in Baden are the Nazi uniforms forbidden. Premier Schmitt of Baden announced that his government could not be held responsible for maintaining order with the Nazis free to carry on their demonstrations. His protest was acted upon by the ministry of interior, which announced that "in view of conditions in Baden the wearing of uniforms by political groups would continue under the ban there."

In Munich the Bavarian government announced that the wearing of uniforms would be permitted but that the ban on open air political demonstrations would continue. In Prussia open air political meetings are also forbidden.

Lift Ban on Others.

Other political organizations were freed from restrictive regulations by the decree. These included the reichsbanner Republicans and the Nationalist "steel helmet" war veterans. The communists' unit, the "red front," may not, however, wear uniforms.

Hitler, through his organ, the Voelkischer Beobachter, in Munch, hailed the decree as "the forerunner of the coming seizure of power by the National Socialists." All of the political "armies" are planning huge parades on Sunday.

VOLSTEAD DOES NOT LIKE G. O. P. LIQUOR PLANK

St. Paul, Minn., June 16.—(AP)—Andrew J. Volstead, co-author of the federal prohibition enforcement law, today expressed dissatisfaction with the prohibition plank adopted by the Republican national convention.

A Republican himself, he consistently has declared in favor of anti-liquor laws as they now stand and has opposed all suggestions of change.

Volstead, former congressman and now legal advisor to the northwest prohibition administrator here, said that putting the platform provisions into effect "probably would mean a Swedish or Canadian system of handling liquor here."

The convention controversy, he continued, "shows at least one thing clearly—that the wets want the return of the saloon. They are sailing under false colors and have been right along. Their dissatisfaction with the plank shows they will be satisfied only with return of the saloon."

GOV. ROOSEVELT HINTS HE HAS ECONOMIC PLAN

New York, June 16.—[Special.]—Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt, candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination, declared today that the nation's pressing need is progressive leadership "which would recognize two parts of the problem before the country—means of alleviating present distress and a comprehensive plan covering all phases of our economic and social difficulties."

The governor declared the farm board must be taken out of speculation in wheat and cotton and should try to "set up machinery to save the mortgaged farm by cutting down amortization and lowering interest rates."

The reference of the governor to a broad plan gave rise to the belief that he actually has prepared such a plan, to be outlined to the delegates at Chicago if he is nominated to the presidency.

MARSHALL FIELD & COMPANY

ALLIES PROPOSE TO CALL PRIVATE DEBT HOLIDAY

Seek to Lure U. S. Into Lausanne Conference.

BY JAY ALLEN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LAUSANNE, Switzerland, June 16.—The Lausanne conference on war debts and reparations opened here today on the shores of conference ridden Lake Geneva.

RAMSAY MACDONALD.

It opened on a double note—something close to despair on the international situation and, at the same time, promising, as far as the success of the widespread European ambition is concerned, to wipe the slate clean of debits between themselves.

Prime Minister MacDonald of Great Britain was elected chairman and talked somberly of the "world catastrophe." He adopted something like a Messianic tone in calling for an immediate agreement in order to storm the "fortress of despair," in which lodge the movements "not of divine but of satanic discontent, which pass hither and thither on the face of the earth in times of unsettlement and hardship such as these."

Want Something Done.

The mood of this conference is clearly to get something done right away lest the world lose its last shred of faith in conferences as an institution, and to prepare the way for a united front on debts against the United States. The first step was the Franco-British formula, which will be discussed tomorrow and aims to declare an exclusively European moratorium on intergovernmental debts pending an agreement here. All reparations and debts payments falling due on July 1 between the Germans and the former allies of war and between the allies themselves are to be deferred, according to terms of the formula which the British and French tonight are presenting to others for approval.

Its importance seems to be its psychological possibilities. It also forecasts a definitive solution in one most important respect. In it the French abandon their insistence, which was observed during the Hoover moratorium, that the principle of Germany's "unconditional" payments be maintained. This was accomplished during the last year by a scheme of having them paid to the Bank for International Settlement and then having them reloaned to Germany.

The formula of the new moratorium includes these payments, too. The financial experts at Basel have agreed that Germany cannot pay. But the French, in granting this, apparently intend it to soothe German public opinion on the eve of critical elections. Moreover, it is contended, the conference would be able to do some work without the menace of immediate payments hanging over the participants. It clears the air on debts for discussions.

Lure America, Is Plan.

Some Frenchmen tonight are predicting the creation of two commissions, one on reparations and the other on world economic problems, with the hope that the latter commission would be expanded into an international conference in which the United States already has expressed its interest. The hardiest sponsors of the idea already see official Washington attending such a conference at Lausanne.

Washington is not represented here by even an observer. Lest anybody had forgotten the United States, both Giuseppe Motta, opening the conference as president of Switzerland, and MacDonald spoke for her.

"That great country across the sea which did not find itself able to come here could not long remain out of Europe's negotiations," said Motta, referring to the possible extension in the scope of the conference to include the world economic situation.

"In these times there is no France, no Italy, no Germany, no America, no Britain apart from the rest of the world," said MacDonald. "There is nothing smaller than a world, nothing less than a system which is crumbling around our feet. None of us can stay out of the work of restoration and reconstruction because none of us can stay out of the miseries which are gathering about us."

"World Is Looking On."

"We cannot act alone. The United States has encouraged us to believe it will coöperate in some of the wider problems and will join us in devising a policy for the encouragement of trade in the enrichment of nations. The whole world looks to us as it never has looked to an international conference before."

BOY EXPLORER, AGE 13, STARTS TODAY ON TRIP TO THE FIJI ISLANDS

Hartley De Gerald, 13 year old explorer, is going off on another jaunt today. The year before last it was the West Indies, and last year the arctic circle. Now it is a 17,000 mile trip to the Fiji islands in the southern Pacific, and as usual, he is making the trip all alone.

HARTLEY DE GERALD.

Among Hartley's Christmas presents last December, was a book on the Fiji islands and that was when, he confided yesterday, he decided he simply had to go there this summer. Armed with only a movie camera Hartley expects to visit several of the islands.

KILL BONUS BILL, SENATE ADVISED BY COMMITTEE

Measure Will Be Brought Up on Floor Today.

Washington, D. C., June 16.—[Special.]—The veterans' bonus bill which passed the house yesterday is scheduled to be taken up in the senate tomorrow.

By a vote of 14 to 2 the measure was reported out today by the senate finance committee with a recommendation that it not be passed. Opponents of the bill claim a majority sufficient to insure the bill's defeat.

Counting on this majority, Senator Reed Smoot [Rep., Utah], finance committee chairman, sought an agreement for the bill's immediate consideration. He met objection from Senator Elmer D. Thomas [Dem., Okla.], chief of the bonus proponents.

Pay Bonus at Present Value.

In a statement later in the day Senators Walsh [Dem., Mass.], Coolidge [Dem., Mass.], Wagner [Dem., N. Y.], and Copeland [Dem., N. Y.] explained that they would favor payment of bonus certificates at their present value, but that they would oppose the pending bill's provision for payment in full, particularly at a time when the raising of the necessary two billion dollars would produce "financial chaos."

The relief of the veterans, they believed, would be "offset a hundred times by the increase in hunger and suffering throughout the land."

Vote in Committee.

The vote in the finance committee came on the motion of Senator David A. Reed [Rep., Pa.] to report the bill unfavorably. Those who voted for an unfavorable recommendation were Senators Smoot, Watson, Reed, Shortridge, Couzens, Keyes, Thomas [Idaho], and Metcalf, Republicans, and Harrison, King, George Walsh [Mass.], Connally, and Gore, Democrats.

Against the motion—Senators La Follette and Jones, Republicans.

The boy had gone to the beach with friends, Mr. and Mrs. Michael Malone, 605 Groveland park, and two neighbor children, Mary and William Foster.

640 AMERICAN TROOPS TO HELP RAISE BRITISH FLAG ON CANADIAN SOIL

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont., June 16.—(AP)—Permission was received from the dominion government today for the entry of 640 United States troops on July 24 to participate in a flag raising ceremony here.

Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt of New York has been asked to endeavor to find a British flag taken from the Sault during the war of 1812, now believed to repose in an Albany, N. Y., museum.

If the flag is found it will be used in the ceremony; otherwise a British flag will be presented by the city of Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., for the occasion. Gov. Wilbur Bruckner of Michigan has been invited to officiate.

RED CANDIDATE'S CAMPAIGN CHIEF HELD AS SLAYER

New York, June 16.—[Special.]—William Z. Foster, communist candidate for President, lost his campaign manager today.

Detectives of the radical squad arrested one "John Gray," a man with black hair, who came here from Kansas City, Mo., six days ago and who was intrusted with carrying on Foster's campaign for the presidency.

Assistant Chief Inspector John J. Sullivan studied the face of the campaign manager in the lineup at police headquarters.

"You are Kelly Yale Hendricks," declared the inspector.

There was some hesitancy, and then an admission.

Hendricks is wanted in Gastonia, N. C., where he was convicted of the murder of Chief of Police Aderholt and sentenced to serve seven years in prison. Bail of $2,000 was furnished by the American Civil Liberties union pending an appeal. When the conviction was sustained Hendricks disappeared.

Hendricks' hair was formerly red. Inspector Sullivan declared it was a neat dyeing job.

Foster's campaign manager will be returned to North Carolina.

ARMY REVOLTS IN CHILE; FIGHTING RAGES IN CAPITAL

Socialist Junta Reported Overthrown.

BY HAROLD TATAM.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina, June 16.—A counter-revolution broke out in Chile today and tonight members of the socialist junta, which wrested the power from President Juan Esteban Montero on June 4, surrendered to the army in a military coup, according to reports received here.

A message from Santiago, capital of Chile, said that Gen. Cruz, in command of an infantry regiment, invaded the government house in an attempt to capture Col. Marmaduke Grove, minister of defense and "strong man" of the junta. Later, the dispatch said, members of the revolutionary junta fortified themselves in the government house. Armed counter-revolutionists took up a watch in the nearby war ministry building and the streets were a seething mass of people. It was reported that the junta gave up when Gen. Cruz threatened to bomb the government house.

When Grove learned that the carabineers no longer were disposed to support him he surrendered after a theatrical display of personal resistance. A new junta, headed by Admiral Jouanne, told Grove and other members of the defeated junta that they will be conducted to the Argentine frontier immediately as "undesirables."

It is widely believed that Carlos Davila, former Chilean ambassador to the United States, and one of the leaders of the bloodless rebellion of June 4, was one of the ringleaders of today's movement. He resigned from the junta several days ago because his policy of moderation displeased the ultra-radical Col. Grove.

Fight in Capital.

SANTIAGO, Chile, June 16.—(AP)—Fighting broke out around the government palace tonight as army supporters of Juan Esteban Montero, deposed president, sought to oust the new Socialist junta because of tendencies considered communistic.

While rebellious troops marched toward the city to assault the palace, army officers invaded the palace in a search for Col. Marmaduke Grove, minister of defense and leading member of the junta.

Col. Grove eluded them by hiding in an obscure room, from which he ordered loyal troop reinforcements. The rattle of machine guns and the noise of the mobs, hundreds of them communists, created a great din.

Officers Join Assault.

Airplanes of the attacking forces flew over the city in a sky illuminated by bursting star shells and rocket flares, while troops entered Santiago from the north to attack the palace. Firing was heard in the distance.

Officers of the Santiago garrisons said they were joining in the assault because the junta was "going to the communists."

From his hiding place Col. Grove summoned carabineers and cavalry. Forces loyal to him mounted machine guns on the palace, the governor's building nearby and surrounding structures.

CALL BOY'S DEATH ACCIDENT.

SEIZE 2 GUNMEN WHO AIDED IN JAIL DELIVERY

Named by Bank Bandit Left in Cell.

Abe Rotskoff, 25 years old, and several other Chicagoans collaborated on May 16 in the robbery of the Union National bank of Streator, Ill., obtaining $50,000.

Now Rotskoff no longer collaborates. He and his ex-pals are going on the theory that one bad turn deserves another. On Thursday a gang of five went to the Ottawa jail, raided it, and released three men who were identified in the robbery. They left Rotskoff. He retaliated yesterday by telling the authorities the names of two of the men who broke into the jail.

Two Seized in Chicago.

These men were arrested in Chicago by Chief Investigator Pat Roche. They are Jack Sherman, alias Dempsey, and Jack Meyers, also known as Meyerowitz, 432 North Central Park avenue.

Sherman, according to the information furnished Roche, was the driver of the automobile in which the jail raiders rode to Ottawa, and Meyers is owner of the car. The latter was one of those who entered the jail, pistol in hand, and freed Ike Katzowitz, Chuck Tilden, and Jacob Pearson, who were indicted with Rotskoff, two Streator policemen, and several other residents of Streator for the bank stickup.

Saw Gunmen Enter Jail.

"I was up in my cell on the third floor," said Rotskoff, "when I saw the gang get out of Meyers' car. I thought they were coming to take me for a ride because I had confessed the robbery."

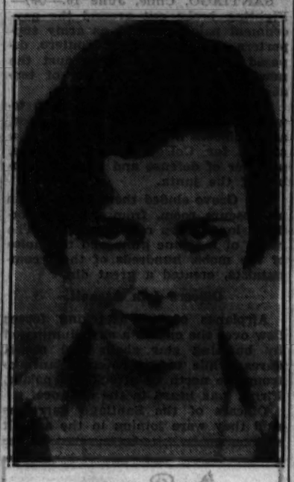
The jail delivery was made while only one guard, George Mosley, was on duty. The five from Chicago entered singly and one of them stuck up Mosley in the jail kitchen and relieved him of his pistol. They then let out the three friends they had come for, cursed Rotskoff roundly and left.

Sherman was sent last night to Ottawa. Meyers was held by Roche in the hope that under questioning he would disclose the names of the three men with him and Sherman in the raid.

STEALS $5,000 RUBBER BOOTS.

Thieves yesterday broke into a boxcar in the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy railroad yards, 19th street and Western avenue, and stole rubber boots and shoes valued at $5,000.

BECOMES MOTHER



MARY ASTOR.

HONOLULU, June 16.—(AP)—A daughter was born last night to Mary Astor, motion picture star, who in private life is Mrs. Franklyn Thorpe. The baby weighed 4 pounds 11 ounces. Both child and mother were reported doing well today.

SANITARY PAY CHECKS SENT TO 1,000 WORKERS

Pay checks for one month and a half will be mailed out today to 1,000 employés of the sanitary district, it was announced yesterday afternoon by Trustee Ross A. Woodhull, chairman of the finance committee, at a meeting of the drain board. The pay roll will amount to $400,720 and will cover the last half of February and all of March.

The money was obtained through the sale of $500,000 worth of tax anticipation warrants to local banks. Mr. Woodhull said, however, that the board would probably not have enough money to meet its obligations of $2,479,722.50 in bond redemption and interest due July 1. The sanitary district has defaulted regularly on bond and interest payments for the last six months, and if it fails to pay by July it will have defaulted on a total of $7,637,477.50 on obligations of this nature.

Thomas J. Bowler, president of the board, said that negotiations were being carried on to reduce the pay of union employés of the sanitary district by another 5 per cent.

AGED MAN FALLS FROM BOAT, DROWNS.

South Bend, Ind., June 16.—[Special.]—The body of John Mellinger, 75, who fell from a boat while trying to land a fish, was recovered today.

INDIANA EDITOR GETS JAIL TERM FOR CONTEMPT

Wabash, Ind., June 16.—[Special.]—Don M. Nixon, publisher of the Wabash Plain Dealer, was found guilty today of indirect contempt of court. He was fined $100 and sentenced to ten days in the Wabash county jail by Judge W. H. Eichorn for criticising editorially the appointment by Judge Frank O. Switzer of Quinten Carver as receiver for the Wabash County Loan and Trust company. Nixon described Carver as "a village garage keeper wholly incompetent to handle the affairs of a million dollar bank."

More than 900 persons were present and broke into cheers as Nixon entered. Many of them were farmers and depositors in the bank. Efforts of the prosecutor to force Nixon to begin serving his sentence at once were ignored by Judge Eichorn, who announced judgment on the decision would not be entered until Saturday. At that time an appeal will be taken. A motion for release on bail pending appeal will also be made.

In its finding the court held that, while the criticism was not made until months after the appointment of Carver, the receivership is still pending and therefore the criticism cannot be termed that of a "past act of the court," but that of a pending case. The defense had contended it was criticism of a past act, but the court held the contention insufficient to purge the publisher of contempt.

In attacking the appointment of Carver the Plain Dealer had charged the purpose of his appointment was to "have an honest but inexperienced man on whom anything could be put over." For weeks before and after the citation Nixon had focused attention editorially on what he termed a dummy receivership and demanded that Carver be removed, asserting he was not able even to figure interest on a note, which was adverse to the depositors' interests.

Insane Man Shoots Two in Pullman Car and Flees

San Marcos, Tex., June 16.—(AP)—Maj. T. B. Curtis of the veterans' bureau at San Antonio, and A. W. Turner, San Antonio war veteran, were shot, probably fatally, when a patient seized a gun and started firing in a crowded Pullman car here today. Curtis, shot three times, and Turner, shot twice, were taken to the San Marcos hospital. William F. McWilliams, who was being transferred from the mental ward at the base hospital at Fort Sam Houston to the new veterans' hospital at Waco, Tex., jumped from the train and fled after the shooting. Officers and possemen took up the trail.

GIVEN LIFE FOR KIDNAPING OF MRS. DONNELLY

Kansas City, Mo., June 16.—[Special.]—The long trail that led to South Africa and back ended for Martin Depew today when he pleaded guilty to the kidnaping of Mrs. Nell Donnelly and was sentenced to life imprisonment in the penitentiary at Jefferson City by Judge Ben Terte.

An hour earlier William Lacey Browning, Holliday, Kas., farmer, had entered a similar plea, but on the recommendation of James R. Page, county prosecutor, for leniency, because of having been a minor factor in the kidnaping, had been sentenced to 25 years in the penitentiary by Judge Terte.

Depew appeared eager for sentence, in fact, when the court asked if he had anything to say, he replied he was ready for sentence and desired only to get where he was going.

Depew appeared before Judge Terte with Page, his nemesis, and R. K. Cole and Thomas Higgins, detectives, who have worked with Page in the case from the beginning.

As in the case of Browning, a plea was entered only in the kidnaping of Mrs. Donnelly. Nothing was said about the kidnaping of her Negro chauffeur. Apparently that charge still is pending against them.

Depew was taken to the prosecuter's office early today after spending the night at police headquarters, where he went over, with the county prosecutor and detectives, the story of the kidnaping.

A strange development in the questioning of Depew was the disclosure that in all the months he was wandering as a fugitive he had been double-crossed by his confederates.

THIRD ALARM

. . speed and power

There's a thrill in watching them going into action . . . A streak of red, a roar of power and they're on their way . . . You, too, can have third alarm speed, and fire engine power under the hood of your own car with every tankful of Texaco Fire-Chief Gasoline!

The U. S. Government Specifies for its Emergency Use

"...a grade of motor fuel which is suitable for ambulances, fire-engines, emergency vehicles,—"

(Excerpt from Federal Pamphlet, VV-M-271, July 21, 1931)

The United States Government specified this type of motor fuel for use in its own fire engines and other emergency vehicles. Naturally, being an "emergency" fuel, Texaco Fire-Chief gives extra power—faster work on the throttle.

It more than meets highest government specifications for distillation range and vapor pressure. It's anti-knock with an Octane Rating that is outstanding. Yet Texaco Fire-Chief costs no more than the regular non-premium priced gasolines.

Drive up to the familiar red Texaco pump today for Texaco Fire-Chief Gasoline or the silver Texaco pump for Fire-Chief Ethyl.

"Liquid lightning" is about the only way to describe these super-powered motor fuels. Both are available everywhere in all our 48 States.

Smart DRESSING TABLE and TRAVEL BOTTLE

(the new Listerine "Fillable")

and large size bottle of Listerine

98¢ FOR BOTH ($1.50 VALUE)

For your dressing table . . . for your bathroom . . . or to fit in your grip when you travel, this smart, beautiful, up-to-the-minute "Fillable" bottle for carrying Listerine when the original bottle isn't convenient.

You can get the "Fillable" and a large bottle of Listerine—for 98 cents. A bargain if there ever was one. The offer is for a limited time only.

At your druggist's

You probably realize that halitosis (unpleasant breath) is the unforgivable social fault, and take precautions against it.

But are you taking the right precaution? Are you sure the mouth wash you use can cure halitosis? How do you know that it possesses any deodorant effect whatever? What evidence have you that you are not throwing your money away on questionable mouth washes with little or no deodorant power? There are hundreds on the market.

For your own sake

When you want to be sure that your breath is sweet, wholesome, and agreeable, use Listerine—and Listerine only. It is the quickest of deodorants, the swiftest of antiseptics.

Its deodorant effect is a matter of scientific record with physicians, surgeons, and nurses. Because of its remarkable deodorant properties, Listerine has been specified in the treatment of suppurating wounds for the past 50 years.

Sweetens breath instantly

Clinical tests now show that Listerine, used as a mouth wash, instantly overcomes odors that ordinary antiseptics cannot hide in 12 hours.

A second series of tests against the onion odor revealed even more startling superiority. While Listerine overcame the odor almost immediately, the other mouth wash advertised as being effective in dilutions of three to one, could not hide the onion odor in 24 hours.

When you buy a mouth wash, in the hope of keeping your mouth clean and fresh, and your breath sweet and agreeable, don't gamble with solutions without reputation or record of performance.

Ask for Listerine . . . the antiseptic mouth wash you can depend upon. Lambert Pharmacal Co., St. Louis, Mo.

TILTON AND TWO AIDS CONVICTED IN CANCER TRIAL

"Old Doc" and Salve Sale Promoter Face Prison.

"Old Doc" Lester Tilton, self-styled cancer healer, was found guilty of conspiracy to violate the medical practice act yesterday by a jury in the Criminal court of Judge Rudolph F. Desort. He faces a penitentiary sentence of one to five years and must pay a fine of $2,000, under the form of verdict returned.

"OLD DOC" TILTON.

Guilty verdicts also were voted against two co-defendants who aided in peddling the so-called cancer cure, Harry de Joannis, a promoter, and Dr. Joseph Duffy, 56 years old, a licensed physician.

Lighter Penalty for Doctor.

The same punishment given Tilton was recommended by the jury for De Joannis. Dr. Duffy was shown leniency by the jury because of his youth and inexperience and faces a term of one day to one year in the county jail.

But one ballot was necessary for the jury to reach a decision on Tilton, who was termed a "master quack" in the closing statement of the prosecution. As the foreman read the verdict Defense Attorney Irwin N. Walker leaped to his feet and termed the decision a miscarriage of justice.

"I do not think the stain of a guilty verdict should be allowed to rest against these men for five minutes," he said. "There has been no proof of conspiracy and I ask that your honor grant a new trial immediately." Prosecuter C. A. Bellows countered with a demand for immediate sentence.

Granted Liberty on Bond.

When Judge Desort refused the request for an immediate ruling Defense Attorney Walker asked that the hearing be set for September. Despite objections of the state, Judge Desort ordered attorneys to argue the motion on Sept. 12. All three defendants gave cash bond and were released.

Hearing of the testimony in the case required five weeks.

The "old doc" himself said he had discovered the cancer cure in the peat bogs on his farm. A sufferer from cancer, he applied it to his face and was cured, he said. Tilton then started to sell his secret salve and cured 3,200 cancers in 25 years, he said.

Physicians told of observing cases in his Felician convent clinic, 3800 Peterson road. Tilton's patients became worse or died, and none was cured, the physicians testified.

ADMIT RECORDS OF BAIN BANKS INTO EVIDENCE

Records of all the twelve closed Bain banks were admitted into evidence yesterday in the trial of South Park Commissioner John Bain, his two sons, John H. and Robert A., and his son-in-law, W. Merle Fisher, who are accused of conspiracy to defraud depositors of $13,000,000.

This action was taken by Special Prosecutor Edwin J. Raber to lay the groundwork of witnesses who will testify regarding hundreds of transactions which Raber said he will prove to be irregular and criminal. In all, 689 exhibits were introduced. Today Receiver Irwin T. Gilruth will be called to the stand in the court of Judge John M. O'Connor, who is presiding at the trial without a jury, and he will tell of the condition of the twelve banks when he took charge after the state auditor closed them.

SPEAKS ON TAX RELIEF.

Graham Aldis will speak on "Tax Relief for Real Estate" at a meeting of the Single Tax league tonight at the Washington cafeteria, 167 West Washington street.

ASKS DIVORCE

WINNIE LIGHTNER.

New York, June 16.—(AP)—Suit for divorce filed by Winnie Lightner, musical comedy and motion picture actress, against her broker husband, George Holtrey, was revealed today when Holtrey filed a motion asking jury trial. Miss Lightner alleged eight instances of misconduct. They were married Feb. 8, 1924, in Chicago, and have a son, Richard.

WILLS ESTATE AND HIS BODY; KILLS HIMSELF

Basil F. Corty, 38 years old, 1094 Pratt boulevard, manager of exports for the Meyercord company, prepared his will, wrote a short letter to the coroner and pinned a notice on the door of his apartment yesterday morning. Then, clad in pajamas, he lay on a couch and fired a bullet from a "fountain pen" gun through his heart.

The notice on his door read: "I have committed suicide." It was read by a porter who summoned police. They found the gun still in his hand. The will and the letter lay upon a small table nearby.

The note read: "My last will and testament: I leave all that I own to my daughter, Maria Angelina, living in San Pedro, Honduras, in care of Mrs. Lupe S. Vueda de Hartling." The letter read: "To the coroner: Dear sir, I am comitting suicide. My reasons are my own. Born May 31, 1894, Kingston Jamaica. Status, British. My daughter is 12 years old and is also a British subject. My body is to be turned over to any hospital or school you may select. My relatives are not to be consulted in this at all. Notify Mr. Knopf, sales manager of the Meyercord company, and Mr. Fred Seaberg. My mother-in-law is Mrs. Lupe S. Vueda de Hartling, San Pedro, Honduras."

Corty visited at the home of Seaberg, 1093 Pratt boulevard, Wednesday evening. He told his friends that he had been divorced eight years ago and mentioned that all his insurance policies were paid up.

SALE OF NOTES FOR POOR RELIEF IS NOW $5,068,200

The Illinois Emergency Relief commission announced yesterday that last minute sales have brought the sale of state revenue notes to $5,068,200, and that five loop banks which have been assisting in the sale have mailed a bid to the state treasurer for the remainder of the $6,250,000 of notes that must be sold to keep relief stations open until Aug. 1. The banks will continue their efforts to sell the remaining $1,131,800 of notes.

The relief commission of the Chicago Dental society announced that free dental care for the unemployed has been discontinued because funds are no longer available to pay for needed materials.

additional tragedies among the teaching force."

With 14,000 teachers, unpaid and desperate, now in the city, she declared that they are now facing twelve black weeks in a city gaily bedecked for convention visitors.

The principal referred to was Clarence A. Lents of the Lincoln school. His death occurred on Tuesday after he had been seriously ill, apparently, only for three days. Friends and fellow teachers, however, disclosed later that he had been sick for a week previous, but had refused to call for medical aid or hospitalization because he had not been paid and had no funds to give for the necessary services.

Mr. Lents, who was 42 years old, is survived by his widow and four children. Burial was at Anna, Ill., after funeral services conducted at 2101 North Clark street by the Rev. Frederick L. Gratiot, pastor of the Episcopal Church of Our Savior, 530 Fullerton parkway.

"Martyrdom," Pastor Says.

Dr. Gratiot referred to the educator's death as "a martyrdom."

"Under the stress of salaryless living," he said, "many a person has neglected the proper care and nourishment necessary to his well being. Add to that the responsibility of providing for a family of five and the care of poor children in the schools, and one may read between the lines the tragedy that might have been averted had normal times prevailed."

The minister added that the people of Chicago should realize more fully the heroism of the teachers carrying on their work without pay and should recognize the duty to correct the injustice being done them.

A memorial service for Mr. Lents, primarily for teachers and pupils who were unable to attend the funeral, will be held in the Church of Our Saviour before school classes begin this morning.

REVEALS BRIAND LEFT A FARM AND $3,440 CASH

PARIS, June 16.—(AP)—The late Aristide Briand, French foreign minister, died comparatively poor, the newspaper L'Oeuvre said today, in a protest against insinuations by enemies of the former foreign minister that he accumulated a fortune while serving France.

Only 6,000 francs [$240] was found in his home after his death, it said, and he had about $3,200 in the bank.

The newspaper printed Briand's will in which he bequeathed his farm at Cocherel, which he purchased with the Nobel peace prize money, to Mme. Lucie Uro Jourdan. The rest of his property went to his sister and nephew.

COUNTY DROPS TWO LAWYERS PENDING INQUIRY

President Emmett Whealan of the county board revealed in the board meeting yesterday that Attorneys Edmund Mulcahy and John Bolton have been relieved of their duties in the county highway legal department. The suspension, Mr. Whealan said, was made at the request of the attorneys themselves pending the investigation by the state's attorney and the Bar association into the payment to seven Bellwood property owners of $160,000 for alleged damages resulting from the opening of Harrison street in the suburb.

The judgments were given only three days after the suits were filed. The suspended attorneys waived the county's right to appeal before the orders were entered. The damages, it was found, averaged $178 a front foot for property which was valued for tax purposes at $20 a front foot. Circuit Judge Thomas J. Lynch vacated the judgments after he learned of the circumstances.

These trucks are engineered and designed throughout to earn the greatest possible return on a minimum investment.

Examine for yourself the many new features and refinements which contribute to economy, performance and reliability. The entire line will be shown. Washington, D. C., June 16.—[Special.]—Testimony of how gigantic stock manipulations for private gain had wrecked big corporations, inferences of huge income tax evasions and blunt charges of embezzlement involving millions of dollars were present in a bewildering description of high finance today, as the senate banking and currency committee resumed its stock exchange investigation.

WILLIAM FOX. [A. P. Photo.]

William A. Gray, special committee counsel, told the committee that William Fox had wrecked the Fox Film corporation and the Fox Theater corporation by his personal manipulations of their stock and in the same breath charged the motion picture magnate with evading the payment of $3,300,000 income tax.

Involves Cyrus S. Eaton.

David Stock, committee investigator, testifying under the careful guidance of Mr. Gray, read into the record an array of figures and documents which purported to involve Cyrus S. Eaton, Cleveland financier and chairman of the board of the Continental Shares Investment company, and the brokerage firm of Otis & Co., in deals which resulted in the ruin of the Continental company.

By insinuation, Mr. Stock carefully endeavored to leave with the committee the impression that at the same time Mr. Eaton had escaped the payment of millions in income taxes by closing some of his biggest transactions at St. Johns, New Brunswick, where no income tax is imposed. One of these transactions, Mr. Stock testified, was conducted with the assistance and knowledge of the Chase National bank of New York.

Through the whole recitation, both Mr. Gray and Stock endeavored to weave a picture of the public being persuaded to invest their savings in these companies by the application of high pressure salesmanship and of how their investments vanished as a result of the alleged manipulation of the corporations by the small group of financiers at their head.

Tells of Stock Deals.

Only once was the New York Stock Exchange involved. That was when Mr. Stock testified that the exchange had sanctioned the flotation of 990,000 shares of the stock of the Continental Shares company to secure a loan at the Chase National bank which was needed to keep Otis & Co. from going to the wall. Mr. Stock said this flotation was sanctioned despite the fact that the exchange knew of the precarious condition of Otis & Co.

"I intend to show," Gray told the committee, "that Fox organized and controlled the Fox Film and Fox Theater corporations, owning 100 per cent of the stock of one and 50 per cent of the other. I will show that he used this stock in any way he saw fit for his own purposes and for the purposes of the companies.

Mr. Stock testified that Mr. Eaton controlled the Continental Shares company, held a majority of the voting stock of Otis & Co., and owned the Foreign Utilities company of Canada and a dozen affiliates, including the Industrial Shares syndicate, Ohio Industrial syndicate, Goodyear Shares, Inc., Cleveland Cliffs syndicate and the Cliffs syndicate.

The investigator told the committee that Mr. Eaton had used money the public had invested in the Continental Shares company to finance his affiliated interests. Public subscription, he said, amounted to 150 million dollars. Stock that was sold to the public for $78 a share at its peak, he said, now has a market value of 25 cents a share.

With the incorporation of the Continental company, Stock continued, there was known as "Founders shares of stock," which were to receive 25 per cent of the profits of the company. This stock was distributed among the founders for $1 a share. The return on the founders shares, he testified, was 1,600 per cent annually while common stock that was sold to the public yielded only 2 per cent.

Charges Company Was Wrecked.

Stock declared Otis & Co. underwrote $2,500,000 of the Continental stock but in June, 1930, unloaded 36,000 shares back on the Continental company at prices ranging from $76 to $62 a share, although the market price at that time was only $32.

The Continental Shares Investment company was wrecked, the investigator testified, when "a dummy board of directors" at Eaton's request purchased $57,000,000 of securities from the Foreign Utilities corporation to save Otis & Co. from ruin. This occurred in October, 1930, after the New York Stock exchange had notified Otis & Co. that it could not open the following morning unless it raised $20,000,000.

Through the deal between the Continental company and Foreign Utilities corporation, sufficient collateral was obtained to raise a loan through the Chase National bank at the fancy interest rate of 3 per cent above the prevailing rediscount rate.

Transactions immediately prior to this arrangement, Stock charged, netted Eaton and his associates profits of millions of dollars. The profits on all of the stock transactions were not discovered by the investigator but he said the profit on one block of United Light company stock netted $17,000,000. Stock charged that Eaton had distributed $1,191,781 worth of shares of Continental stock among "his dummy directors" on which the directors had paid nothing and which Eaton, he said, held in trust.

EDUCATOR PUT UNDER FIRE AT BOND HEARING

Silent on Memberships in Radical Groups.

Prof. Paul H. Douglas of the department of economics of the University of Chicago appeared yesterday before the Illinois commerce commission as president of the Utility consumers and Investors' League of Illinois to petition for a rehearing of a recent commission order authorizing the Peoples Gas Light and Coke company, Commonwealth Edison company, and Public Service Company of Northern Illinois to issue $72,000,000 in bonds.

The professor was immediately subjected to a fire of criticism from members of the commission for his alleged membership in several radical and communistic organizations. To a number of questions put to him concerning his connection with such organizations, Prof. Douglas remained mute on the advice of his attorneys.

Asked About Organizations.

Commissioner J. Paul Kuhn asked the educator if he were not a member of the Peace Association of Friends, Proportion Representation league, Sacco-Vanzetti National league, League for Industrial Democracy, American trade union delegation to Russia, Cultural Relations with Latin-America, American Society for Cultural Relations with Russia, and a number of other organizations.

When Prof. Douglas did not answer, Commissioner Kuhn persisted: "Were you not a member of the American Trade union delegation to Russia in 1927, and did you not contribute to a report referring to the American Federation of Labor which President Green repudiated?"

"You have no right to impugn the motives of this petition," protested Attorney William H. Holly, representing Prof. Douglas. "The bond issue authorized by the commission was not legal and is financially injurious to investors and customers."

Asks If He's Citizen.

"We are entitled to know who the applicant is," said Commissioner Kuhn. "The witness may refuse to answer the questions on the ground that he may incriminate himself. I would like to ask him if he is a citizen of the United States?"

Again, on the protests of his attorneys that the questions were irrelevant, Prof. Douglas did not answer.

Leave to file the petition was denied by the commission on the ground that the petitioners had no interest in the case and were desiring merely to put propaganda against the commission into the record.

VETERAN PREMIER OF MANITOBA IS AGAIN ELECTED

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

WINNIPEG, Man., June 16.—The farmer supported government headed by Prime Minister John Bracken won the Manitoba general elections today by a sweeping majority in the country districts. The Conservative opposition ran a poor second outside Winnipeg. Bracken's cabinet ministers were returned by large majorities.

The Bracken government has been in power for nine years. Its reelection is regarded as a blow to the tariff policies of the R. B. Bennett government at Ottawa. Lieut. Col. Fawcett G. Taylor, Conservative, led the opposition.

BEG YOUR PARDON!

An account in THE TRIBUNE last Monday of the heckling at a Sunday dry rally in the Third Presbyterian church quoted Arthur M. Barnhart, chairman of the meeting as informing the audience that only the wets were permitted to distribute literature in the Chicago hotels and railroad stations. Mr. Barnhart states that the railroads allowed the drys also to distribute literature and adds that in his address he contrasted their spirit of fair play with the "unfair" attitude of the hotels.

FOUR RESCUED ON 100 FOOT LADDER IN GOTHAM FIRE

New York, June 16.—[Special.]—Four persons, two men and two girls, were carried down a swaying seven story ladder today while billows of smoke hid them at times from the thousand cheering spectators in the street below after an explosion caused a fire in a button factory just off Times square.

Two hundred other workers in the building had escaped the flames, which cut off the stairway on the top floor. Two firemen were painfully injured fighting the blaze. Otherwise, the fire was not a serious one, but its location near the heart of the theatrical district, the screaming of hysterical working girls, and the clang of ambulance bells and police reserves attracted thousands of spectators.

Benjamin Flashberg, one of the men rescued from the seventh floor, was almost overcome by smoke before members of a hook and ladder company put up the 100 foot ladder and carried him down.

The fire was discovered in the workroom of the J. V. Greenberg Dress Manufacturing company on the third floor. A quantity of celluloid collars and stays exploded, and the smoke from it made the fire appear worse than it was, but it handicapped the firemen. They succeeded, however, in preventing spread of the flames.

DAWES EXPECTED TO RETURN HOME THIS WEEK-END

Gen. Charles G. Dawes, who recently resigned as president of the Government Reconstruction Finance corporation, is expected to return to Chicago from Washington tomorrow or Sunday. After a vacation of a month or two, he will resume his former position of chairman of the board of directors of the Central Republic Bank and Trust company. Gen. Dawes relinquished that office, but was elected honorary chairman when he was elected Vice President in 1924. His formal election as chairman and that of Joseph E. Otis, now chairman, as co-chairman, are expected to take place at the regular July meeting of the directors.

Boy, 8, Drowned While Taking Swim in Pond

Robert Ehlen, 8 years old, 226 45th street, Bellwood, was drowned Wednesday while swimming in a pond near Wolf road and the Illinois Central tracks in Hillside. Robert and Thomas Davidson, also 8, of Bellwood, stopped at the pool, and Robert announced he was going for a swim. Thomas walked away. When he returned he discovered his chum missing. Thomas summoned help, and Robert's body was recovered.

2 COAL DEALERS ORDERED JAILED FOR CONTEMPT

$1,000 Fines Assessed for Defying Court.

Thomas H. Cochran, president, and John H. Evans, secretary, of the Ender Coal and Coke company, 343 South Dearborn street, yesterday were sentenced to the county jail for thirty days by Superior Judge Denis E. Sullivan and each ordered to pay a $1,000 fine.

The two men were declared guilty of contempt of court in destroying records of their company after the records had been ordered into court.

"These men are intelligent business men and were guilty of deliberate contempt in destroying the records," said the judge. "Not only are they sentenced to serve thirty days but if they haven't produced the papers at the end of the sentence they'll stay in jail until they do produce them."

Inasmuch as the men admitted destroying the records, they face a prolonged imprisonment unless copies of the records are produced, it was pointed out.

The suit before Judge Sullivan out of which the contempt sentences arose was brought by Attorney J. B. Martineau of the law firm of Kirkland, Fleming, Green & Martin in behalf of the Harrisburg Coal Mining company against the Ender company.

The Harrisburg company sought an accounting of the records of the Ender company, charging that the latter firm while acting as sales agent for the Harrisburg company had been guilty of fraud.

The complainants asked for the records of the Ender company and Judge Sullivan ordered them brought into court. The defendants first delayed then took certain loose leaves out of the records and destroyed them, according to the evidence.

ELECTRIC TRAIN KILLS MAN, 74, IN FUNERAL AUTO

E. A. Perkins, 74 years old, Goodland, Ind., was killed yesterday when the automobile in which he was riding to the funeral of his daughter-in-law was demolished by a Chicago, Aurora and Elgin electric train at the Mannheim road crossing in Bellwood. His daughter, Mrs. Floyd Smith, 38 years old, 4520 Johnston street, Gary, was probably fatally injured. She was taken to the Oak Park hospital.

Perkins and Mrs. Smith were on their way to the funeral of Mrs. Frank Perkins, 424 Cumberland avenue, Park Ridge. Mrs. Smith is the mother of three children—Virginia, 9 years old; Babe, 5, and Dolores, 1. Perkins was

The death of Mr. Perkins and one other increased the Cook county automobile toll for 1932 to 506. The victim:

RATS CARRY OFF HIS $105 HIDDEN IN STORE; MONEY IS RECOVERED

New York, June 16.—[Special.]—The police in Flushing report that even the rats out in Queens have taken to hoarding currency.

Henry Prekeler, manager of a grocery in Whitestone, reported the incident to the police today when he informed them he had found $105 which vanished yesterday.

The money was in a little brown bag hidden among the groceries, where holdup men would not find it. When Prekeler went to the spot where he left it it had vanished. He notified the police. They searched without finding any trace of the bag.

Last night just as he was closing up, Prekeler saw a one dollar bill on the floor under a rear window. There was a hole under the window and the rats had established a household there. The little brown bag was inside and in it was $90. Packed around the sides of the hole, somewhat mutilated, was $14. This, with the dollar outside, balanced the book.

MRS. K. H. HANSON WINS DIVORCE ON CRUELTY CHARGE

Mrs. Katherine Howell Hanson of the Hotel Ambassador East was granted a divorce yesterday on grounds of cruelty from Kenneth Boardman Hanson, a manufacturers' agent, by Judge Craig A. Hood in the Circuit court.

Their wedding on April 4, 1924, at St. Peter's Episcopal church was a society event. Mrs. Hanson is a sister of Mrs. Ada Howell Ames, widow of Knowlton L. Ames Sr., who killed himself Dec. 23.

Mrs. Hanson started to weep as she took the witness stand yesterday. At Judge Hood's urging she composed herself and testified that her husband struck her on July 1, 1931, and that on Sept. 30 he seized her and shook her. Hanson did not contest the decree.

Mrs. Hanson asked and was granted custody of her children, Russell, 2 years old, and Katherine, 6. Her attorney, Frank Cantwell, informed the court that a settlement has been arranged under which Mrs. Hanson will receive $200 a month until her husband's business improves.

Judge Hood also granted a divorce yesteday to Mrs. Dorothy W. Abbott, 603 Edgewood place, River Forest, from Gordon C. Abbott, secretary of the Goss Printing Press company. She charged desertion. Abbott did not contest the action. Attorney Robert E. Cantwell Jr. informed the court that Abbott had made a cash settlement and also had agreed to pay his wife $250 a month.

Six Candidates Remain in 22d Ward Campaign

Two more candidates, Max Raszniewski and Albert Michal, withdrew yesterday from the special election in the 22d ward Tuesday to fill the council vacancy caused by the death of Ald. Joseph Cepak. This narrowed the original field of 24 down to six, a number of other candidates having previously withdrawn or had their petitions disqualified. The survivors are State Representative Henry Sonnenschein, secretary to Mayor Cermak; Anthony Benkowski, Anton J. Hladik, Andrew Kreilinger, James Kuta, and John F. Picek.

Chaplin Takes Serious Role; as Doctor to World's Ills

Hollywood, Cal., June 16.—[Special.]—Charlie Chaplin returned from a year's wanderings today a deeply bronzed and silver haired traveler who avoided questions about his motion picture intentions but urged the handful who greeted him to talk about the world economic situation instead. Chaplin said he had conceived an idea for one international currency and thought it could be worked out to solve the reparations problem and restore the world to an economic even keel.

"The newspaper is an institution developed by modern civilization to present the news of the day, to foster commerce and industry, to inform and mold public opinion, and to furnish that check upon government which no constitution has ever been able to provide."

DEMOCRATIC STATES WROTE THE REPUBLICAN LIQUOR PLANK.

The wide straddle prohibition amendment was adopted in the Republican convention by the postmasters, internal revenue collectors, prohibition enforcement agents, customs officers, U. S. marshals, and district attorneys of the Republican feudal states. The patronage states, existing in the Republican party wholly or largely as such and seldom if ever counted in the Republican electoral college decision, gave 240 votes, including seven territorial, against the Bingham minority report for the submission of the eighteenth amendment and defeated it.

These votes were decisive. Most of the states have never voted the Republican ticket in an election. Four of them were beguiled away from their hereditary party four years ago, but soon snapped back into orthodoxy and in doing so renounced their dryness and have gone wet.

The battalions of bureaucracy, decisive in a convention, are worthless in an election. The Republican party used them to defeat the wishes of the states which must be carried in November and with their delegate vote indorsed a policy hateful to the strong Republican territory. The mercenaries won a fight who cannot win a campaign.

Much can be learned by observing both the ideas and the procedure. The day was won by federal patronage for the federal scheme. New evidence was produced for the axiom that government never willingly surrenders power. The majority resolution proposes the continuance of federal control. The Republican states asked for the return of the police power to the states. Autonomy was wanted, subservience was required. The federal government has authority to send its agents into the homes of citizens of the states. It proposes to retain it. The Republican administration, head of the Washington bureaucracy, will not relinquish the hold it has obtained.

It was thought necessary to dress this intention in a moral purpose which, when it was presented in argument to the convention, fell apart to the confusion of the speakers who tried to sustain it. The public exhibition of chicane, fustian reasoning and pharisaical appeal was at times pitiful and at times contemptible. It became a rigmarole of unreason, a line of argument quite worthy of the complicated hypocrisies it tried to maintain.

The assumptions were so ridiculous that the listeners exploded in laughter. The galleries were accused of rudeness. The auditors, as guests of the convention, were rebuked for their behavior and threatened, but public men must not offer so much provocation. They must not attempt such solemn nonsense, such sentimental distortion of facts, and expect that intelligent people will listen to them gravely. They must not present a farce and rebuke the laughter.

When Mr. Garfield gave his blessing to the alcoholic ignorance of the new generation and a clean bill of health to the speakeasy he carried the proceedings from the convention hall to the vaudeville stage. One could not complain that his cause was not there in its proper atmosphere nor that the laughter was unmannerly.

It was necessary for the defenders of the prevailing program, prevailing because bureaucracy used its mercenaries to perpetuate itself, to tell the representatives of states, supposedly adult, self sustaining and sovereign, that they had neither the intelligence nor the will to regulate the use of intoxicating beverages. The entire bureaucratic argument was that the people of the states were incompetent and irresponsible. The weary weaving of words in the resolution and the ridiculous arguments of its defenders came to this: The states you delegates represent are juvenile. Left to yourselves you are incapable of behaving as adults. We, the bureaucrats, must see that you do not have saloons. You have no plan. You have no virtues. You have no common sense. You cannot be trusted. You will not know what to do or how to do it.

We, the bureaucrats in Washington, liking our job of controlling you and enjoying the expenditure of public funds for that purpose, will not let go of you. We will not allow you to vote on repeal because you are unfit to have this privilege. You are unable to walk alone. You must remain under the paternalistic care of bureaucracy.

When the Republican states denied these assumptions and rejected these conclusions the mercenaries were thrown into the field and resistance was beaten down by representatives of states who will not know their presidential candidate until the Democrats meet.

It is true that the Republican convention in Chicago was a long way from the complacent standpattism of the convention of four years ago, but the eighteenth amendment and the Volstead act have lost more ground than the Republican party would try to cover. Secretary Mills said that the accepted resolution was one of the necessary compromises which must be agreed upon to conciliate the extremes in a party. The general theory of compromise is valid, but there are issues which cannot accept it.

The people of a state might conciliate extreme views on the subject of liquor control, but the people of the United States will either check the centralization of government or they must submit to it. The eighteenth amendment being an extraneous police ordinance in the constitution, there is no cure in the modification of it. The bureaucracy cannot answer Dr. Butler. The question is not one of liquor, but one of government.

BY WAY OF ADIOS.

The Republican convention held in Chicago before the present one did not satisfy some of the delegates who thought the city indifferent to their comforts and convenience, both in and out of the convention hall. If offense was given then it was not the intent of the real city, and it is to be hoped that compensation has been afforded this year. A courteous and capable mayor, Mr. Cermak, and a capable and courteous director of affairs, Mr. Hurley, have done their competent best and results have been correspondingly good.

Mr. Cermak, Democrat, has made the Republican delegates feel that they were in hospitable territory in June, however much he may try to break its neutrality and inspire its belligerency in November. It is a gratification to Chicago—and the experience is not of long standing—to have a mayor again whose intelligence and courtesy are more than sufficient and whose appearances reflect credit upon the community. There has been much embarrassment in the past from the lack of these qualities in the responsible office.

Mr. Hurley's arrangements for the comfort and pleasure of the delegates and visitors have been admirable. They were carefully studied and plans have been just as carefully looked to day by day. All political criticism aside, Chicago hopes that the delegates have been as pleased with their reception here as the city has been pleased to have them.

TAX CONSCIOUSNESS.

The president of the New York Bankers' association urges its membership to help crystallize public opinion for retrenchment of government expenditure. He summarized the situation very well.

"In the nineteen year period from 1913 to 1932," he said, "our total government expenses have risen by an amount equal to more than 50 per cent of the increase in our national income, so that today 25 per cent of our national income is being used for governmental expenses, against 8 per cent in 1913. At the same time our total debt has increased from $4,389,000,000 to $34,155,000,000, almost half of which is the debt of state and local governments, which has increased $12,500,000,000 in the period. One cannot read the financial statements of small towns or large cities without being impressed by the extravagance that has characterized the conduct of their affairs."

But the cities and towns have been rudely awakened. In fact, most of the country, except the present congress, is becoming acutely tax conscious and aware that prompt and drastic public retrenchment is not merely advisable but necessary. That is why towns and villages all over the country are protesting against the Garner postoffices. Bureau county farmers have just met to demand public economy and tax relief. Business organizations are being heard from in many states.

Labor, which includes the greatest number of the unemployed and is in most urgent need of relief, has not yet begun to speak as its vital interest in public waste and debt demands, but we believe it will. Unemployment conditions compel public relief and right minded persons all approve well advised expenditures for this purpose. But labor should distinguish sensibly between expenditures which are constructive and essential and expenditures which in the long run will cost labor far more than it is worth. Unemployment on the present scale can be ended only by the revival of business, while expenditures that will retard this revival by discouraging enterprise and weighing it down with taxes are a direct injury to every unemployed wage or salary earner, to every farmer unable to make a living, in short, to every one. It will be an injury in the long run even to the politicians who vote them, for very soon the responsibility for spending public money will come home.

Because most taxpayers do not know they are paying taxes, public expenditure goes unchecked. What is needed to stop public waste is the organization of those who know they are taxed, because they pay taxes directly, and the awakening of the public which thinks public expenditures come only out of the other fellow's pocket. This is a task of organization and public education and it must be energetically attacked if we are to recover our common prosperity, the only kind that is worth having.

Editorial of the Day

A TRAGEDY OF THE DEEP.

[The New York Sun]

Prof. Georges Le Dannois of the French sea fisheries bureau says "there is no such thing as the Gulf stream." This is his ultimatum. He hopes "that this categorical statement will put an end" to the conjectures inspired by reports concerning the inconstancy of the river in the North Atlantic.

The suppression of the Gulf stream by the eminent French oceanographer is a hard blow to romance. Nothing like it has been recorded since grim science abolished the Sargasso sea of adventure tales and condemned to death all those interesting colonies of hopelessly pent voyagers that were held captive in its entangling weed. The Sargasso sea had a flora and a fauna of its own, each as rich as the discoverer's imagination; its human population was as diversified as the circumstances set by the story teller required.

The Gulf stream plays a different but not less interesting part in story. It is responsible for the cold, wet seasons that afflict the eastern coast of the United States and the northwestern coast of Europe. When strange fish appear, the Gulf stream brings them; when familiar fish disappear, the Gulf stream takes them away. Outside the hydrographic office—a strangely perverse institution so unenterprising that it refuses to be guided by amateurs' reports—the principal function of the Gulf stream is to change its course. Not a season passes in which its divagations are not recorded everywhere except on the official charts.

It is a fortunate thing that Prof. Le Dannois did not revoke the Gulf stream while Benjamin Franklin was the ambassador to France. Poor Richard was a firm believer in the great current, and he would have stood up for it. Even now there are those who, despite the finality of Prof. Le Dannois' pronunciamento, will hope for its reinstatement. Perhaps it was merely in recess when Prof. Le Dannois looked at the place where it should have been.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

How to the Line, let the quips fall where they may.

YES, YES, YES! We went to the convention, oh, yes. Yes, we sat there for hours and heard the yesses, yesses, yesses. Yes, yes, yes. Yes, indeed. Oh, yes, of course. Yes, certainly. Yessir, aye, si, oui, yah, yes, yes. And now, darn it, they've got us going that way. We've tried and tried, but since we've been to the convention we can't say anything but yes. Yes, yes, it's too bad, but we've got that way, too. Oh, yes, yes, yes.

WHEN THE PIPE ORGAN solemnly droned out the dear old song "I've Been Working on the Railroad" at the convention a sad looking man standing behind us said, "Well, if anybody's been working on the railroad it must have been some time back."

IT'S JUST ABOUT OVER and we won't have to look at pictures of the delegates much longer. Oh, we will be so happy to see even a picture of a girl in a bathing suit dabbling one toe in Lake Michigan that we will simply break down and cry like a child. Say what you will, pictures of delegates are sure to cause severe pains in the neck in the long run.

INTO LETHE.

Listen:

the sound of her last low sob is ended.
Stay your quick breath
for her white door is opening slowly.
Let her go by us and let us not try to detain her.
She will return to us,
white face still white,
eyes unclouded.
She knows what is dead,
what is dead and forever beyond her.
She will come back to us
scornful and even triumphant, asking for nothing and giving us nothing to go on.

How horribly quiet this house is without her low sobbing.

JEANNE DELAMASTER.

THE SENATE voted yesterday to stand by the appropriations they had made for grasshopper control in the northwest. Reports got to Washington that the grasshoppers had seized several freight trains and were on the way to Washington, and the senate hurriedly surrendered.

AND NOW A LADY has been granted a divorce because her husband took her across his knee at a bridge party and spanked her for trumping his ace. Bridge seems to cause a lot of trouble. There ought to be a constitutional amendment forbidding its being played within the limits of these so-called United States. Write to your congressman today.

A PRAYER FOR THE NIGHT.

Lord, I thank Thee for the night after the doubt of the day; for the thousand lighted altars in the sacred places of space where my troubled mind, on its wide search for peace, may pause to pray and then go on in its quest; I thank Thee for the timeless hills above the flood-plain of the mighty Missouri where the ancients sent up their signal fires; for the silver bars of the river rimmed with the gold of weaving willows; for the stately stillness of the cottonwoods by the marsh where the slender reeds become soft-playing flutes for all the feathered things asleep with their heads under their wings; for the velvet cloak over the shoulders of the weary world held with the breastpin of the evening star; and for the odors of June that are but incense from the far cathedrals of the upper air. For I know that the night is a temple rising from the plinth of the world and the stars are soft tapers burning on the altars of eternity and the Milky Way the keyboard of an organ whose golden pipes are lost in the groined arches of the universe. Lord, I thank Thee for the night, for the day was garish and grinding and men did not sing at their tasks. . . . And now the cradle moon has rocked to rest in the river; the immemorial planets touch the hills, but God comes walking in the cool of the evening as He did in the long ago when the world was young. Lord, I thank Thee for the night, for our dead walk with Thee and they are very fair.

ABORIGINE.

WONDER WHAT the orators of old would have done if they had had to talk into a little box and have their voices come out of tin horns? The audience that was so excited when Patrick Henry said—well, you know what he said—would have simply sat tight on their hands if what they had heard Pat say was "Blah lah lah, blah, blah." And even William Jennings Bryan's famous peroration would not have gone over so good if it had sounded like "Jou mush blot blah la blah blah lah on blah of blah blah, jou mush blot blahaba blah on cross of blah!"

TO EDITH B.

Yes, my dear, we've cats in common,
Long-haired, short-haired, alley, prize,
Yellow, blue, and vari-colored,
Cats of all and every size.

We can talk cats by the hour,
Tell their cunning ways, and wise,
Reminisce of long-deceased cats—
Cats, for topics, have the ayes.

With you I'd take a bit of cat talk
Over gossip with the rest.
Of all your qualities—A-1, fine,
It's love of cats I like the best.

For, judging women I have met,
Thru hours of bridge or little chats—
I don't forget what Voltaire said
In reference to women who don't like cats.

JAYHAWKER.

AND LAST NIGHT as we listened in for a few brief minutes to the obsequies over at the Stadium we thought now and then we heard a harsh, cackling sound of boisterous laughter. Somehow it sounded very much like many, many people roaring with delight. Do you suppose they might have been Democrats?

NAMING SOME HEART TROUBLES.

M. C. asks for an article on the different forms of heart troubles. It seems probable that what is wanted is a list of the more common heart troubles, with some classification of them.

The request is in order. We still speak of heart disease as though there were but one. In vital statistics reports we read of "heart disease," instead of the half dozen or more subheads that should be reported on separately. We would not be satisfied with a report on "lung disease" that threw the pneumonias, consumption, bronchitis, asthma, and pleurisy into one grab-bag. Since there are many kinds of heart disease, due to many causes and treated in different ways, it is time to think of each disease as an individual disorder.

The heart is composed of a thick, heavy, strong muscle, the myocardium, and its nerves and blood vessels; a lining membrane, the endocardium, with the endocardial valves, and a thin covering membrane, the pericardium. As most of the diseases of the endocardium cause the harm they do around the valves, we use terms which designate the valves affected when we speak of organic heart disease affecting the lining membrane. The terms used are mitral regurgitation and mitral stenosis, aortic regurgitation and aortic stenosis, and pulmonary stenosis. The first term means that there is a deformity of the mitral valve which permits blood to flow in the wrong direction; the second means that the deformity interferes with the forward flow of blood. These deformities are the result of inflammation of the endocardium, generally chronic though sometimes acute.

With these statements as a base, it is easy to catch the meaning of the other terms used. Pericarditis means that there is an inflammation of the covering layer. Myocarditis is used as a name for the diseases of the heart muscle.

In the long ago we spoke of the nervous disorders of the heart as palpitation and let it go at that. Now we sometimes get into an analytic mood and then we speak of organic heart disease, and of disfunction due to nerve disturbance. The latter we once lumped as "palpitation." We then split up into auricular fibrilation, auricular flutter, extrasystole, heart-block, paroxysmal tachycardia, bradycardia and perhaps sinus-block, nervous heart, tobacco heart, and possibly others.

In this group of heart troubles the muscle itself is all right and there need not be disease of the valves. We refer to them as nervous or functional heart troubles, and not organic. In each of them the motion of the heart muscle, contracting and relaxing, are not carried out exactly in the usual way, because the nervous mechanism is not clicking off just right. Some of the nerve disturbances are very grave; others are of little consequence.

If there is any disease in the coronary arteries, the vessels that supply most of the nourishment to the heart muscle, we have a kind of neuralgia of the heart which goes by one of the following names: angina pectoris, coronary thrombosis, and coronary embolus.

CONVULSIONS.

Mrs. M. J. T. writes: I have a boy 6½ years old. About a year ago, preceding an attack of the grip and congestion of one lung, he went into a convulsion, the first he ever had. He has just got over another attack of the grip. Preceding this last attack he also went into a convulsion. In both cases the convulsion came on about six in the morning, although he seemed in excellent condition when going to bed, eating and playing as usual, with no signs of a cold. Will these convulsions come on whenever he becomes ill? Is there any danger in them? What may the cause be?

REPLY.

In children attacks of infection of various kinds are frequently ushered in by convulsions. An attack which begins that way is likely to be severe but not fatal. Since your child has had another attack it is probable that he is prone to convulsions. As a rule, this means that the child has spasmophilic diathesis. This calls for viosterol, cod liver oil or the oil from other fish liver, and preparations of lime. In a few cases repeated convulsions in childhood means that the child is headed for epilepsy.

ANGINA PECTORIS.

H. B. P. writes:

1. What causes angina pectoris?
2. Is it serious?
3. What are the symptoms?
4. Could a nervous condition have symptoms of a similar nature?

REPLY.

1. The most frequent cause is a diseased state of the coronary artery that carries blood to the heart muscle.
2. Very.
3. Pain and feeling of oppression in the chest; fear; the pain is felt beyond the head of the breast bone and it shoots down the arm.
4. Yes. False angina is far more frequently encountered than is true angina.

CHILD AT MIDDLE AGE.

A. E. writes: If a woman bears a child when she is about forty-five years old, would the child be a weakling?

REPLY.

If this were the woman's only child, or if she had had but few children, the chances that this one would be vigorous are good, average, or above. Some hold that a child borne by a middle-aged woman who had borne many children and who was worn down would be likely to be a Mongolian idot. However, the evidence in support of this opinion is not convincing.

FROM THE TRIBUNE'S COLUMNS

16 YEARS AGO TODAY

JUNE 17, 1916.

ST. LOUIS, Mo.—With a declaration in favor of true Americanism, a denunciation of "hyhenism," a promise of a more vigorous Mexican policy, hinting at possible intervention as a last resort; advocacy in general terms of adequate national defense, indorsement of woman suffrage as a state issue, and proposal of a tariff commission and various other economic reforms, the Democratic party goes before the country to make its bid for retention of the presidency. At the close of a four hour session today, the only contentious period of the entire gathering, the national convention of the party adopted the campaign platform and adjourned sine die. The contention was over the woman suffrage plank, and for two hours it had the convention in an almost uncontrollable uproar.

BROWNSVILLE, Tex.—United States troops came upon a band of between twenty and thirty Mexican bandits about ten miles east of San Benito, Tex., and after a few shots were exchanged the Mexicans scattered. It is reported three Mexicans were killed. So far as known there were no American casualities.

EL PASO, Tex.—Gen. Jacinto Trevino, commanding 50,000 Mexican troops in the state of Chihuahua, sent an ultimatum of war to Gen. John J. Pershing, commander of the American punitive expedition in Mexico. The ultimatum says: "Any movement of troops of the American forces now in Mexico in any of the directions of south, east, or west will be considered an overt act against the sovereignty of the republic of Mexico and will be the signal for a general attack by the Carranza forces." At a late hour tonight the United States military at Fort Bliss had received no verification of the reputed ultimatum, and no word has reached here to indicate that Gen. Pershing had reported receipt of the communication.

TODAY'S QUESTION.

What is the rôle of the glands of internal secretion?

(This question will be repeated and answered in this space tomorrow.)

YESTERDAY'S QUESTION.

Why do we shiver when we feel cold and perspire when we feel hot?

ANSWER:

The significant regulation of body temperature involves mechanisms set deeply in inherited structures and hence beyond voluntary control. Heat is produced by the oxidation of foodstuffs in the body tissues, particularly in muscles. When the cold nerve endings in the skin are stimulated, messages are sent up the sensory nerves and act involuntarily through the spinal cord on the nerves that control the muscles. The muscles contract, giving the effect we call shivering. Their contraction involves more oxidation and increased heat production. This heat is passed on to the blood and uniformily distributed through the body. At the same time there is a constriction of the skin blood vessels, which tends to diminish the heat loss from the body surface.

Heat is lost not only by direct radiation but also by evaporation of the sweat poured out on the surface of the skin from the sweat glands. When the heat nerve endings in our skin are stimulated, not only do we have a relaxation of muscles and a disinclination to do physical work, but the blood vessels in the skin are dilated, more hot blood is thus carried to the surface, the sweat glands start to secrete, and the loss of body heat is thereby increased. It is mainly the possession of sweat glands that enables a person to do moderate physical work in an environment hotter than the interior of the body without elevation of the body temperature.

The importance of heat regulation in man is due to the fact that the cells in man's body are adjusted to work within a narrow range of temperature. Slight elevation of temperature, as in fever, deranges particularly the nervous system, while slight lowering of the temperature stops everything.

FENCE OWNERSHIP.

Chicago, June 3.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—I live in the middle of the block with an east front. Will you please publish in your column which fence belongs to me—the north or south? The sidewalk is on the south side of the building.

A. P. O.

The wording of the fence act indicates that the legislature had agricultural properties primarily in mind. Section 2, for example, provides that a fence "sufficient to turn stock" shall be legal. Although the applicability of this wording to urban property is open to some question, there is no express exemption and we regard the act as applying to division fences between city lots which are inclosed on their other boundaries, so that adjoining owners must contribute equally to the cost and repair of each such fence.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

PNEUMATIC TIRES.

Chicago, June 5.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—Was there an ordinance passed some time ago requiring all owners of trucks to change from solid to air tires? These solid tires are destroying every street in the city. Coal and gravel trucks using car line streets have ruined the sides of these streets and made them impassable and now they are destroying the car tracks and road bed of the car lines. It is easy to see the damage done not only to the streets but to the buildings along such streets when one of these trucks passes.

W. G. E.

Chap. 121, sec. 5 of the motor vehicles act reads in part as follows: "All motor vehicles of the second division, as described in section 2 of this act, which are designated [designed] and used for the carrying of more than seven persons, operating upon the improved highways shall have pneumatic tires, and all other motor vehicles of the second division operating upon the improved public highways on and after Jan. 1, 1933, at a speed in excess of ten miles per hour shall be equipped with pneumatic tires." Section 2 as referred to above is as follows: "Those vehicles which are designed and used for pulling or carrying freight and also those vehicles or motor cars which are designed and used for the carrying of more than seven persons."

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

JOINT PROPERTY.

Mobile, Ala., June 3.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—If two persons hold equal amounts, same being undivided interest in a parcel of property located in Florida, can either of the two dispose of their separate shares without the consent of the other?

M. S.

Yes, as far as the law is concerned, but ordinarily they would not be able to secure the market price, since a purchaser would have to reach an agreement with the other owner or file a partition suit.

THE MAYOR'S PLAN.

Chicago, June 10.—Every citizen should give active and unqualified support to Mayor Cermak's plan to use the facilities of the Reconstruction Finance corporation for payment of Chicago's debt to teachers, city employés, and creditors. The success or failure of this plan may be determined by the support that is received.

It is the understanding of the people that the R. F. C. was organized for the purpose of helping the condition of the nation. So far it has confined this help largely to the railroads of the country, while many other industries have been allowed to crash upon the rocks of suddenly shifting conditions. The present opportunity to help a large group of our people will be the real test of this organization—whether or not it has been designed to help all of us or only a favored few. If it cannot be made flexible enough in its powers to come to the aid of Chicago then we can reach only one conclusion as to its original purpose.

What would be the result of a 70 million dollar loan to the city? Almost every cent of that amount would be spent in the city; in fact, it is probable that a large share of that total even now comprises a debt of the original creditors to the county for taxes, to commercial houses for credit extended, and to banks for loans which have been made. The distribution of this amount to teachers, city employés, and creditors would mean that almost $25 per person for each man, woman, and child in the city would become available in cash. It would do more real good to the business of the city than any other plan which could possibly be presented.

Chicago has shown a determined effort to put its house in order. There can be no question as to the eventual success of the city in this undertaking. We are worthy of having our credit restored. Are we not entitled to the help of an organization especially created by us to do work of this kind? Are our legislators to permit us to suffer indefinitely when they have it within their power to help us? The issue is paramount; let us see how it will be answered.

WILLIAM S. MILLER.

IN THE COUNTY BUILDING.

East Chicago, Ind., June 14.—About April 20 I came to Chicago to pay my taxes to the county treasurer and got mixed up with the crowd of approximately 5,000 people that was in the treasurer's office. After two hours I got as far as a clerk and then I fainted. I had about $900 in an envelope. When I felt better I did not know what had become of the money. But the clerk said, "Don't worry, lady. I have your money." He then arranged to pay my bills and helped me get out of the building. I was so glad to meet such an honest man. His name is Peter McFarlane.

MRS. WISNIEWSKI.

A GOOD WISH.

Chicago, June 10.—We extend our heartiest congratulations on your eighty-fifth birthday. May you continue to serve the people in the same efficient manner for many years to come.

T. B. ROBERTSON PRODUCTS CO., INC.

STILL GOING STRONG.

Chicago, June 10.—Say, you beat me to it. The cartoon by Orr in this morning's TRIBUNE is fine. "Still Going Strong" is good.

I was born in 1847, too, but not until Oct. 30; so you beat me. I also am "still going strong," but feel the effects of the passing years; I'm a veteran of the civil war, having enlisted before I had reached my 16th birthday, serving in the 29th Indiana infantry.

Have been an almost daily reader of THE TRIBUNE for more than fifty years; so just keep on "going strong."

W. W. GARNER.

FROM A CO-LABORER.

Chicago, June 10.—I want to congratulate THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE and its staff on its 85th anniversary. I have been selling THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE for 27 years and am still selling it on the corner of Racine and Van Buren. My wish is bigger and better circulation and more advertising.

FRANK CONTE,
Newsboy, Racine-Van Buren.

AT THE COUNTY HOSPITAL.

Chicago, June 3.—This morning, under the caption of "At the County Hospital," one Kraut [first name probably "Sour"] makes statements which I, with 30 years of personal knowledge, know have no basis unless that of an overworked grouch.

The county hospital may need a coat of paint, and there may be a lack of luxurious ease, but as far as essentials and medical care are concerned the county hospital is far better than any so-called charity ward of any sectarian hospital in Chicago.

Through keen, honest competition the county has for its internes the cream of the medical schools, who give prompt, studious care to every case. Its nurses are known for their efficiency and the attending staff counts the "big shots" of Chicago. "The patient with a pull" is the one that is most often out of luck if the truth were known.

I am an ex-interne and what I don't remember my son, who is at present an interne, tells me. If the poor and needy get a break anywhere in this world the Cook county hospital is one place I am sure of.

M. B. W.

CONTENTED.

Chicago, June 4.—I entered the county hospital Feb. 25 and remained nine days, and in that time I had wonderful care. I have no complaint to make of food or care. No politician got me in there and I was a free patient. So I'm one citizen who did not know you had to have political pull to get into the county hospital.

MRS. BEATRICE COLLINS.

WELL TREATED.

Chicago, June 4.—In response to Maurice H. Kraut's article of June 3 I wish to say that my son died in the county hospital May 3. For the past two years he was in the hospital and I had no trouble in getting him in. He received the best attention by the wonderful staff of doctors and internes, who are a fine set of young men. Every one was kind and courteous.

The county hospital is a large institution and they have rules which must be carried out. I never saw any difference made in patients. I was a stranger and they took my boy in and he received the very best attention from the hospital staff, internes, and nurses.

MRS JENNIE A. MERRY.

GANGSTERS' GUNS FINISH CAREER OF 'RED' BARKER

Shot to Death in Street on N. W. Side.

(Three Fingered) White and Murray Humphreys, former Capone gangsters, had formed a triumvirate with the intention of taking over extensive liquor and gambling territories held by the Sicilian survivors of the Capone régime, who had control of practically the whole of the county.

The first action of Barker and White, reputedly the toughest gangmen in the city, was to drive Ted Newberry from the north side. They are said also to have arrayed themselves against the mob known as the Touhy gang, which has been operating in the northwest section of the county, with gambling houses and beer joints enriching them.

"Muscle In" on Unions.

Back of White and Barker were the resources of several unions into which they had muscled their way. One of these is a branch of the teamsters' union. They are also reputed to have control of the Coal Drivers and Coal Hikers' organizations.

With this support they were said to be making inroads that hurt, particularly the Sicilian syndicate. The best guess of the police was that this element had decreed and carried out the death of Barker.

Barely a week ago Barker was named by Steve C. Sumner, secretary of the Milk Wagon Drivers' union, as having represented himself as connected with the new Meadowmoor Dairy company, which was bombed shortly after it announced that it would sell milk at 9 cents a quart in Chicago. C. C. Davis, president of the concern, declared that he knew nothing of Barker or any other gangsters.

Claim He Ruled Drivers.

However, the police asserted that Barker controlled the union chauffeurs who are delivering the low priced milk—deliveries having been started as scheduled. What bearing this may or may not have had on his death was obscure.

Barker had a criminal record dating back to 1916. He was sentenced to the Bridewell in that year for petit larceny. In 1918, when he was only 20 years old, he went to Pontiac. He was paroled a year later and in ensuing years was several times sent back for parole violation. He was finally discharged in 1928.

He also served in Marquette, Mich., penitentiary while not in the Illinois prisons. In 1928, freed at last from his parole troubles, he was tried with William Clifford and Michael Reilly, two tough companions, for the murder of Albert Pratt, a garage attendant, during a holdup.

3 KILLED IN TRAP

Three extortioners walked into a police trap yesterday afternoon and were shot to death in room 203 at 208 North Wells street, the office of Morris Shachter, a commission gambler.

A week ago the same three men were in a detective bureau showup and Lieut. Edward Birmingham said to them: "Some day the police are going to get tired of bringing you fellows in here and they'll send you to the morgue." Last night their bodies were there with tags on them as follows:

Harold Partner, 29, 1117 North Dearborn street.

Samuel Katz, 27, 20 East Delaware place.

Frank Rogers, 31, 1902 Mohawk street.

The policemen who shot them down with sawed off shotguns and pistols were Louis Caparelli, in charge; Michael Casey, David Levin, and Michael Caracci of the staff of Pat Roche, chief investigator for the state's attorney. One man escaped

Deception Discovered

The prelude to yesterday's elimination party was started in St. Louis fifteen months ago when "Brass McDonald," a gambler, was kidnaped for ransom, which was paid. The kidnapers learned that "McDonald" had a brother in Chicago, named Shachter, who also was a gambler. They decided he was legitimate prey. Shachter fooled them at the time by pretending to be an employé rather than the man the extortioners were seeking.

Six months after the first attempt the muscle men returned to Shachter's office, which is two blocks from the city hall. Shachter hurried to Roche, who planned a trap.

Roche and his men were hidden in the vicinity of the 208 North Wells building and Shachter was to notify them of the arrival of the extortioners by pulling down a window shade. Some chance visitor to Shachter's office spoiled everything by a tug at the shade.

The extortioners, however, had been warned that Shachter had called in the police. They telephoned him next day and vowed to wreak vengeance on him. That was six months ago and Wednesday they called on him again.

"You get us twenty-five grand or it's the cellar for you," he quoted them as saying and he understood "cellar" to mean a grave. Once more he went to the state's attorney's office and told his troubles to Lieut. John Leonard. The gangsters were to return at 4 next day, he said.

"This time we'll be there well ahead of them," Leonard decided, and he directed the four "ace" detectives to secrete themselves by noon.

Detective Casey's report of what happened was as follows:

"Promptly at four p. m. three men filed into Shachter's room. They asked if he had the money and he followed instructions.

"'I have only $1,000,' Shachter told them, and they snarled at him and one of them put a gun against his back and said, 'Go out and get some more, you dog, or your life won't be worth a nickle.'

"Shachter's room was barren of furniture except a table and chair. We stepped into it from a communicating door. I shouted, 'Put up your hands, we're police officers.' Partner swung around toward me, gun in hand. I had a sawed off shotgun ready. I shot him. The others whipped out their guns also and then my partners fired They fired at us and we fired at them. I think about fifteen shots were fired in all."

Another Slain in Calumet City.

Calumet City had another murder mystery to solve early this morning when Max Stefanski, 38 years old, said by the police to have been connected in a minor way with the alky racket in the southern suburbs some months ago, was shot to death as he was walking along the street. His assassin escaped.

Stefanski has been a tuberculosis patient at the Oak Forest infirmary for six months. Three days ago he left the institution for a few days for a visit with relatives living at 39 154th place, Calumet City. He went out for a walk last night and when in front of 507 State street apparently he was ambushed and slain.

Felix Horvatich, who lives at the State street address, said he heard several shots. He rushed to the door and found Stefanski dying with six bullet wounds in the head. Powder marks revealed he had been shot at close range. His assailant was nowhere in sight. Police expressed the belief the killing was the result of some ancient grudge growing out of the alky business.

FOUR GANGSTERS SLAIN IN ONE DAY

KILLING EXPOSES BIG GAMBLING PROFITS OF INN

Slayer Caught; County Officials Embarrassed.

The fatal shooting early yesterday of Fred Pacelli in the Dells, Morton Grove roadhouse, proved an embarrassing subject to county officials later in the day when it became known that a big gambling room on the second floor of the place was the object of the visit by Pacelli's slayers.

Pacelli was fatally wounded and his woman companion was shot as they sat at a table beside the dance floor. In the absence of eyewitnesses' accounts, it was not determined at the inquest into his death whether he was shot because he resisted the intruders or whether they suspected him of being one of the "heavy men" employed to guard the gambling room upstairs.

The three gunmen, one of whom Leroy Marschal', was wounded and is being held for the killing of Pacelli, did not go to the Dells to rob the gambling room, as was first thought, a Chicago police official said yesterday. The official, who is conversant with underworld affairs in the country towns, said that the real purpose of the visit was to "muscle in" on the gambling profits in behalf of the beer gang headed by Con and Roger Touhy.

LEROY MARSCHALK.

Police Battle Killers.

County highway police, who otherwise were vague in their description of the shooting, said that the car used by the gunmen belonged to Roger Touhy. Lieut. James Meyering, brother of Sheriff Meyering, and a party of highway police intercepted the three gunmen as they were leaving the Dells. They shot and captured Marschalk. His two companions abandoned the car and fled on foot.

The first question asked of Lieut. Meyering by Deputy Coroner Matt Tychsen when he opened the inquest into the death of Pacelli was whether there was gambling at the Dells. The lieutenant, who had gathered the witnesses for the inquest, had neglected to summon Sam Hare, owner of the roadhouse. Jack Hare, his nephew and the manager, testified, however.

Deny Knowledge of Gambling.

"If there was any gambling there," replied Lieut. Meyering, "it was absolutely 'on the cheat.' I or some of my men visited the Dells nearly every night."

State's Attorney Swanson was also asked about gambling at the Dells.

"I heard that there was gambling out there some time ago and twice sent my men there," he replied. "They reported each time that they could find no gambling. It is up to the sheriff and the police to suppress such violations. I will confer with the sheriff."

Fail to Obtain Witnesses.

When it developed at the inquest that out of 200 guests and numerous employés who were in the place when Pacelli was shot the highway police had not summoned a single eye witness of the shooting to testify, Coroner Frank J. Walsh criticized the police and ordered the inquest continued to June 24, to permit the summoning of other witnesses.

Pacelli's real name was Fred Di Giovanni, it was testified at the inquest by his widow, Charlotte, of 5243 Crystal street. She said he was regularly employed as a salesman for a tailoring company and was fond of gambling.

Miss Marjorie Bruce, 40 East Oak street, who was with Pacelli when he was shot, and who was struck by one of the gunmen's bullets, was not seriously hurt, it was stated yesterday at St. Francis' hospital in Evanston.

Late last night Miss Bruce added some mystery to the case by asking the Evanston police to furnish her a guard in the hospital, indicating she feared another attack. The request was referred to the county highway police.

Guimpes, the Easy to Handle Kind, Return

Greatest Bargains in Years Await Shopper.

BY RHEA SEEGER.

HOWEVER slowly or cautiously the masculine delegates attended to keep afloat during the wet and not so wet decisions, counter decisions and various liquid arguments . . . the feminine contingent seemed to be having a rapturous time seeing the shopping sights that reach a delightful climax when the low price marks are finally believed after two or more careful inspections.

Maybe the shops are having a final fling at this already low price business. If they are, we are all getting the benefit of somebody's generosity, for clothes, the sort of clothes that are distinctive enough to make you thrill to wear them, are now the lowest in price of nearly any year in fashion history.

And the models are fresh and interesting and new each week . . . for instance the guimpe dresses . . . when you were a few years older than an infant you no doubt struggled many a morning with the guimpe section of your frock . . . it took a ways and means committee to render first aid . . . it took the sharpened intellect of an experienced guimpe enthusiast to instruct and guide your impatient fingers as to how and where to keep the dratted thing in safe harbor, and even then, the very best of guimpes, seemed to have a riding complex and used all the shifty tricks possible, so that when you least expected such a catastrophe, the guimpe was out of all respectable bounds and your day was ruined.

But childish guimpe wearers have grown tall and wise and skilled in the art of pretense, so this summer when you fashionably decide for guimpes, you buy creations that are comfortably only an effect. But these clever effects are tremendously smart and ought to take the shoppers by storm. White linen dressers are contrasted with sheer linen . . . blue, brown, and red linen spattered with wee round dots . . . this is used in puffed sleeves and modest, round, youthfully designed yokes and thus the little old guimpe returns, not in a solitary state to mischievously vex us, but sewed right to the dress as a most beguiling but inseparable portion of the entire ensemble.

You can see and select all kinds of these new things, with all manner of color and fabric used to simulate the guimpe.

Other things to lure the prowling shopper are the gay silk handkerchiefs as large as a table top, which one wears with white cotton dresses . . . these are patterned with a collection of deep sea anchors, or flocks of dots of various sizes.

They are perfect with the white flannel swagger coats if you swaddle your neck with one as if you had a sore throat. Chiffon squares equally expansive in area, out gleefully colored as wild as can be, will be worn with silk dresses and suits.

For the costume jewelry collector there are some ideas to be thankful for . . . pastel tinted stuff that is featured in the multi-strand necklaces, bobby-ball earrings and bracelets . . . the colors are really good enough to eat . . . soft rosy pinks that look like crushed raspberries with cream . . . cool minty greens . . . an orchid that looks like pale purple grape juice and yellows that glow like buttercups . . . plenty of cool summer colors for all your summer wardrobe.

Many Parties for Polly Hart; Wedding to Be Held in Garden

Will Become Bride of Harold Byron Smith at Barrington Estate.

BY JUDITH CASS.

CONVENTION activities may be interfering with most other social affairs just now, but they aren't spoiling any of the parties planned for pretty Polly Hart, who is to become the bride of Harold Byron Smith a week from tomorrow at a garden wedding at the Harts' Barrington estate.

Last night Miss Isabel Gordon and Miss Caroline McNair, who are to be among the bridesmaids, gave a dinner dance at the Glen View club; tonight Miss Winifred Wheeler is giving a supper dance at the residence of her mother, Mrs. Robert C. Wheeler of 1447 Astor street; tomorrow Cyrus H. Adams III., who is to be Mr. Smith's best man, will entertain for dinner and dancing at the Onwentsia club.

On Sunday the parents of the bridegroom-to-be, Mr. and Mrs. Harold C. Smith, will give a buffet supper at their Lake Forest residence; next Wednesday Miss Betty Smith will give a spinster dinner for her future sister-in-law while Mr. Smith is having his bachelor dinner in town, and the night before the wedding the parents of the bride-to-be, Mr. and Mrs. H. Stillson Hart, will give the bridal dinner at their residence.

Gardens Beautiful Setting for Wedding

The Rev. Dudley Stark of St. Chrysostom's church is to read the service at 5 o'clock, and if the weather does not make it necessary to change the plans, I'm sure it will be one of the loveliest weddings Chicago society has witnessed in some time, for the Hart gardens are beautiful and a perfect setting for a marriage.

A schoolmate of Miss Hart's at Les Fougeres school in Switzerland, Miss Ruth Seely of Montreal, is here for the pre-nuptial parties and, to be a bridesmaid. Miss Mary Elisabeth Johnson of New York, who also went to school in Switzerland with Miss Hart and Miss Seely, was not able to come for the wedding, so there will be only five bridesmaids instead of six as planned originally.

Miss Betty Smith, Miss Anne Byron Smith, Miss Gordon, Miss McNair, and Miss Seely will precede the bride down the grassy aisle to the improvised altar along with Miss Betty Hart, who will be maid of honor.

Ushering will be Edward Baumann, Keith Bowman, George Bent, Donald Bateman, John P. McWilliams II., and George Heicey of Newark, O. Mr. Smith and his bride will be at home in Barrington in a furnished house they have taken for a year after Aug. 1.

Informal Parties for Delegates

Convention delegates who remained in Chicago after the conclusion of the Republican convention yesterday probably enjoyed the informal parties given for them last night more than any of the elaborate entertainments of the week because, with official convention business over, they had no fear of being called away from the festivities.

Mrs. Joseph B. Long was hostess at one of the largest and gayest buffet suppers at her residence at 1540 Lake Shore drive. Supper was served from 8 o'clock on and before the evening was over half a hundred prominent Republicans, mostly from New York, Boston, and Ohio, had gathered in her drawing room.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter P. Paepcke gave a buffet supper, too, in order that about 25 of their friends might meet the good looking Miss Sybil Whigham of New York, one of the Howard Linns' house guests.

The Chauncey McCormicks' luncheon at the Arts club yesterday for Mrs. Henry J. Whigham and Mrs. Reve Schley of New York was a smaller party than they had planned, because most of their invited guests could not leave the convention session at the Stadium.

Mrs. Erich Gerstenberg had planned a luncheon at the Arts club for Mrs. Jefferson Penn, a North Carolina delegate, but it had to be canceled because Mrs. Penn couldn't get away.

This evening, Mr. and Mrs. Silas H. Strawn, who have been giving a series of parties since the convention opened, are having a dinner at their residence for Ambassador and Mrs. Walter E. Edge of Paris.

Social Affairs at Watch Hill

From Watch Hill our correspondent writes that Mrs. Louise de Koven Phelps, who went there shortly before Memorial day to occupy her cottage, Anchorage, now has her son, Hubbard, a student at the Middlesex school at Concord, Mass., with her for the summer.

Frank Nichols and George R. Nichols III. are at the summer place of their mother, Mrs. George R. Nichols, who is not expected to join them until a bit later. She is prominent in the summer colony, our correspondent adds, and is a member of the exclusive Beach club and chairman of the entertainment committee of the Watch Hill Yacht club.

Mrs. Phelps has for several years been women's golf champion at the Misquamicut Golf club, and is on the women's golf committee this year. The Frank Hibbards, who usually occupy Cove End, their Watch Hill place, each season, do not plan to go there this summer, and instead will be at their Shore Acres place.

Mr. and Mrs. William J. Chalmers, other well known Chicagoans who summer at Watch Hill, will open Dronly House on Ocean View highway a little later in the season.

Miss Elizabeth Ricker is going to Clinton, Ia., this week-end to act as bridesmaid at the wedding on Saturday of Miss Louise Curtis, daughter of George Lewis Curtis of Clinton, to Thomas Chalmers Curtis, son of Mr. and Mrs. Chalmers Curtis of Petoskey, Mich.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Farwell, Mr. and Mrs. William B. Freer, Mrs. Edwin Page, and Miss Eleanor Page will be among the Chicago guests.

Summer Plans, Travel Notes

Dr. and Mrs. Arthur D. Bissell will depart in early July to spend the summer at the northern Wisconsin estate of Mrs. Bissell's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Tilt of 1500 Lake Shore drive.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Yee Freeman will attend the graduation of their son, Charles Jr., from Princeton tomorrow and then they will see the young man off to Greece on the Odyssey cruise with a number of other students. After he sails the Freemans will go to their estate at Biddeford Pool, Me., for the summer.

The Robert L. Henrys, those former Chicagoans whose address for a good many years has been Ramleh road, Bulkeley, Egypt, are on the Atlantic now bound for New York and will arrive in Chicago toward the end of this month to spend the summer here.

Mr. Henry has taken a summer professorship at the University of Chicago, so they will probably stay with their son and daughter-in-law, the Robert L. Henrys III., on the south side. Mr. Henry practices law in Egypt and has served as a judge in the Egyptian courts. He is a brother of Mrs. John McDonald and Huntington B. Henry.

Mrs. Ambrose C. Cramer of Lake Forest hasn't decided definitely whether she will go abroad as usual this summer, but if she does go it will not be until late in the season, for she and her sister, Mrs. Egbert Smith, are planning a trip to Colorado in early July. Mrs. Cramer is staying with her daughter, Mrs. Donald M. Ryerson, and has rented Rathmore, her own Lake Forest house, for the summer to Mrs. Clara Holt Bates.

Mrs. Baum to Return Monday

Mrs. James B. Baum, who went to New York this week, is expected to return to Lake Forest next Monday.

Mrs. Perry H. Kenly has gone east to meet her son, Perry Jr., at the Hotchkiss school before opening the house the Kenlys have taken at Nantucket Island for the summer. Mr. Kenly will join them in August.

Mr. and Mrs. William Marvin Spencer of 1430 Lake Shore drive will move on Monday to Lake Forest. They have leased Albert R. Brunker's house.

Mr. and Mrs. William S. Miller of Winnetka left Wednesday for Andover, Mass., to attend the graduating exercises today of the Phillips academy, where their son, Joe, is finishing his preparatory work for Yale. From there they will go to Northampton for commencement at Smith college, where their daughter, Susan, is being graduated.

Among other Chicago boys finishing at Phillips Andover today are James W. Lafean, son of the Wilbur L. Lafeans of 191 East Walton place; Lefens Porter, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank S. Porter of Scott street; Herbert L. Stern Jr., son of the Herbert L. Sterns of Lake View avenue; and Alexis Thompson, son of Mrs. Victor A. Beaufort.

Sailing tonight at midnight on the Statendam are the following Chicagoans: Mrs. Thomas H. Ritchie and Mrs. Drake Miller, both of Winnetka, who are planning to spend the summer abroad; Mrs. William Silverthorne and her son, William B. Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Stonehill, William S. Dickinson, Mrs. Wells Noyes, Mrs. Edmund Burke Ball and her daughter, Miss Janice Ball; and William M. Schuyler, who will visit his aunt, Baroness de Reutter, in Paris.

Mrs. Franklin M. Miller will give a tea this afternoon at her residence at 1500 Lake Shore drive for Mrs. Thatcher Hoyt, who has been appointed national chairman of music for the National League of American Pen Women.

Arden Shore directors will meet at 10:30 o'clock this morning at the Arden Shore camp at Lake Bluff. Each member will bring her own box lunch.

Announcement has been made of the engagement of Miss Gertrude Longwell Owen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Henry Owen of Evanston, to Frederic Low Chase Jr. of Providence, R. I.

Charming Style Marks Book by Stefan Zweig

'Letter from Woman' Is Given Praise.

"Letter from an Unknown Woman," by Stefan Zweig. [Viking Press.] Published today.

"Sheba Visits Solomon," by Helene Eliat. [Viking Press.] Published today.

STEFAN ZWEIG is one of the most distinguished men of letters in modern Germany. He is a critic, dramatist, novelist, short story writer, and biographer. Among his better known works are "Amok," "Volpone," a modern stage version of Jonson's play, "Joseph Fouché" and "Three Masters."

STEFAN ZWEIG.

With these lines, "My boy died yesterday. . . . Now I have only you left in the world; only you, who do not know me . . . I should like you to know the whole of my life which has always been yours and of which you have known nothing. . . . If I shall go on living I shall tear up this letter and shall keep the silence I have always kept," begins the letter that slowly unfolds the tragic and beautiful love affair an unknown woman had with a world famous author.

From a young, adoring girl who lived across the hall from her idol to the mature and lovely woman whom the author picked up one night and regarded only as another light o' love, this woman gently and tenderly reveals her hopeless passion for the writer. Hope of recognition brings her near him and into his arms from time to time. But he does not remember her.

After each meeting—there are never more than three or four—he thrusts a white rose into her hand and some money. She becomes worldly as the years go by, not worldly in her heart and spirit but in the knowledge that she must give her adored son the finest things of life. She cherishes to the end her profound and undemanding love for the novelist.

No reviewer's analysis or description, no single quotation, nothing but a complete reading of "Letter from an Unknown Woman" can give any idea of the charm of the writing in it, the subtle and delicately nuanced creation of mood, the keen penetration into human motives and desires.

The character study of the unknown woman [her identity is veiled from the writer and the reader alike] is a brilliant one. Stefan Zweig traces her development in 111 short pages from girlhood to middle age, a task, in less competent hands, that would be overwhelming. But the unknown woman emerges as vivid and real as if 1,000 pages had been devoted to her delineation.

It is impossible to communicate to the reader the tone of the novelette. It is poetic, it is gentle, it is softly gay, it is sad, it is humorous now and again, with the sort of humor that merges into the most delicate pathos.

There are times, it is true, when the reader's patience is somewhat tried by the repeated introduction of coincidence. Such minor details that occasionally jar the tone of the book are lost in the essential reality and beauty of a tale that, for its kind, is superbly moving.

"Sheba Visits Solomon" is a fantasy of a very different sort. With the skeleton of the Bible story the author constructs a tale that is brilliant, gay, light and stimulating with definitely modern accents.

Sheba, a skinny and naïve queen, comes to the court of the obese, kind-hearted, susceptible Solomon to fulfill the oracle. By mistake she succeeds in her mission, only to embark upon a career of amorous dalliance that through ignorance had hitherto been denied her.

Her waiting maid has intrigued the interest of Solomon, but is betrothed to a god whom she finally by accident discovers to be a peasant boy with whom she has eloped. The fact that her husband is not a god does not prove so disillusioning as she had expected.

Despite the seeming flippancy of the story [it is flippant with a delicious, ironic, slightly risqué humor], the characterizations of Sheba and her maid-in-waiting and Solomon are careful and effective. Both Sheba and Solomon step down with dignity and charm from pedestals. Sheba is ineffectual until she learns about beauty from Solomon's wife and from her loves, and Solomon is wise in that he is lazy and peace loving, natural and instinctively good.

The atmosphere of the east is here. The odors and sounds, tastes and sights, the entire panorama of exotic life of the royal class in the 10th century B. C. are presented with such spellbinding charm that the reader lends himself willingly to the author's magic.

Club Federation Rejects Federal Movie Censor

Seattle, Wash., June 16.—(AP)—An effort to put the General Federation of Women's Clubs on record as desiring federal supervision of motion pictures was defeated on the convention floor here today when only 15 delegates voted for the suggestion. Mrs. Maude Aldrich of Washington, D. C., offered the motion.

Arguing against the proposal, offered as an amendment to a resolution, later passed, which deplored "oversexed" themes and drinking scenes, Mrs. Ambrose N. Diehl of San Francisco declared such legislation would only mean creation of eight new political jobs at fat salaries.

She told the delegates cooperation of the federation and the motion picture industry would obtain better results, and reported definite improvement in the type of pictures produced.

Good Morning!

Timely, "The Dark Horse." Political. Probably starts a new cycle. But why look ahead with derogatory eye when the present view at United Artists' is so satisfactory?

This riotous satire on the ways of politicians bent on electing a gubernatorial candidate rejoices in everything that should spell success at the box office. It has laughs, romance, suspense, speed, he-man hero, ituful heroine, a picturesque, fast working vamp. And, for comedy purposes, there is that priceless Guy Kibbee in the titular rôle of the dumb, dark horse candidate—"Hicks from the Sticks." I would say no man COULD be as dumb as Hicks if I hadn't once known one who was.

In spite of Hicks, who, by just living and breathing, is the greatest possible detriment to his cause, he's elected to the governor's chair by an overwhelming majority who are brought into line through the tireless efforts of horsie's resourceful, brilliant and Argus-eyed campaign manager, Hal Blake.

Here you behold Warren William, who made "The Mouthpiece" the elegant number that it was, putting over another sure fire characterization. He never lets down. On his toes all the time. One of the best bets the screen has on tap.

Bette Davis does a crisply appealing piece of work as Blake's secretary sweetheart. She appears to have unusual intelligence for the reason that she distinguishes herself more in each rôle that she plays. Vivienne Osborne, a brunette this trip, gives one of her excellent performances as Blake's all-money-eating ex-wife whose conscienceless activities nearly write D-O-O-M on his affairs, political and sentimental.

Supporting rôles are played with pep and perspicacity, according especial mention to Frank McHugh's demonstration as Blake's pal, buffer, home companion, lie detector and originator. Mr. McHugh's specialty is, as you know, drunken reporter rôles, but this time the breaths he draws are all sober. He's as busy as the proverbial cranberry merchant and one-armed paperhanger combined.

"The Dark Horse" is pied with droll situations and snappy dialogue. Direction couldn't have been better.

Of one thing you're convinced as you leave the theater, i. e. governors are made—NOT born!

See you tomorrow!

SYMPHONY OF SUMMER—ICE IN TALL GLASSES

Coffee Eggnog Is New Tip to Hostess.

BY IRENE STEYSKAL.

Blended with the trills and triplets of fiddling crickets, cadenzas of whirring lawn mower, and liquid arpeggios of the wind in leafing branches comes again the recurring theme of the song of the summertime—the tinkle of ice in thin glasses.

Iced beverages of many varieties are in the repertoire of the hostess who would make of her drawing room, veranda, or garden a popular gathering place for her circle during the warm months.

Some idea of the favor accorded cold drinks in this country may be gleaned from figures recently published. More than 11 billion bottles of "soft" drinks, representing over a half billion dollars, were imbibed last year by thirsty America, the equivalent of about 91 bottles annually for every man, woman, and child in the United States. The number, no doubt, would be quadrupled if expanded to include mixed drinks sold at soda fountains and the home made concoctions, to say nothing of the staggering proportions [no pun intended] it would assume if we could add also the outlawed mint julips consumed together with their many not so soft cousins.

Fruit Juices Most Popular.

Beverages made of fruit juices lead in popularity; almost infinite is the variety of delightful combinations that can be produced by any one moved to experiment with the juices of apples, grapes, grapefruit, oranges, lemons, limes, loganberries, pineapple, cranberries, and pomegranates, to name just a few that fresh, canned or bottled are at the average housewife's command.

But for the warm days when appetites lag there is another group of cold beverages to be considered; they are the milk and egg drinks that combine with refreshing thirst quenching properties, the virtue of nourishment.

The Coffee Eggnog.

Among these one of the most festive and thoroughly satisfying is the coffee eggnog. It is made by folding into four cups of whole milk two eggs that have been beaten to a light froth, a cupful of strong black coffee into which two tablespoons of honey have been stirred, half a teaspoon of vanilla, and a cup of crushed ice. Shake the mixture well, strain, and before serving fold in four tablespoons of whipped cream, or if preferred a tablespoon of whipped cream may be placed on the top of each glass and sprinkled with a bit of grated nutmeg.

Fruit eggnogs may be made by folding into a cup of sweetened fruit juice—and the berry juices are particularly good—a well beaten egg and two large tablespoons of crushed ice. Shake well and strain before serving. A sprig of mint dipped in powdered sugar to give a frosted effect makes a pleasing garnishing.

For frosted chocolate shake together two cups of black coffee, two-thirds of a cup of chocolate sirup, and two tablespoons of chocolate or vanilla ice cream.

And for those of us who still have a wistful remembrance or two of pink pop an' pink popcorn days there is deep satisfaction to be derived from a strawberry milk shake. Shake together until frothy and light half a cup of crushed fresh strawberries (or sirup or preserves), two cups of whole milk, a few drops of vanilla extract, and a cup or a little less of crushed ice.

We Drink a Lot of Milk and It's a Fine Idea for Building Health

BY JEAN GUTHRIE.

Recently a gentleman with a fertile imagination did some mental arithmetic and announced that if all the milk produced in one year in the dairy industry in the United States came from one cow, that cow would eat in Kansas, switch off flies in Indiana and Illinois, give milk in Ohio and kick over in Pennsylvania.

While we would have preferred to have had him shift the lady along so that she gave milk instead of attracting flies in Cook county, the added statement that this milk, if placed in 40 gallon cans set side by side would circle the globe four and one-half times, gives a startling idea of the tremendous bulk of milk actually produced in this country.

Milk a Unique Food.

Milk, however, notwithstanding the amount of educational boosting it has received in the last several years, is still very little understood by most Americans. It has been used for so many centuries as a comparatively abundant, pleasantly flavored beverage, that people are slow to realize that in addition it contains more of the food materials essential for growth and health than any other one food . . . that it is the one food for which there is no effective substitute.

Yet today, with expenses being pruned down in countless families to fit a strict economy budget, milk, the item which above all others should be the last to be reduced, is frequently being dangerously cut down in the diets of children as well as grown ups. Dr. Henry C. Sherman in discussing this point, says, "Spend at least as much for milk as for meat, or for milk and cheese as for meat and fish."

But since most of us want to know not just what to eat, but why to eat it, the following, coming from Dr. P. Mabel Nelson, head of foods and nutrition at Iowa State college, Ames, Ia., does a bit of explaining.

Milk, advises Dr. Nelson, has proteins of excellent quality for growth and repair of body tissue. The minerals important for bone and blood building, are complete in their assortment except for iron which must be obtained in other foods.

Vitamins A and B, C and D are present in sufficient quantities in milk to insure health and growth if one quart is used daily by children and one pint by adults, supplemented by a generous supply of fruits, vegetables and cereals with a reasonable allowance of meat and eggs.

You Don't Have to Drink It.

All this doesn't mean, however, that we must necessarily drink our daily milk quota. For many, eating it is much more pleasant. It may come to us, according to Dr. Nelson, as sweet milk, skim milk, culture milk or sour milk; with cereal or pudding, or as butter, cheese or in ice creams.

Scores of ways present themselves for inveigling milk into cooking. Breakfast cereals may be cooked in milk and served with it, giving as much as a cup and a half of milk per serving of cereal. Rice puddings, tapioca puddings, custards, floating islands, ice cream and ices are all made with milk and form excellent desserts. Cream soups, vegetables cooked in milk, together with the whole gamut of creamed and scalloped dishes make it an easy job for the individual to obtain his daily quota from the national cow.

HERE'S A FARM THAT'S GOOD TO EAT—GELATIN

It's Just the Thing for a Children's Party.

BY PHYLLIS HAMMOND.

Do your children rebel when you mention that such and such is good for them and therefore they must eat it? The such and such usually refers to spinach, sometimes it's any sort of vegetables, and then again it may be the desserts which are not so heavily laden with sugar.

Gelatin, a well liked enough dessert by some members of the younger set, is a slippery shivery substance to be abhorred by others. Gelatin is one of the "necessaries." When your bones creak or crack, it's because that necessary gelatin like substance is not there, or a sufficient amount of it is not there. It acts more or less as a lubricant for those joints and is needed by growing children and adults alike.

How About a Farm.

For a "come-on" in the line of gelatin desserts, try serving a miniature farm. This isn't nearly so difficult as it sounds, either. Simply pour lemon or preferably lime flavored gelatin into a shallow platter and chill until firm. Sprinkle with shredded cocoanut [use about three-fourths of a cup to each package of gelatin].

Place animal crackers in the gelatin so that they stand upright. You might arrange them in groups, with all the little pigs in one corner and the horses in another. This should go over rather nicely at a children's party, and if you care to take the time a barn in one corner of the unique pasture can be made with square cookies.

Most gelatin must be soaked in cold water before it is dissolved in hot liquid. The ordinary ratio of gelatin to liquid is two tablespoons to one quart of liquid. This may vary with some recipes, however. If an electric refrigerator is being used to set the jelly it will set more quickly than in an ordinary ice box and in such cases slightly less gelatin may be used.

Here's Vegetable Ring.

Economically speaking, appetizing dishes may be made by using gelatin with left over foods. Fruits, meats, fish, and raw or cooked vegetables will make very tasty salads or desserts. This individual jellied vegetable ring is simply made and quite convenient to serve:

1 tbs. granulated gelatin soaked in ¼ cup of water.
¼ cup of cold water.
¼ cup of sugar.
¼ cup of vinegar.
2 tbs. lemon juice.
1 tsp. salt.
1 cup celery, sliced thin.
½ cup shredded cabbage.
½ cup of cooked green peas.

Dissolve soaked gelatin in boiling water. Add sugar, vinegar, lemon juice, and salt. Strain and cool. When the mixture begins to thicken add the vegetables. Turn into ring molds and chill. This salad should be served on lettuce and the centers filled with horseradish cream dressing.

HORSERADISH CREAM DRESSING.

½ cup whipping cream. 3 tbs. vinegar. ¼ tsp. salt. 2 tbs. grated horseradish.

Beat cream until it starts to thicken. Then add vinegar gradually, continuing to beat. When mixture is quite stiff, add seasonings and fold in grated horseradish.

$1 A DAY DIET FOR FAMILY OF 5 PROVES POPULAR

A "dollar a day diet" for a family of five is the cooperative offering of dairy farms and health officials in the steel mill district of Indiana. This interesting little food budget which stresses in particular the importance of milk in the family expenditure was at first intended simply as a guide to food buying among the working men in the steel fields, but has proved so practical and sound nutritionally that it is rapidly coming into demand in all parts of the country where families are fighting to keep healthy—and not just full on a limited income.

The diet is planned for a family made up of two adults and three children—ages four, six and eleven.

ICE CREAM CONE MADE ITS DEBUT BACK IN 1904

With the ice cream industry welcoming warmer weather and increased business, it is interesting to note historical facts concerning this delicacy. Popularity of ice cream was given impetus in the United States and in fact all over the world during the world's fair in St. Louis in 1904 when the ice cream cone made its appearance. Today 6,618 manufacturers see that there is no lack of ice cream in the United States and they use annually 4 billion 500 million pounds of milk to manufacture 232 million gallons of ice cream by employing more than 51,000 men.

PRUNES GRADED BY SIZE; BIGGEST 15 TO THE POUND

Prunes usually sell on the basis of size, with the largest sizes selling for the highest prices. Graded according to size, one can buy those which need only 15 or so to make a pound, up to those which require 100 to make a pound. Hence the average sized prunes are those labeled 30 to 40 or 40 to 50, meaning that one pound contains that many prunes.

IT'S BEST TO LET EXPERTS TEST MUSHROOMS

Tests for mushrooms to determine if wild kinds are edible or poisonous are best left to an expert. Studies have indicated that the cultivated varieties are safe, but that those found in the woods may pass so-called safety tests and yet be deadly. Reports indicate that it is not true that only poisonous mushrooms will tarnish a silver coin placed in the cooking utensil, or that the poisonous kinds are edible if they are cooked in salt water. Insects on mushrooms are no guide, for insects can be found on safe and unsafe types.

LABELS ON CANS PROVIDE USEFUL INFORMATION

Labels on cans of beans provide information useful to shoppers. If the can says it contains "baked beans" the law provides that these beans must have been cooked before canning, in an oven with dry heat. Boston baked and New England baked or types flavored with molasses, and have salt pork.

On the other hand, canned pork and beans are not oven baked, but are cooked with the pork by sealing in the can and processing with steam. Not all cans contain the same amount, but the label again offers this information, as food laws require the quantity of contents must be printed on the label.

Shoulder of Pork, Ham Economical Meat Buys

In its regular weekly report issued for the guidance of consumers, the committee on marketing information of the Meat Council of Chicago states: "Fresh shoulder of pork for roasting and smoked ham represent unusually economical meat buys in Chicago retail meat stores over the coming week-end. Bacon also is selling at attractive price levels."

Fresh or Canned Fruit Has All the Year Value in Diet

Fresh or canned fruit has its value in the diet all the year says an Indiana home economics expert. For variety in serving fruit she recommends using fresh fruit in season and also canned fruit. Their value lies in liberal quantities of minerals, vitamins, and fruit sugars in readily usable forms. The majority have an alkaline reaction and counteract "the acid reaction produced by other foods commonly used in the diet."

373,000 Plants Await Visitors to Arboretum

Du Page County Tract Is Museum of Nature.

BY RUTH DE YOUNG.

Joy Morton believes in his first name. He believes in it so earnestly that he has taken 400 acres of DuPage county's most beautiful hills and glades under his loving care to provide joy for you and yours.

More than this he has created a vast out of door museum where he welcomes you to study anything from a lilac bush to a ginkgo tree. An arboretum, he calls it.

And right now this arboretum is at its loveliest—a veritable fairyland where any little elf might set up housekeeping for the summer months. Every one of the 373,000 planted trees and shrubs and vines seems to be competing for a beauty prize. Wild roses dot the roadside here and there and occasionally through the foliage peeps the red tile roof of Mr. and Mrs. Morton's English country house atop Thorn hill.

It was in 1922 that Mr. Morton first invited you to come and visit these fruitful acres. If you have never accepted his invitation, plan a trip this summer, the tenth birthday of the museum, the 100th anniversary of the birth of Mr. Morton's father, J. Sterling Morton, founder of Arbor day and secretary of agriculture under Mr. Cleveland. Drive up and over the 18 miles of roadway or, if you prefer, follow one of the winding foot trails.

With Mr. Morton the aboretum is a hobby inherited from his father who planted a similar museum 40 odd years ago near Nebraska City. Joy Morton watched and studied the development of this tract. Then some years later when he saw Du Page county's gently sloping lands on frequent trips between Nebraska and Chicago, he decided to have an arboretum of his own. It was in 1910 that he started carrying forward his father's tradition and 12 years later that he officially proclaimed his tract an arboretum. During this period he has learned what immigrant plants Mother Nature will countenance in this climate and he has impressed his neighbors with the need for caring for their trees and planting more.

Go and see for yourself what he has done, providing of course, that you are a kind, considerate, and appreciative visitor. (There are plenty of foresters to keep an eye on inconsiderate guests—many of them men who otherwise would be without employment. Mr. Morton has devised a system whereby a man works until he earns $100, then leaves to give place to another more needy.)

Return to Early Principles Urged at D. A. R. Meeting

A return to the principles of George Washington was urged yesterday afternoon by Maj. T. J. J. Christian, head of military instruction at the University of Chicago, in an address before the Flag day and national defense meeting of the Chicago chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, in the Stevens hotel.

"When one is lost on a detour," Maj. Christian said, "the best thing is to go back on the road to some familiar landmark to get new bearings. In our difficulties today, we should seek a new national orientation with the flag as a landmark, standing for those early American principles for which Washington stood."

WASHINGTON SOCIETY

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., June 16.—President and Mrs. Hoover had guests dining informally with them this evening, following the former's nomination for reelection to the presidency. Mrs. Hoover received a large number of students from schools out of town, who are here for a late spring visit.

Senator David I. Walsh of Massachusetts was host to a small company at dinner last evening at the Carlton.

Miss Sophie Blanche Gladden, daughter of Mrs. Etta L. Gladden and the late James Wilson Gladden of Washington, and Charles Robert Ellis, son of Mrs. Daisy Ellis, formerly of Mattoon, Ill., now of Washington, were married this morning. The ceremony was performed in the chapel of St. Anthony's church in Brookland, the Rev. Father Sweeney officiating at 11 o'clock. Miss Harriette L. Gladden, a senior in the high school of Old Fort, O., was maid of honor for her sister.

What Is the PRICE OF BEAUTY?

Without health there can be little natural beauty. The wise woman knows that the condition of her body shows itself on her face, her complexion, and in her eyes.

She takes care to avoid constipation. This treacherous ailment frequently causes headaches, sallow skin, pimples, premature aging.

Try the pleasant "cereal way" to protect yourself from constipation. Science has proved that Kellogg's ALL-BRAN provides "bulk" to exercise the intestines, and Vitamin B to tone the intestinal tract. ALL-BRAN also furnishes iron, which helps build up the blood.

The "bulk" in this delicious cereal is much like that of lettuce. How much safer than abusing your system with pills and drugs—so often habit-forming!

Two tablespoonfuls daily will correct most types of constipation. ALL-BRAN is not habit-forming. If your intestinal trouble is not relieved this way, see your doctor.

Get the red-and-green package at your grocer's. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

2,000 Catholic Students Here for Conference

BY THE REV. JOHN EVANS.

Nearly 2,000 students from Catholic colleges and universities began arriving in the city yesterday for a three day meeting of the students' spiritual leadership convention at the Palmer house. At a preliminary conference yesterday, when the program for the convention was discussed, it was decided that the question, "Dare we be different from contemporary paganism?" would be the basis of the opening discussion this morning, as well as the theme of the entire meeting.

When the question was proposed yesterday Thomas Gavin, president of the Buffalo, N. Y., group, demurred. He asserted that the fact of the difference between Catholic youth and contemporary society is so patent to all that the question was above debate. Mr. Gavin was quickly contradicted by other members of the group and the subject was quickly adopted.

Thomas Downey of Loyola university, president of the Catholic student conference on religious activity, popularly known in college life as "Cisora," stated that free discussion would mark the sessions. There will be no set speeches, he said, but the students would develop the course of the discussions themselves.

The three day convention will be followed by a four day conference of men's directors, largely a clerical group, who lead the religious life in American Catholic colleges.

During the preliminary discussion yesterday, following Mr. Gavin's objection to the theme and underlying question of the convention, it was pointed out that while many things about Catholic students are different, yet the question, "Dare we be different ourselves?" may still be asked. Among the points of difference cited were Catholic education and training, Catholic homes, ideals "concerned not merely with earth but with eternity." Foremost among these differences the youths put "our appreciation of Mary, our mother," and "our contact with Christ through the Blessed Sacrament."

But in the challenge concerning themselves the youths will ask themselves if they dare to be different "in our firm, loyal, and reasonable faith; in our purity, our conduct, our public acceptance of the standards of Christ and of Mary; our dealings with others, and in the customs accepted in circles with lower standards."

SHE DIDN'T KNOW
A SOAP that is hard on HANDS is hard on CLOTHES

She's through with strong soaps. When little Tommy's new blouses began to "go" long before they should, she said "never again."

"I'm using Chipso now," she says.

"And why didn't I use it before?" she's asking. "I should have known I was taking a big risk with that granulated soap. Why, my hands roughened up in two days when I tried using it for dishes. No wonder it was hard on my clothes. I'll use Chipso from now on."

She's right. Chipso washes just as fast—it gets your clothes just as white—as strong granulated soap or cheap soap chips. But Chipso contains no free lye—never rots fabrics.

Why, you can use Chipso on your fine silk underwear and your sheer silk stockings with perfect safety. Chipso actually preserves the luster and color of silks. It keeps woolens soft and fluffy. And when you wash dishes with Chipso, your hands stay smooth.

So it's very easy to see why Chipso keeps cottons and linens new and strong. When you use Chipso, all your clothes wear longer.

You ought to know these facts about Strong Granulated Soaps.

Chipso—a fine quick-dissolving flake soap—is very different from strong granulated soaps. Chipso contains no free lye which weakens and rots materials. Chipso contains rich, safe soap—nothing that will fade colors and make new clothes look old before they've half worn out.

Chipso has no harsh ingredients that make hands rough and sore. Chipso's kindness to your hands is a guarantee that it is safe for your finest clothes.

Sudden Love

By ELISABETH SANXAY HOLDING

SYNOPSIS.

Esmee Sully spends her forlorn young life between the office, where she is an inefficient typist, and a dismal home. The widowed Mrs. Sully loves her children blindly, but doesn't know how to direct their spiritual or physical needs. Lew, a year older than Esmee, is mingling in bad company. Cynthia, the oldest, has been deserted by her husband. Jimmy Consadine, a crook lawyer, forces Lew, whom he has in his power, to introduce his sister. Esmee, starved for beauty and chance, is fascinated by Jimmy's grand manner, but finds him an unmanageable lover. Then she meets Michael Marriott, a dissipated young playwright. It's love at first sight. She feels his need of her is real. Returning home one evening, Esmee finds Michael waiting for her. He'd been drinking heavily. Esmee takes him home in a cab, but he has no key and can't get in. In desperation she takes him to a hotel and registers as his wife. Claire Cowley, Michael's sister, tells Esmee that Michael is engaged. But when Michael calls Esmee asks to see him. He tells her his engagement is broken; that he can't live without her, and wants to marry her. Esmee tries unsuccessfully to break with Jimmy. He accuses her of double-crossing him and threatens to have Lew sent to jail. Esmee drives out to the country with him on Sunday. He forces her to accompany him to a roadhouse, where his word is law. Michael, who has trailed Jimmy's car, breaks in and rescues her. Jimmy swears he'll have Michael killed. Michael and Esmee stop at an inn for dinner. Esmee determines to have one last happy evening with Michael and then go to Jimmy. Michael takes Esmee to spend the night at Claire's. Linnett Bromwell, Michael's former fiancée, is there and Esmee feels ill at ease.

INSTALLMENT XXIX.

A DIFFERENT HOME LIFE.

Again she had shown herself awkward, inept, pitiable.

"That's why Michael went away," Esmee thought. "He couldn't stand seeing me to be so—awful. Well, it's better like that. Better if—he can stop caring so much."

She could not make herself think that. It seemed to her the worst disaster imaginable that Michael should care less; not only worse for her, but for him. For if a love like theirs could so diminish, then there was nothing to cling to, nothing lovely and solacing and fine. There would not even be a memory for her to cherish, for if the recollection of their brief time together were not as dear to him as to her, then its beauty was gone, then it was tawdry, and cheap, and shameful.

If he is late, can you tell me about trains, please.

"I'll go up with you," said Claire, "to show you the way. It's really such a ridiculous house, full of steps and blind alleys."

"If she says anything," thought Esmee, "I can't bear it. Not now."

They mounted the stairs together, and every moment Esmee was in dread that Claire would begin, would say something more about her giving up Michael.

Claire opened the door, the bedside lamp was lit, the bed turned down, a pink crêpe de chine nightdress folded on the foot.

"Have you everything you want, Esmee?" asked Claire, and it seemed to Esmee that there was something grave, almost austere, in her voice.

"Yes, thank you!" she answered.

Still Claire lingered in the doorway. She was outside the circle of light from the shaded lamp, but the soft light in the hall touched her fair hair, made it bright, like a halo.

"Esmee," she said, "I hope you'll be very happy with Michael. Good-night."

Her attitude was not to be mistaken. She had recognized Michael's decision. If he would have this girl then she, too, would accept her, and being what she was, would accept her in honor, sincerity, and kindness. But she didn't want her. Linnett was her friend, and she was cruelly disappointed that he had abandoned Linnett for this little outsider.

"Good-night," Esmee answered, faintly.

The door closed.

"They'll all be glad—when I've gone," she thought. "It'll be better for Michael, too. But—I wish I could be dead."

Then, as she turned on the light above the dressing table, she saw a note there, addressed "Esmee."

"It's from Michael," she thought. "I don't think—I can stand any more——"

She could, though. She could endure all that she had to endure. She sat down, and tore open the envelope.

"Esmee: I never loved you so much. The whole thing is hell. You're so sweet, my little, poor darling. I can't dance with Linnett. It's horrible—impossible. They ought to see that. Damn all this bland politeness. I can't put my arm around Linnett now. It's not decent. I've got to get out. I'll see you at breakfast, Esmee. I wish to God I could stay with you. I wish there wasn't any one else anywhere. Just you. MICHAEL."

Esmee had no watch, no way of knowing the time when she waked in the morning. The sky was pallid outside, but she did not know whether that meant an early hour, or an overcast day. She did not even know what train she would have to take, or when she was expected to appear for breakfast.

She bathed, and dressed in haste, and went out of her room. The hall was dark, all the other doors were closed; she could not hear a sound anywhere. She retreated to her own room hastily, leaving the door a little ajar, and, sitting down on the bed, thought of Michael.

The birds were waking outside, an exquisite matin song, a flush was spreading over the sky; a sweet spring day was dawning, and Michael loved her. How could she believe in renunciation and anguish, she who was eighteen, and who loved Michael?

"There must be a way out!" she thought. "Perhaps if I just tell Michael everything, he'll think of a way. He's so clever. He'll think of a way to help Lew."

But he would not think of a way to save himself. She would not be able to make him believe in his own danger. He would be disdainful of Jimmy's threat.

"He doesn't know Jimmy," she thought. She knew Jimmy.

An alarm clock rang somewhere upstairs—and was quickly stifled. She heard footsteps padding above, and presently the cook came down the stairs, a stout woman, who sighed. She was followed a few moments later by the brisk, pretty young housemaid; there were sounds from below of the front door being unlocked, windows opened; the day was beginning. Claire's day, orderly, correct, and comfortable.

Mrs. Sully and Cynthia would be sleeping late that morning, with no early breakfast to be got for Esmee or Lew. In due time, Mrs. Sully would rise, in her unseemly wrapper, would go into that dreadful little kitchen, and set the coffee pot on the stove. And their day would begin, a day of careless and slovenly little meals, of the gas man or the milk man, certainly some tradesman, coming to dun for his bill. So sorry and dingy a life.

At last she heard some one on her floor get up, heard the sound of a tub running, and then Claire's voice, speaking through an open door to her husband.

"Get Michael up, won't you, Pen? He said he was going to drive Esmee into town."

"He's your brother," Cowley answered cheerfully. "I don't know where he went last night. I didn't hear him come in. If I can't get him up, and if he's not fit to drive, you'll have to make all explanations to the poor girl."

"Please try, anyhow," said Claire, as cheerful as he.

They thought Michael had been drinking.

"No," said Esmee to herself. "He said he wouldn't, any more, and he won't."

But after she had heard Claire go downstairs, and prepared to follow herself, she added:

"I don't care if he has. Perhaps sometimes when he's so upset he can't help it. It was horrible for him—with Linnett and me both here—I don't care if he has."

She went downstairs slowly, in reluctance and dread.

"This way," called Claire, at the sound of her step in the lower hall. She found Claire in a glass enclosed sun porch where the breakfast table was set; the sun made the plate and silver glitter, the spring wind fluttered the curtains.

"It's going to be a hot day," said Claire.

Claire was wearing a white blouse and green flannel skirt and, to Esmee, she looked lovelier than she had ever yet seen her, so immaculately fresh and cool and tranquil and young, yet so exquisitely poised. This was what Michael was used to, a table set with this dainty simplicity.

"Sit down!" said Claire. "I hear Pen coming—but, of course, Michael will be late."

"If he is—late—you can tell me about trains, please?"

"O, Pen will get you to the station in good time. He has to be in his office at nine, you know."

Cowley came into the room then.

"Better get Linnett," Claire suggested. "She's very poetically walking in the garden—and getting her feet wet with dew."

She could see Linnett then, walking past the window. Yet it seemed to Esmee that, all the same, Linnett wasn't right for Michael.

Former Chicago Girl Wins Film Role by Ballot

Stenographer Given Lead in 'Fraternity.'

BY GEORGE SHAFFER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Hollywood, Cal., June 16.—Dorothy Wilson, a girl who worked as a stenographer at the Paper Mills corporation, 517 South Wells street, Chicago, stepped overnight, last Tuesday, from her job at a typewriter, to become a movie leading woman. She never had done a scene of acting before.

Miss Wilson was chosen for a lead in the Radio R. K. O. film "Fraternity," a college life story, by a vote of all the employés in the studio. The ballot was to determine what pretty stenographer employed at the studio should be promoted to actress, and Miss Wilson won.

She comes originally from Minneapolis, where she was graduated from vocational high school in 1926 and worked for a couple of years as secretary in the Minneapolis Paper company, previous to her Chicago job. She came to Los Angeles in 1930 and became a stenographer at the Pathé studio. There is a proviso in her new contract as actress in which the studio stipulates that at the conclusion of "Fraternity" Dorothy must go back to her job as stenographer in the script department until the results of her first film determine whether she shall continue as an actress.

The mother, Mrs. R. J. Dixon, lives in Loretto, Minn.

Playing with Miss Wilson as principals in "Fraternity" are Ariene Judge, Eric Linden, Richard Cromwell, and John Halliday.

Eleven of the baker's dozen beauties needed for the cast in Radio's "Thirteen Women" have been cast and are at work in the film, while George Archainbaud, the director, is still looking for the rest of the 13.

W. R. Sheehan's first changes on resuming the post as general manager at Fox studio, were to name Julian Johnson, for 12 years at Paramount, as head of the Fox story department, and to announce 17 Spanish language films to be turned out during the year. He signed Catalina Barcena to star in some of them, and José Mojica as male star in others.

Charlie Chaplin got back today. He doesn't say for sure whether he will talk in his next film, himself, but during his absence in Europe and the orient, he cabled orders which resulted in his studio being equipped with electric conduits to convey the wires that the studios customarily use in sound films.

New Store to Be Opened on State Street Tomorrow

Maling Brothers, a shoe store chain, will open a new store at 231 South State street tomorrow. The store occupies two floors and is modernistically designed. It is the third shop opened by the concern within a year, and has departments for hosiery, gloves and handbags as well as shoes. The company has eight stores in the city.

THE STAGE

The Apollo theater will be the scene of the engagement of Lew Leslie's new revue, "Clowns in Clover," opening Sunday, June 26. Mr. Leslie announces the addition to his company of a mysterious dancer called Gloria, the Girl with the Purple Mask. She wears her mask offstage as well as on and is said to be so utterly incognito that even Mr. Leslie is in doubt about her real name.

"Counsellor-at-Law" will end its Chicago run tomorrow night with a record of nineteen weeks. Thus Elmer Rice's play goes into a tie with "The Green Pastures" in the Chicago stage statistics of 1931-'32.

The Theater Guild has decided not to send Bernard Shaw's play, "Too True to Be Good," on tour next fall. Beatrice Lillie's unwillingness to remain in the cast is said to be the reason.

"The Man Who Reclaimed His Head," a drama by Jean Bart, had its first American acting in Philadelphia last night. It is an ambitious production in sixteen scenes. Claude Rains of the Theater Guild's companies; Ernest Glendinning, recently seen here in "A Church Mouse" and Jean Arthur have the leading rôles. Herbert Biberman, who staged "Green Grow the Lilacs" for the Theater Guild, directed the rehearsals. This play is intended for an early autumn première in New York under the management of Arthur Hammerstein and J. Lawrence Weber.

The annual drama festival in Ann Arbor, Mich., began this week with performances of Paul Osborn's comedy, "The Vinegar Tree." Violet Kemble Cooper has the rôle originated by Mary Boland. C. C.

Easy Methods Rid Lawns of the Ant Pest

BY PAUL POTTER.

Of the many difficulties encountered by the average home gardener, perhaps the weeds and pests which infest the lawn cause the most concern. They supply the topic of many a neighborly discussion over the fence, and remedies offered match in variety those to bring about business recovery.

For instance, earthworms or ants in limited quantities are more benefit than harm to a lawn. Yet when they bring piles of earth to the surface and riddle the sod into veritable volcano craters, the time for action is at hand.

Earthworms may be controlled by applying a solution of about 2 ounces of corrosive sublimate obtained from the druggist or seedsman, in 50 gallons of water, for large lawns. A home lawn of 500 square feet will take just half this quantity. After applying with a sprinkler, a thorough hose application is desired to soak it into the ground.

Some gardeners apply the sublimate by mixing one or two ounces of it in 2 or 3 cubic feet of dry sand, scattering over an area of 800 to 1,000 square feet and watering liberally. Others report success on established lawns by mixing 10 to 15 pounds of lead arsenate with sifted dirt, applied as a top dressing and water immediately.

Paris green, mixed in equal proportions with brown sugar, often destroys a colony of ants, while powdered sugar and borax is sometimes effective in the same equalized mixture.

More extreme and certain in killing ants is the use of such fumigants as carbon bisulphide or calcium cyanide, obtained from the druggist. Stakes are driven to a depth of 10 or 12 inches at several points in the ant mound. About one-fourth of a pint of the bisulphide is poured into each and the mound covered with a piece of carpet or heavy sacking for 24 hours.

When the ants are not so concentrated, an oil can may be used to inject a small amount of fumigant into the nests. One teaspoonful of the cyanide is sufficient for each opening, if this form is used. Both are poisonous and the bisulphide is inflammable, also injuring the lawn if spilled on the turf.

On walks, driveways, or other areas coal oil effectively kills ants. It cannot be used on lawns without killing the grass.

The New Brief Sleeves Need Slender Arms

Fat Upper Portion Is Taboo.

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

Arms and elbows are pretty much in the position throats used to be in regard to clear, unblemished skin condition. Attention is concentrated on a near feature to the neglect of its immediate neighbor. With arms, it's the hands that hog the limelight. With the throat [formerly, not so much now] it was the facial skin that got all the attention.

Well, these brief little sleeves, which distinguish the frock beneath the short jacket this season, particularly, are showing arms aplenty. They'll keep at it all summer, too, from fashion's reports. Better slide on up the arm with that nourishing cream you're beautifying your hands with. And give the elbow turn an especially loving pat.

And watch those upper arms for fat accumulation! I don't know why the upper part of the arm is so popular a resting place for old man adipose and all his ornery cubits. He certainly can lay on flesh in that sector with the proverbial trowel. No pattern to the design, either, such as a hip might carry. Just hanging, quivering masses of flesh, neither decorative nor useful.

You must catch this flesh young and shake it off before the attachment gets a chance to grow. Massage, professionally given, operates with hilarious success on this loose, fatty tissue. For those who must pass up the Swedish expert's services there is always exercise.

Dieting isn't the Waterloo here. It's got to be pummelled off or worked off, somehow. And I don't know any better arm work than the good old vim-ish and vigorous pushing the hands and arms forward and back, pressing the forearm against the fleshy upper arm part to jolt the soft tissue off its nest. No use doing the movements, though, unless you do it with fat murder in your soul. Hate those great gobs of wiggling, wobbling fat and treat them as if you did.

Getting rid of superfluous hair on the forearm may be your problem. That's easy, though, with the good depilatories, wax or the other kinds, at hand. But look the arms over thoroughly now and remember that if you're going to expose them you owe them a fair exposition.

Black Evening Frock from Mirande Suggests Clever Rejuvenation Trick

BY BETTINA BEDWELL.

PARIS.—[Special.]—Not often is the last word in Paris chic a suggestion for rejuvenating an old gown. Rather, that whimsical creature known as fashion has always worked on the premise that change, and plenty of it, is the breath of life. Which was tough on the poor wolking goil. But fashions, like everything else, are adapting themselves to the crise, and the signpost that points to chic has deleted the dollar sign.

Fabrics emerge in homely, inexpensive mediums, like cottons and calicos, and double duty frocks have definitely established themselves. The evening gown, not to be outdone, has taken up the economy war cry and in today's sketch takes as its slogan the fichu, which plays an important part in smart evening fashions this summer.

This very new evening gown, with its suggestion for rehabilitating the frock that you have worn just once too often, is from Mirande. It is in black morain crêpe, and has a fitted, unbelted bodice. Its skirt, cut on the bias, is floor length and fitted through the hips, with its fullness starting just above the knees.

The white moracain crêpe fichu worn around the neck, shawl fashion, ties at the point of the neck and drapes around the bodice, tying in the center back at the waistline in a huge bow with hanging ends.

Of course, you can vary the color of the fichu to suit your gown. You might even have several different fichus—and consequently several different evening gowns.

Papal Legate Starts for Dublin to Attend Eucharist Congress

ROME, June 16. — (AP) — Carrying with him the benediction of Pope Pius on all of those who attend the Eucharistic congress, Cardinal Lorenzo Lauri, the pontiff's legate, and his party left today for Dublin, the scene of this year's Catholic gathering.

The pope's brief to the archbishop of Dublin, Edward J. Byrne, was a document of credentials for the legate, who will preside as the pope's representative, and closed with the benediction.

The document also expressed the pope's fervent conviction that the Eucharistic congress would be a world recognized manifestation of faith and devotion.

The Italian government sent a detachment of troops and a military band to do honors to the prince of the church as his party departed.

'Affectionate,' She Kisses All the Boy Friends

Then HE Comes Along and She's Sorry.

BY DORIS BLAKE.

"I am a very affectionate girl, but recently I met a young man who is idealistic. If he finds I have a habit of letting every fellow kiss me he will lose respect for me. I pretend to him that I never indulge in such things.

"Do you think this is the best way out? Or do you think it would be fairer for him to know that I'm not what he thinks? Since I let everybody except him kiss me, have I the right to his friendship at all?

"JUST NINETEEN."

Doesn't it occur to you, "Nineteen," that you could control that kissing impulse of yours? An affectionate nature is no excuse for going around kissing every Tom, Dick and Harry. That's not affection. That's promiscuity. You can't put feeling into every cheek or lip you meet unless you are one of the true-to-the-army type.

Affection isn't anything without feeling. Kisses aren't, either. So, why try to blame a pair of wayward lips on an affectionate nature?

You see now what happens. And why we so-called mid-Victorian aunties urge you girls to be decently reticent with your emotions. The Nice Man comes along. He comes with ideals. He may not preach them, or talk them. The girl senses them just the same and she senses her own lack of fineness in the same moment. The effect combined is never soothing. It's to prevent heedless youth from meeting with just such experience that we worldly wise old girls warn you against the mauling.

It's not that we're trying to curb your good times. We've sat on the sidelines and seen this kissing history repeat itself just as you offer it, "Nineteen." The time comes when you wish you hadn't been so free, when you wish you had a cleaner slate to offer.

As for walking out on the young man now, we wouldn't recommend it at all. Rather we suggest that you take a tip from this experience of yours and let it be your future guide. Suppose this young man does not turn out to be your fate, as the fortune tellers call him. Restraining the kissing impulse will be building toward a better and a happier future. There are just some facts in life that cannot be ridden down by popular adoption and this kissing bug habit is one of them.

Men keep on wanting their girls crisp and fresh and unmauled. The "as is" shopworn sign doesn't register any better today than it did when gran'pop was a boy.

Parent Must Give Lots of Time to Child

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.

We sat in an office building so far above the canyon streets that the sun was brighter and the air sweet. He was a man who had felt the pressure of business life.

"But I can't give you my ideas on raising kids," he said, "because I'm a very poor father."

"That doesn't convince me," I answered, "because it's usually the fathers who feel that way who are the good ones. It's those who are smug and know all about it that I'd distrust."

"But it's really true in my case," he said. "You see, I've never been home enough. For the first half of my youngster's life I was in a profession that kept me occupied in the afternoons and evenings. Now I live out of town and I leave home early in the mornings and conferences often keep me till past my child's bedtime. I'm not a good father," he said in a regretful voice. "I'm not with my child enough. I haven't the time to be."

Perhaps this man of affairs really couldn't have dug up some worth while ideas on raising children, as he said. But his own humble criticism of himself was a commentary on one of the things that is vital to being either a good father or mother.

You must have time for your children if you're going to mean anything in their lives. You must have actual space in your day and your night and your thoughts if you're going to know them to understand them and to be of service to them.

And as far as enjoying your children is concerned, as far as pleasure in their companionship goes—well, that passes out of the picture if you have only scraps of time and the tired-out left-overs of a busy day to give them.

BY EDWARD BURNS.

The New York Yankee battery, Charley Ruffing and Bill Dickey, yesterday did most of the entertaining for a ladies' day crowd of 33,000, the largest of the year on the south side. Largely because of the efforts of these two handsome young fellows the White Sox were slapped down, 6 to 1, in the second game of the New York-Chicago series.

Ruffing's contribution to the show for the women was the pitching of a game which included the fanning of ten zealous White Sox and his refusal to give the Chicagoans a legitimate hit until two were out in the fifth.

Mr. Fonseca Is Embarrassed.

Among the gents to whom Ruffing was especially unkind were Manager Lew Fonseca, who got two fouls in striking out three times, and Red Kress, who fanned twice and otherwise showed he had no clue as to what Ruffing was throwing. Two of Manager Lew's whiffs were performed with Fothergill on second and the other with the fat one perched on first.

Fothergill, with two doubles and a walk, led the Sox offensive. Berry made a double and a single and Sullivan got two singles. Hayes and Funk got the other hits and Funk's served to fill the bases with two out in the ninth, after which no success accrued.

Dickey's main contribution to the affair was his No. 11 homer with two on in the sixth which served, with other things, to blow Milt Gaston out of the water after a showing that had been highly creditable in the first five innings.

There was action aplenty in the first two innings, but swell defensive work kept all scoring aspirants away from the plate.

Fans Gehrig, Chapman.

The contest opened with Combs lining a double to left center, after which he went to third on Sewell's grounder to Sullivan. Ruth walked, and then Gaston fanned Gehrig and Chapman.

In the second inning Lazzeri singled with one down and was forced by Lary. Lary went to second on a wild pitch and to third on another one. With the count three balls and two strikes, Ruffing tapped to Selph for the third out.

The Sox got a lucky break in their end of the second inning, but failed in the effort to cash thereon. Fothergill got credit for a double when Lazzeri lost his fly in the sun. Fonseca fanned. Lary made a neat pickup of Kress' grounder and Sewell did a nice bit of receiving and tagging to get

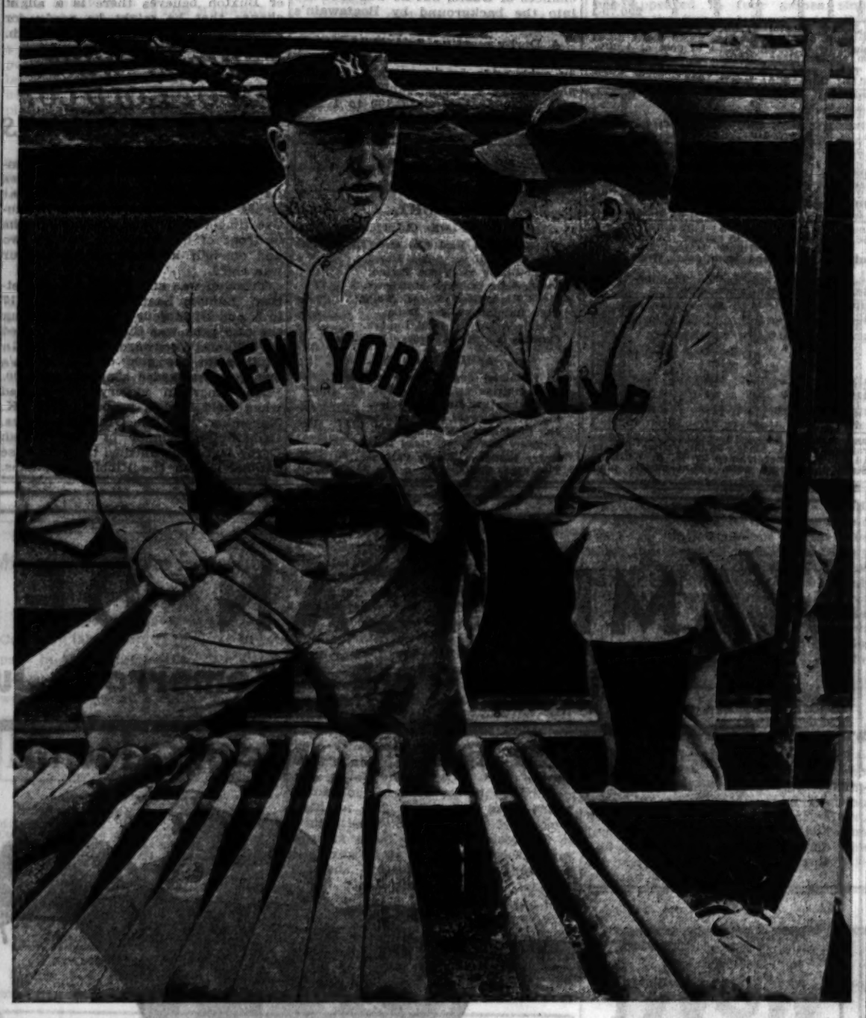
SAYS JIM TO JOE: "LET'S WIN"



Coach Jimmy Burke (left) and Manager Joe McCarthy, the board of strategy, agree the Yankees should put the White Sox in their places and that's just what happened. They picked Ruffing to do the pitching and the wisdom of this move was reflected in the 6 to 1 whipping handed the Comiskey club. Remember when they were master minding for the Cubs? GET A LOAD OF PRINCE HOTSPUR IN DERBY, FANS!

Works a Mile in 1:38 1-5; Sunmelus Beaten.

BY FRENCH LANE.

There was great activity in the camp of the American Derby candidates yesterday.

A sensational workout at Lincoln Fields by Prince Hotspur, which will run in the jacket of the Joe Leiter estate, was the most startling. Derby candidates one after another, most of them lesser lights, were going to the post at Washington Park all afternoon.

Sunmelus, the main hope of Willis Sharpe Kilmer, was beaten in the Jackson Park purse by the sensational Audley farm filly, Late Date, which isn't eligible to the Derby. But Sunmelus, with Phar Lap's old jockey, Bill Elliott in the saddle, wasn't disgraced.

Three D's Entry Out.

He showed sparkling early speed and while he was unable to withstand Late Date's challenge near the finish line, Elliott did not punish him. Otherwise Late Date's victory by two and a half lengths would not have been scored so easily. Portmanteau, a 5 year old, was third, and the sad showing of the Three D's stable pair of Rowdy Boy and Trinchera just about eliminated all hopes of a Texas triumph in the Derby. Neither was able to finish in the money and did not appear dangerous in the fight in the stretch.

Others of the Derby rank outsiders fell by the wayside when Dark Hope won the Thomas purse, which was a dash at six furlongs. They were nowhere near at the finish, for Flying Home, a filly, landed second money and another filly, Chatter Queen, wound up third.

There were reports of Osculator's fine form. This colt, which will race in the Derby for W. R. Coe of New York, was second in the Withers in New York and second in the Belmont stakes to Faireno. His backers believe he is ready now to capture one of the rich 3 year old specials.

Kay Spence, who trains the Audley farm horses, kicked himself in the seat of the pants after Late Date scored her brilliant triumph. She had been beaten a nose in the Illinois Oaks a couple of weeks ago. Spence was mad at himself because he had neglected to nominate the daughter of Hourless for the Derby.

Wow! Watch Him Go!

The railbirds and clockers who arrived early at Lincoln Fields yesterday were first amazed and then stunned at the marvelous workout turned in by Prince Hotspur. The clockers could hardly believe their watches, but there were a half dozen of the split second machines which registered the same mark. So it must have been true.

A 3 year old hasn't worked so fast as long as most old timers can remember and that includes their tune ups for the Preakness, Kentucky Derby, and other famous specials arranged for them.

Jockey A. Anderson, a long legged riding kid from Kentucky, was in the saddle and he hustled Prince Hotspur out over the first quarter in 23 seconds. Hotspur was fighting for his head by this time and he worked the half in :46 2-5 and was at the three-quarters in 1:12 2-5. Then running like a wild horse he turned the mile in 1:38 1-5. At that stage the railbirds began to tumble off the rail in their excitement. Anderson took the flying Hotspur in hand and he was pulled up at the end of a mile and an eighth in 1:52 2-5.

Boatswain Checks in.

At about the time Hotspur was showing his startling training drill, the Derby favorite, Boatswain, a son of Man o' War, was stepping off the cars at Washington Park. His traveling companion from the east was Gusto, another Derby candidate, which is owned by M. L. Schwartz, New York financier. Gusto is closely related to Boatswain, being a grandson of Man o' War. His daddy was American Flag, rated by many as the greatest of all Man o' War sons.

There is no doubt but that Boat-

Canzoneri Takes Dublinsky's Jab, Jab, Jab and the Decision

BY WILFRID SMITH.

Tony Canzoneri, lightweight champion of the world, whipped Chicago's Harry Dublinsky last night at Sparta stadium. Tony received the approval of the two judges, Ed Klein and Rube Metz, after ten furious rounds, but Dublinsky was scored the winner by Referee Dave Miller.

TONY CANZONERI.

Three thousand two hundred and forty paid to see the champion in his first Chicago appearance in nearly two years. The gross receipts for the West Side Boxing club's first show were $5,528.30.

The verdict went to the harder puncher. Dublinsky undoubtedly landed more blows. He was the aggressor after the third round, but his blows carried no threat to the sturdy Italian, who on occasion took Harry's jabs to the face in order to retaliate with left hooks to the jaw or to counter with vicious rights.

Champ Gets Only $2,000.

Neither boxer at any time was in danger of a knockout. Tony fought with slight regard for Harry's punches, while the Chicago lightweight carefully ducked Tony's swings and continually fought either at long distance or in close, where he tapped persistently at Canzoneri's midsection, but with no effect.

Canzoneri's share of the receipts was less than $2,000 and it is probable he engaged in last night's bout merely to warm up for his two championship fights in the next four weeks. His title was not at stake for Dublinsky, by the terms of the contract, came in at 136½ pounds. Tony weighed one pound less than the lightweight limit of 135 pounds.

Tony depended on countering left hooks. Frequently he shot over powerful right hand punches, but his aim was poor. Tony coasted through the first two rounds, but Harry, by aggressiveness and a flurry of left jabs, was the leader in the third.

Again Harry was the better in the fourth despite a right eye nearly closed by Tony's left hooks. Canzoneri won the fifth and sixth. Then came the seventh, the best action of the bout. Harry earned a draw by sheer number of his punches. The eighth also went to Dublinsky and Harry carried on strongly until the last round, which Tony won by taking the offensive once more.

Each of the judges awarded Canzoneri the decision by a vote of 55 to 45. Miller favored Dublinsky, 51 to 49.

Levine Stops Cheek.

It was a great night for former Golden Gloves amateur boxing champions. Johnny Baima was the only loser out of four on the program.

Paul Dazzo outclassed Mickey Cohen in the six round semi-windup. Dazzo won all the rounds and his more accurate blows had Mickey on the retreat throughout.

Sammy Levine stopped Franklin Cheek of Milwaukee in the fifth round of their six round fight. Cheek was not knocked down, but he did not fight back as Levine swarmed into him in a neutral corner, so Referee Miller halted the match.

Nick Sciabala, the third Golden Gloves battler, won the four round opener from Bobby Allen, veteran Chicago bantamweight. Nick was making his pro debut. He boxed under the management of Sammy Goldman, who also managed Canzoneri.

Sciabala last year won the Golden Gloves 118 pound title, his intercity fight against New York, and his bout at Soldiers' field with the title holder of France.

Baima lost by a technical knockout to Harry Paul of Philadelphia in five rounds. His defeat spoiled the record of the former amateurs.

Harry Schuman had no difficulty with Joe Meyers, Chicago welterweight. Schuman won all six rounds.

Golden Gloves Fans! Buy Now and Save Tax!

Thousands of Chicago boxing fans who will attend the international Golden Gloves bouts between Germany and the United States at Soldiers' field July 26 can save money by ordering their tickets immediately.

Effective next Tuesday, June 21, a 10 per cent federal tax will be placed on all tickets to sport and amusement attractions where a fee is charged.

Starting Tuesday the admission prices for the Golden Gloves bouts will be 55 cents, $1.10, $2.20 and $3.30. Persons who have ordered their tickets and those who apply before midnight Monday can obtain the same seats for 50 cents, $1, $2, and $3.

Orders are being accepted by mail and by telephone at the office of the Golden Gloves ticket manager, Tribune Tower, and at the Germania club, 108 Germania place.

The reserved seat section of Soldiers' field for the international show will accommodate 46,000. Nearly half that number are included in the 50 cent group. There are 12,000 seats in the $3 section, 7,000 in the $2, and 6,000 in the $1.

The early requests for tickets indicate the biggest crowd in the history of amateur boxing will attend.

Hooks 60 Pound Sturgeon, and Today Is Friday

Moline, Ill., June 16.—[Special.]—Clarence Vandaele of Moline today captured a shortnosed sturgeon weighing 60 pounds and 5 feet 6 inches long while fishing with hook and line in Rock river. It is among the largest of its kind ever seen here.

In the Wake of the News

SPORTS CHATTER.

REVIVED taxes on amusement admissions to help balance, if possible, the national budget, will be passed on to baseball fans, according to semi-official ukase. That, no doubt, was the intention of congress if the tax on electrical power consumption is a criterion. However, the question arises whether the ultimate consumer is not pretty well consumed.

Despite tendency to create more and more box seats and to reduce the amount of bleacher spacing, the Wake does not feel that baseball prices are high for the amusement afforded. Neither are football prices. Neither are movie admissions. Yet there is a distinct falling off in attendance all down the line. Depression is the answer. So it's simply a question of policy on the part of amusement purveyors. We're not attempting to run their business. They must judge results for themselves.

President Heydler of the National league admits attendance is affected by current conditions despite the tight pennant race. He cites that as a reason why the tax should be passed along to the patrons. Nearly everything, except governmental expenditures, have been deflated. Still, as before stated, it's for promoters to form their own conclusions.

Mr. Heydler is right, however, about that tight pennant race. See those Cubs, temporarily at least, perched at the top of the ladder. Then look at the bottom round where Cincinnati reposes. How far is it? Just about eight games difference, as baseball differences are computed. That's a close race all right, all right.

Along this line of admission charges, perhaps you have not noted that the regular price of $2.20 for general admission will prevail for the American Derby at Washington Park tomorrow, instead of the not unusual $1 raise on big stake days. Arlington Park found such a system engendered public good will and augmented attendance, and has followed it with success in the past.

To a Girl Graduate.

Congratulations to you, dear,
On this important date,
The time you worked so hard for,
The day you graduate.

I wish you joy throughout the years,
May skies above be ever blue;
I pray you know no grief or tears,
I hope your friends may all be true.

I seek in vain for a better rhyme,
No sweeter thought to send today
Than—"God bless you, Pal o' Mine,"
On your Graduation Day. Nickie.

DIZZY DEAN ASKS RELEASE; CALLS CONTRACT VOID

St. Louis, Mo., June 16.—(AP)—The eccentric Dizzy Dean, St. Louis Cardinal pitcher, today said he would seek his unconditional release on the ground he was not of age when he signed his 1932 contract.

Dean left the world champions in a huff at Philadelphia Tuesday, and returned to St. Louis today.

"My father did not sign this contract for me as he had done in previous ones," he said. "I am not 21 yet and therefore the contract has no value. I am entitled to my release."

When informed of Dean's attitude on an unconditional release, Branch Rickey, vice president, said Dean was 22 years old when he signed the contract this year.

"If Dean leaves the city and does not rejoin the club," Rickey added, "he will be severely punished."

Think Your Course Tough? This Golfer Plays 1,000!

New York, June 16.—[Special.]—Few, if any, golfers are able to boast of the record Ralph A. Kennedy of this city rounded out today at the Timber Point club, Great River, L. I. When he completed his round over the Long Island layout it marked the one thousandth different golf course he has played on during the last 22 years. Kennedy has attested cards of each course he has played. His hobby has carried him into thirty-one states and six foreign countries. Coincidentally, he celebrated his 50th birthday anniversary yesterday.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, June 16.—Burleigh Grimes, who is forever calling on old employers to show them a new line of goods, dropped in at the Polo grounds this afternoon and the Giants, who once called him one of their own, suffered accordingly. Partly because the veteran was too cunning and partly because his defense was impregnable, the Cubs registered a 2 to 1 victory which increased their first place margin to two games.

Grimes became an old man almost on the verge of needing relief near the finish, but before his 39 years began to crowd him, he actually laughed in the Giants' faces. They were able to touch him for only four scattered singles in seven innings. But in the eighth, a home run by Pinch Batter Sam Leslie brought real trouble a bit closer and in the ninth the Giants were about to swallow the old fellow entirely when, with two on base, Woody English made a sensational stop of a sure fire base hit to close the show.

Hubbell Is Amazing.

Leslie's homer wasn't sufficient to enable the Giants to go on undefeated at the Polo grounds for Bill Terry after winning their first six home games under the new manager. The Cubs' activity in the first inning took care of this. A triple by Hazen Cuyler with one on base served to promote what proved to be the total of the day's damage against Carl Lefty Hubbell. After that bad start, the angular southpaw yielded only four hits and fanned six men before being removed for a pinch hitter in the home eighth. The Cubs moved only one runner to second base in the last eight innings.

English opened the day's performance by almost tearing third base loose from its moorings with a low drive on Hubbell's first pitch. Hitting the sack confined Woody to a single instead of a double. After Herman had sacrificed, Cuyler sent the ball deep into left center and it caromed off the wall back toward center. English ran home and just about the time Cuyler was nearing third, Lindstrom recovered and cut loose with a wild return throw. Cuyler raced to the plate with what turned out to be the winning run. Stephenson then singled, but J. Moore hit into a double play.

Bad Break, That's All.

The Cubs should have been spanked for not padding their lead in the third. English led off with another single toward third. Herman walked. Prospects for going any place began to fade immediately. Cuyler tried to bunt and wound up with a strike out. Stephenson's tap to the pitcher forced Herman at second and it would have been a double play if Jackson had relayed accurately to first. Then J. Moore, to whom a southpaw is a nightmare, fanned.

Until the eighth when they finally scored, the Giants didn't even know there was a second base in the park. The first man to survive against Grimes was Hogan, who opened the third with a single. He was erased in a double play. Fullis singled with one out in the fourth, but Lindstrom fanned and Terry popped to Jurges. The third hit was Critz's scratch to Grimes after two were out in the sixth. Fullis ended this with a popup. Then Lindstrom walked in the seventh with one out, but didn't get off first base.

Trouble Looms.

Grimes disposed of two Giants in the eighth before anything of a disturbing nature arose. Koenecke batted for Verges, rolled one as far as the mound. Then Leslie, in behalf of Hubbell, turned loose his homer into the first floor of the right field stand. Critz's double into Stephenson's left field precinct put the tying run on second, but English took care of this by pegging out Fullis on a neat bounder.

Grimes' turbulent ninth started with Lindstrom's treacherous drive straight at Grimm. Terry pulled a single to right and with Home Run Ott coming up, there naturally was

U. S. CHANCES IN DAVIS CUP PLAY CALLED BRIGHT

Prentice, Team Captain, Is Optimistic.

The United States' chance of regaining the Davis cup, emblematic of world spremacy, from France are brighter than at any time since the French took it across the Atlantic five years ago, but, paradoxically, the chances of meeting France in the finals are the slimmest.

That is the opinion of Bernon S. Prentice, chairman of the Davis cup committee, who will sail for England on July 1 to captain the American team in the inter-zone finals match against the winner of the European zone.

Mr. Prentice's hopes of regaining the cup are centered chiefly in Ellsworth Vines, youthful national champion, whose playing so far this spring has been inconsistent, almost erratic. Vines now is in England, where he will play in the Wimbledon tournament next week.

Expect Vines to Improve.

"Vines, however, is a great money player," said Mr. Prentice, who is in Chicago as a delegate to the Republican convention from New Jersey. "He has played inconsistently, but I believe that with the added experience of the two English tournaments, he will steady down and play at his best in the inter-zone finals of the Davis cup play. He has always played best when the most is at stake.

"Our players have had little competition this spring and they need practice and experience badly. Except for the Australian matches the American zone matches have provided the United States team with virtually no practice. Our doubles team, Wilmer Allison and John Van Ryn, which I consider one of the best we have ever had, has played about one match a week, meeting the doubles pairs of the other American zone teams usually on Saturday afternoons. Wimbledon will supply them, too, with the necessary competition to prepare them for the French, if we meet them."

Indications are that America's opponent in the European zone will be England, but whether it is England, Japan, or Italy, Mr. Prentice expects the stiffest battle that an American team has ever had before it reaches the challenge round. If England wins the European zone finals, the outcome of the interzone finals is a tossup, he thinks.

Fear Henri Cochet.

"With La Coste off the French team, our chances against France are brighter and I believe that it's possible for us to win. But the outcome will depend largely upon our team's condition. Unless our two singles players, Vines and Francis X. Shields, are at their best, we can't hope to win. If the breaks are against us there, we haven't a chance. We would have to spot Henri Cochet two matches, and that is too great a handicap to start against. I think our doubles team can win, and if it does, an even break in the singles would give us the cup."

Roby Drivers Hold Speed Trials Today

The world's speedboat champion, Gar Wood, will arrive in Chicago this morning from his summer home in Detroit to wave the starting flags for time trials on the new Roby-Chicago speedway this afternoon in preparation for Sunday's 100 mile national championship auto race.

Stars of the auto racing fraternity, many of whom took a share of the $100,000 purse at Indianapolis Decoration day, will be at the track at 2:30 o'clock this afternoon to attempt speeds fast enough to assure a starting place Sunday. With twenty-one cars entered for the twelve starting places, the closest time trials in the history of Roby racing are predicted. Nine cars will be eliminated before the starting flag is dropped at 2 o'clock Sunday afternoon.

Frame to Make Test Sunday.

Freddy Frame, Indianapolis winner and present leader of the championship standing, will not arrive at Roby in time for the first session of time trials. Frame's tardiness assures early birds who arrive at the track Sunday morning an opportunity to see him on his qualifying lap. Other action is assured for Sunday morning, also, with several drivers granted permission to ignore today's trials and work overtime on their cars. The majority of the field will qualify today, however. The gates will open Sunday at 8 a. m.

Board Members Coming.

At least five members of the contest board of the American Automobile association, the governing body of major racing in this country, will come to Chicago for Sunday's race. They include, T. E. (Pop) Myers, vice president and general manager of the Indianapolis speedway, the referee; Eddie Edenburn, Detroit; E. Waldo Shein, Akron, O.; Eric Von Hambach, Cleveland; and A. C. Faeh, Chicago representative of the A. A. A.

Prince Hotspur Scorches Turf in Derby Drill

swain, the winner of the Withers, will be the Derby favorite. He will run in the silks of Walter M. Jeffords. He seemed the picture horse when he climbed out of his private express car. He also impressed every one with his fine condition. He appeared as if he could run a very fast clip all the way from Maine to California. He will get acquainted with the Washington Park racing strip in a short speed trial this morning and then will be ready for the question. Some easterners like the chances of Gusto, but he was crowded into the background by Boatswain's fine appearance and reputation.

A Derby starting field of 12 was in prospect last night, and it shaped up as such wide open struggle the long shot players were jubilant. They visioned a 50 to 1 or a 100 to 1 shot carrying away the rich prize.

ARLINGTON PARK TRACK FASTER; RECORDS LIKELY

Racing Strip Ready for June 27 Inaugural.

After several months of continuous work on the mile and a furlong track at Arlington Park, Roy Dickerson yesterday pronounced it faster and safer than ever. Dickerson, track superintendent and starter, has been attending the course throughout the spring and early summer with the idea of having it satisfy all the trainers, whose horses will participate in the 30 day meeting starting June 27.

Dickerson predicted several new track records.

Lady Broadcast holds the mark for the mile, 1:35 3-5. The world record for the distance over a circular course is 1:35, established by Jack High at Belmont Park. Sun Beau holds both the mile and an eighth and the mile and a quarter records, doing the former in 1:49 2-5 and the latter in 2:01 4-5, when he won the Arlington gold cup last summer.

In the sprint races the onslaught will be on the five-eighths mark of :59 made by Volta Maid, the 5½ furlongs record of 1:05 held by B'ar Hunter, Epithet's performance of three-quarters in 1:10 1-5 and the 1:22 4-5 for seven furlongs made by Knight's Call.

A little sister of the famous Gallant Knight ran in the Nancy Dean purse for 2 year olds at Washington Park yesterday. They call her Knight's Gal, but she didn't run like her illustrious brother, finishing out of the money.

The lame Economic will be sent back to New York on Sunday. Trainer Buxton believes there is a slight chance that he might be ready for Arlington's $70,000 classic next month.

TRIMDON WINS ASCOT GOLD CUP BY TWO LENGTHS

(Chicago Tribune Press Service.)

LONDON, England, June 16.—Trimdon, owned by Brig. Gen. Charles Lamton, won the gold cup event at Royal Ascot for the second consecutive time today, finishing two lengths in front of Salmon Leap in the two and one-half miles race. Ut Majeur was third.

BY BETTY ECKERSALL.

The plans being made by the Oak Brook Polo club to bring leading polo teams from Detroit, Cleveland, Toledo, Cincinnati, and Kansas City to Chicago for matches will make the city one of the polo centers of the country this summer.

Capt. M. L. Stockton, Oak Brook secretary, has mailed invitations to polo captains. Schedules are being arranged so that tournaments can be played.

Warneke Out for 2d Victory Over Giants and No. 9

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, June 16.—Lon Warneke, who gave the Giants a good trimming in the only game played during the recent series at Chicago, will be back at them in the third of the series tomorrow. It will be his ninth win—if he wins it. The Giants' pick probably will be Jim Mooney, a southpaw.

LON WARNEKE.

The bad spring weather has put a big handicap in front of whatever chances the Giants might have to win a pennant. They have had nineteen postponements, most of which must be disposed of in the form of doubleheaders. Bill Terry hardly has enough pitchers for single games.

Shanty Hogan, who rapidly is expanding to the dimensions of a bungalow, is one boy vastly pleased over the banishment of the McGraw espionage system. He can now consume his fill of ice cream and pie without bribing the waiter to enter it on the restaurant check as spinach.

Cuyler's triple to left center in the first inning hit a sign 420 feet from the plate. As soon as he saw it had gone safe he forgot all about his bum foot and tore around the bases in his old time form. There's nothing like a base hit to make the boys forget their troubles.

When Grimes reached down for Critz's tap in the sixth he jabbed his left fingers into the ground with such force that he had to take time out while Umpire Magerkurth played the part of a rubber.

Mandel Brothers and Hub Win State Street Games

Mandel Brothers defeated the Davis Company last night, 22 to 21, at Grant park in 13 innings in the State street indoor baseball league. The Hub team won from Marshall Field & Co., 9 to 3.

Sox All Upset by Crowd of 33,000; Lose to Yankees, 6-1

Trouble Starts in Third.

Gaston's second base on balls, to Combs at the outset of the third inning, enabled the Yanks to break through. After the pass Earl went to second on Sewell's smash off Hayes' glove. Fonseca had to back against the left field wall to pull down Ruth's fly and Combs took third. Gehrig singled to right, scoring Combs and putting Sewell on third. Chapman hit into a double play.

The Sox actually threatened in the fifth. With two down, Sullivan got the first legitimate single off Ruffing. Berry followed with a double along the right foul line, but Sullivan was detained some place en route and had to stop at third. Gaston was thrown out by Sewell.

Startled, perhaps, by the fact the Sox had made two hits in succession, the Yanks became brutal in the sixth. Gehrig doubled to center and stopped at third on Chapman's bunt single. Dickey then slapped his homer over the scoreboard in right center, scoring Gehrig and Chapman ahead of him. Lazzeri singled to right to make it four smacks in a row off Gaston, whereupon Milt went away and Daglia strolled on the scene. Pete let Lazzeri get to second on a wild pitch and walked Lary. Then he settled down and retired the side without further damage.

Crowd Gets Chance to Cheer.

The Sox got a run home in the sixth. Hayes singled with one down and was forced by Selph. Selph scored on Fothergill's double to center. For the second time in the game Fothergill stood on second and watched Fonseca strike out.

The Sox had some fun in the seventh, but made no runs despite two hits, a wild pitch, and a spectacular wool-gathering tableau by half of the New York cast. After Kress had been called out on strikes Sullivan knocked his second single and stopped at second as Berry reached first on an infield roller that refused to roll out of bounds while a committee waited for it to do so. Hodapp batted for Daglia and Ruffing threw one to the screen, enabling the two runners to advance a base.

Hodapp bounced a high one which, for an instant, appeared as if it might go over Ruffing's head for a single. Sullivan and Berry were running on the prospect and Sullivan pulled up half way between home and third and Berry was just off third when Ruffing pulled down the ball. Ruffing ignored the confusion on the base lines and threw out Hodapp. Gehrig also failed to notice that the two base runners still were looking about for bases on which to light, so Sullivan and Berry got back safely while the wildly partisan New York experts cried out most piteously at the drowsiness of their heroes. They started breathing again, however, when Funk flied to Ruth for the third out.

Selph Blows a Couple.

The game grew sloppy for the first time during the first of the ninth. A walk, Ruth's single, and two errors by Selph on the potential third out resulted in Yankee runs Nos. 5 and 6.

Kress contributed his second and the Sox's ninth strikeout to start the ninth, but reached first when Dickey drew an error for letting the ball get through him. Red was forced by Sullivan, after which Berry registered strikeout No. 10. Appling batted for Caraway and walked. Funk beat out a single off Gehrig's glove, filling the bases. Hayes forced Funk to end the game.

Exhibition Dates Make Gap in Sox, Yankee Pairings

Today is an open date. The Yankees will show in Milwaukee and the White Sox are to be in Waterloo, Ia., to battle the strong Mississippi Valley league team of that city. The New York-Chicago series will continue tomorrow and Sunday.

The homer which Dickey knocked in the sixth inning was the 65th Yankee homer of the year. The White Sox sluggers need only 61 to tie the Yanks in the long range department.

Pete Daglia, who relieved Gaston, has appeared in four games since joining the Sox and has yet to allow an enemy run. He has pitched eight innings in the course of the four appearances.

The extra ladies' days, granted through the generosity of President Comiskey of the White Sox, are serving a noble purpose. The gals don't squeal over futile maneuvers nearly so much as they used to. Incidentally, there were thousands in yesterday's record gathering that looked mighty purty in their nice summer finery.

Lu Blue still hangs around the Comiskey hot dog stand in mufti. It is said a couple of docs are arguing as to whether he has a cracked rib. One says "No" and the other says "Yes," and neither will relent, leaving Lu in quite a sweat.

Several players wanted to debate some with Umpires Bill Guthrie and Harry Geisel. But they are hard guys with whom to promote a debate, neither being eager to slug and neither being profane.

Kid Chocolate Too Sweet a Fighter for Bernard

Philadelphia, Pa., June 16.—(AP)—Kid Chocolate, Cuban Negro, who holds the junior lightweight championship, won a 10 round decision over Roger Bernard of Flint, Mich., tonight. Each fighter weighed one and a half pounds more than the 130 pound limit and the Cuban's title was not at stake.

Earnshaw in Series Form; A's Win, 5 to 1

St. Louis, Mo., June 16.—(AP)—George Earnshaw confined the St. Louis Browns to eight hits and checked the St. Louis winning streak as Philadelphia won today's game, 5 to 1. Meanwhile the Athletics garnered fifteen hits off Fischer and Kimsey, who hurled the last two innings.

The Browns had won ten out of the last twelve games preceding today's.

F. Schulte crashed through with a home run, his third in three days, in the first inning to give St. Louis a start, but the Athletics pounded out three runs in the second to take and hold the lead.

SENATORS BLANK TIGERS, 4-0.

Detroit, Mich., June 16.—(AP)—Allowing only one man to get past first base, Lloyd Brown turned back Detroit with five scattered hits today, and pitched Washington to a 4 to 0 victory. The game evened the current series at one all.

All the Washington runs were scored off Earl Whitehill, who pitched six innings and yielded seven hits, including a home run by Reynolds in the second with none on. Tommy Bridges and Truett Sewell worked in later innings. Joe Cronin, returning to the Senator's lineup after 12 days' absence because of an injury, batted in two runs in the sixth inning with a triple and later crossed the plate himself. Score:

Indiana Fishing Is Close at Hand and Worth While

BY BOB BECKER.

Illinois fishermen who like to combine a short automobile tour with some exercise with rod and line should not overlook northern Indiana during the summer. The Tippecanoe river country, especially from Pulaski down through Buffalo and then into the big lake country around Monticello, is a good bet for fishing. Moreover, it is scenically worthwhile.

A nonresident license costs $2.25 in Indiana. The open season on black bass, silver or white bass, rock bass, bluegills, yellow perch, pike, and crappies opened June 16. The bag limit of bass is six per day.

There are two auto routes to reach the Tippecanoe river country and Freeman and Shafer lakes near Monticello. One is by route 30 and then south on 29, which brings you into Winamac over hard roads. This route takes you to the Tippecanoe and then meanders over gravel roads, giving you a glimpse of the stream from time to time. It isn't the quickest route to Monticello, however. If you wish to hit the lakes near that town the route is 41 to Kentland and then east over 24 right into Monticello.

The Tippecanoe used to be famous for its small mouth bass fishing and still does produce some fine strings of this game fish. A few years ago when THE TRIBUNE canoe cruise traveled down the Tippecanoe we saw a live bait fisherman get some dandy bass not more than 100 yards from our camp site below Winamac. He was dropping live minows in a deep hole at a bend in the stream. Farther down the river you find the little town of Buffalo, where a bridge spans the stream.

One of the recommended fishing excursions around this place is to get into a boat about twelve miles above town and then float down through some fast water, fishing as you travel. Just below Buffalo the deep slack water begins to show in the river, as a dam has created a fine big lake above Monticello.

Indiana has stocked this lake and a sister lake below Monticello for a period of years, so that one may expect to get a string of fish. The white or silver bass has done especially well in these artificial bodies of water. When they are schooling on the surface it is quite a treat to watch the show. Sitting in your boat in the middle of the school you can see them break water all around you. Fishermen using bait casting rods and pork rind lures or fly fishermen with floating lures can have a lot of fun when the whiteys are acting up on the surface. When we were on Freeman lake the silver bass were showing around the end of June.

something akin to a panic. Ott hit one toward his favorite spot in right, but it was just an easy catch for Cuyler. Grimm hugged first to keep Terry from a possible steal and Jackson punched a hit through the spot where Grimm usually hangs out. Terry went to third on the drive. Then the portly Hogan tore off a wicked smash that English, leaning far to his left, plucked with his gloved hand to end the struggle.

WOMEN TO HOLD OLYMPIC TRACK TEST TOMORROW

Mooseheart Sends 12 to A. A. U. Meet.

Star women athletes of the central states will be seen in action tomorrow at Ogden Park in the Central A. A. U. women's track and field championships. The meet will be the semi-final Olympic trials, with those competitors who distinguish themselves becoming eligible for the final tests in July.

Outstanding among the entrants is Betty Robinson, who will be in action for the first time in a year. She has recovered from the injuries suffered in an airplane crash last year. Others in the dash events are Elsie Imhof, Lucille Francisco, Annette Rogers, Mary Terwilliger and Tidye Pickett.

Minneapolis Girl Enters.

Alice Roose of Minneapolis and Mary Jane Kidd of Danville, Ill., are among the out of town athletes.

Mooseheart will send a team of twelve girls. This is the first time that this institution even has allowed a woman's team to enter in open competition. The Milwaukee Women's Athletic club will also send in a large team.

Seeks Two Titles.

Nellie Todd has entered the 80 meter hurdles and the broad jump. Evelyn Ferrara will hurl the javelin and the discus. Genevieve Valvoda, south parks star, who is putting in a strong bid for Olympic honors, has entered the running high jump along with Annette Rogers of the Illinois Woman's Athletic club.

MURPHY, TOBIN POST LOW SCORES IN SWEDISH GOLF

Guests Card 74s; 85 Best for Members.

Two gross prizes were offered, one for class A members of the Swedish club and the other for guests. Ben Stevenson and Levi Nelson both shot 85s to tie for the members' prize. Eddie Murphy and Harry Tobin contributed the best golf of the day with 74s, but the guest prize went to Eddie, who was playing from scratch. The cards of Murphy and Tobin follow:

Schmeling, Sharkey Pound Away; Customers Apathetic

Kingston, N. Y., June 16.—[Special.]—Max Schmeling knocked off three and a half pounds in a six round workout in a packed and stuffy indoor arena here this afternoon. Rain forced him to transfer the workout indoors at the last minute, and there was not enough space to accommodate half the crowd.

MAX SCHMELING.

Among the spectators were Paulino Uzcudun and Johnny Dundee. Eddie Eagan, former amateur heavyweight champion, and Arthur Von Buelow, the manager who first brought Schmeling to America.

Schmeling boxed two rounds each with Chester Matan, and Dick Oaken. The champion fought savagely throughout, dropping the gigantic Oaken for a count.

After the workout Von Buelow declared he never saw the champion in finer condition and predicted that he will defeat Sharvey.

SHARKEY AWAITS VISITOR.

Orangeburg, N. Y., June 16.—[Special.]—Unless plans go astray there will be an important visitor at Jack Sharkey's workout tomorrow. Arthur Von Buelow, former manager of Max Schmeling, whom the world's heavyweight champion cut adrift when he felt the first touch of prosperity, is going to pay the challenger a friendly visit and perhaps give him a few inside pointers on how to lick the German lad.

When asked if he would receive Von Buelow, Sharkey, who laid off today, replied: "My camp is always open to visitors. Von Buelow will be extended the same courtesy as any other visitor who comes here. What he wants to say about Schmeling is strictly his business. What I decide to listen to is strictly mine. However, I wouldn't think much of any man who would betray any secrets of a confidential nature."

Sharkey plans to box six rounds daily beginning tomorrow. He will work Monday, the eve of the fight, as he has every other day so as to be prepared in case there is any necessity for a postponement of the fight on Tuesday night.

NOW FOR CUSTOMERS

New York, June 16.—(AP)—Madison Square Garden turned its efforts today toward luring paying customers into its new bowl on Long Island for Jack Sharkey's heavyweight title attack on Max Schmeling Tuesday night.

"You can say," announced Jimmy Johnston, manager of the Garden's fistic affairs, "that there is about $100,000 in the till right now and you can also say for me that it will be one of the greatest fights ever staged by heavyweights, one of the most magnificent, one of . . ."

The rest was drowned out in the clatter of other things, but the drive continues to resurrect from the fistic junk pile a championship battle that threatens to set a new financial low for the cauliflower depression era. While there has not been, and will not be, any change in the $23 price tag on the best ringside seats, some changes are contemplated in the acres of lower priced seats.

Slices Original Prediction.

Johnston's prediction of the probable receipts, originally $750,000, now is reduced to $400,000 with less optimistic observers doubtful that more than $300,000 worth of clients will be spread around the big structure that seats 72,000.

If the match should fail to better $200,000, the heavyweight fight game will have slipped all the way back in a financial sense to 1910, when Jim Jeffries and Jack Johnson tolled before $270,000 in cash customers at Reno, Nev.

Two years ago, when Schmeling won from Sharkey on a foul in four rounds, the receipts were $778,000, still far below the boom time mark of $2,658,000 for the second Tunney-Dempsey battle in Chicago and $1,880,000 for their first match in Philadelphia in 1926.

STECHER SIGNS FOR CLINKSTOCK MATCH TUESDAY

Joe Stecher, former heavyweight wrestling champion, signed yesterday to meet Jim Clinkstock, Oklahoma Indian, on an outdoor card Tuesday night at the Marigold Gardens, Grace street at Broadway.

Gino Garibaldi meets Jim McMillen in the windup. Other matches bring together Hans Steinke and Ernie Dusek, brother of Rudy Dusek, against opponents yet to be selected.

Stecher and Clinkstock both champion the scissors. Stecher, once known as the man with the most powerful legs in the world, is starting a comeback to regain the championship he lost in 1928.

Chicagoland Tennis Meet Opens Tomorrow

The annual Chicagoland tennis tournament, sponsored by the Evangelical Lutheran Athletic association, will open in four sections tomorrow. North division play will be held at the Kilbourne park courts, central at Garfield park, south at Calumet park and west at River Forest.

HOLD POSTAL GOLF TOURNEY.

The Chicago Postoffice Employes' association will hold its second monthly golf tournament at York Golf club, 22d street and York road, Monday. The 16 low gross players in each division will qualify to play in the subsequent match play tourneys.

SIX CREWS TAKE LAST HARD DRILL AT POUGHKEEPSIE

Poughkeepsie, N. J., June 16.—(AP)—The rowing colony staged a parade down the Hudson today in what was probably the final intensive workout before the intercollegiate regatta Monday.

Six squads covered the course against the watch, starting with Columbia early in the afternoon and winding up with Syracuse at dusk. Only Washington and Navy did not participate in the time trials, staged between thunderstorms.

Although no times were announced, it was understood that all six trials were completed in excellent time. Conditions generally were excellent with a good tide and a following wind.

Coaches started to relax rigid training pressure today. California omitted its morning workout and Navy slipped away early to visit Max Schmeling's camp at Kingston. Coach Al Ulbrickson of Washington indicated he was doubtful if he would send the Huskies over the course before race day.

The only illness in camp was reported in Massachusetts Tech's quarters where Tarbott, No. 7 in the junior varsity, is still out of the boat. Eric Lambert, stroke of the Columbia graduates' boat, preparing for the Olympic trials in July, is being treated daily at a local hospital for an infected finger.

LOTT AND HALL STOPPED BY RAIN IN TRI-STATE NET

SALTIS STOPPED BY SLAUGHTER IN 6TH ROUND

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Milwaukee, Wis., June 16.—Sammy [Kid] Slaughter, Terre Haute, Ind., Negro 160 pounder, made a punching bag out of Bud Saltis here tonight and stopped the Chicagoan in the sixth of a scheduled eight round bout on the Arcadia Athletic association card. Slaughter's left hand smashes, which he alternated with rights, had Saltis all but out in the second round. Another dose of the same attack further weakened Saltis in the fifth. Just after the sixth opened it became apparent Bud was helpless, so Referee Myron [Pinky] Mitchell stepped between the boys and halted it.

FATE OF GREIN'S BOTTLE CAPS PUT IN JURY'S HANDS

Darrow Talks in Defense of Musical Steins, Etc.

A jury in the court of Federal Judge Charles E. Woodward was called upon yesterday to decide the libel action of the government against $15,000 worth of malt sirup, bottles, caps, and other merchandise seized in a raid two years ago on the loop store of Joe Grein, now city sealer. The government seeks to prove the merchandise illegal under the Volstead act so that it may be destroyed. Judge Woodward instructed the jurors to return a sealed verdict to be opened this morning.

CLARENCE DARROW

The case was given to the jury after Attorney Clarence Darrow had made a final appeal in behalf of Grein. Attorney Darrow, making his first court appearance since the Massie trial, leaned on the jury box and addressed the jurors in a low, conversational tone.

"Home Brew Not Illegal."

"Home brew is not illegal," he told the jury, "and there is no evidence to show that this merchandise could be used for the manufacture of other stimulants."

He termed the evidence the "purest piffle" and ridiculed the attempt of the government to delve into the life of Grein and show that he once operated a saloon.

"He sold what was legal," Darrow said, "and the government got its share."

Going through the catalog which advertised the wares of Grein, Attorney Darrow commented on the articles for sale. A beer stein, he said, is safe until full, and he had contemplated the purchase of one to hang on the wall until warned away by the present case.

The Right to Musical Steins.

"If any one wants to listen to the music from a musical beer stein, why shouldn't he?" he asked the jurors. "I've even known persons who liked the radio. The government has told you that Grein sold things from which liquor could be made. You can make liquor out of hay, wheat, or most anything that's not too far gone."

Assistant United States Attorney Heber Dotson closed for the government and pointed out that Grein, as a former saloonkeeper, could not help but know the purpose for which the merchandise was to be used. Judge Woodward, in instructing the jury, pointed out that possession of liquor making materials was not enough for conviction unless there was shown the intent that they should be used for that purpose.

"L" MEN TO VOTE ON NEW PAY CUT PLAN ON MONDAY

The Chicago Rapid Transit company's revised proposal of a 10 per cent wage reduction will be submitted to the employés on Monday, it was announced yesterday by William D. Mahon, international president of the car men's union.

The announcement followed a conference of Mr. Mahon and John J. Bruce, president of the local union, with President Britton I. Budd and Vice President B. J. Fallon of the elevated lines. About 3,500 men are affected. The workers last Saturday rejected the proposal as it was then phrased.

At the beginning of the negotiations, Mr. Mahon said, the company sought a 17 per cent reduction with an agreement to extend only 30 days. Under the revised proposal, there would be a cut of 10 per cent with a provision that no man on a regular run would receive less than seven hours and forty-five minutes pay. Time and a half pay will begin after eight and a half hours. The agreement will continue for a year.

The base rate, under the contract which expired on May 31, was 79 cents an hour for motormen, and 74 cents an hour for conductors.

NEWMAN GIVES BOND ON CHARGE OF TAX EVASION

William J. Newman, millionaire contractor, who was indicted Tuesday for income tax violation, surrendered yesterday at the federal building and posted a $25,000 surety bond to secure his freedom until the case is brought to trial.

Newman, a former policeman, expressed indignation when Deputy United States Marshal Benjamin Goldberg prepared to take his fingerprints. He submitted when Goldberg explained that the prints would be returned if a verdict of not guilty is returned at the trial. Newman is charged with failure to pay taxes of $448,000 in the years of 1926, 1927, and 1928.

PROTEST ATTACK ON RUM SHIPS BY U. S. COAST GUARD

Story of Rammings Is Told by Captains.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

HALIFAX, N. S., June 16.—An official protest was made on behalf of owners and crews of two Canadian liquor carrying vessels to the Canadian secretary of state today as the result of alleged attacks and rammings 50 miles at sea by three United States coast guard cutters.

The crews of the vessels, the Mary F. Ruth and the Gonniff, charged that they were molested and attacked by the United States coast guard cutters Hermes, Daphne, and a third unidentified cutter. Both Canadian vessels exhibited damaged hulls which, they said, were inflicted by the coast guard cutters.

Attacked by Three Cutters.

Capt. Peter Johnson of the Mary F. Ruth in his protest alleged that the three coast guard boats attacked his vessel separately on three different days. One of the cutters, he said, had its name and identification marks concealed. The captain's protest said the Mary F. Ruth was first rammed by the cutter Hermes on Friday, May 27, "when, without sufficient warning, the cutter came rapidly astern, deliberately ramming the Mary F. Ruth."

The second attack, it is charged, was made on Monday, May 30, by an unidentified cutter while the Canadian vessel was taking soundings.

"The cutter made confusing maneuvers, cutting across the head and stern of the Mary F. Ruth," the statement said. "The cutter's name and identification marks were covered. In order to avoid a collision, I ordered my vessel to proceed. The cutter's crew then commenced to bombard the Mary F. Ruth with iron bolts, potatoes, eggs, and bilge water from a deck hose. These tactics were kept up at periodic intervals for 24 hours, the apparent object being to ram us."

Tells of Bombardment.

Capt. Johnson alleged that the third attack took place on Thursday, June 9. He charged that the cutter Daphne rammed the motorship and kept her bow pressing against the starboard side while officers and crew of the cutter bombarded the liquor vessel "with pots of paint, bilge water, potatoes, iron bolts, and filth of all description."

Capt. Moyle Randall of the Gonniff, in his statement to Ottawa, said his vessel was deliberately rammed by the cutter Daphne on June 10. He said there was no fog and that previously the cutter had twice attempted to ram the Gonniff.

According to Capt. Randall, the Daphne's officers and crew pelted the Gonniff with pots of paint, fuel oil, and potatoes, containing nails and screw bolts. The captain said members of his crew had hurled back the missiles. At the time of the ramming, he added, one of the Daphne's officers cast over a grappling iron in an attempt to tear down the mast and rail of the Gonniff.

"Had the weather been bolsterous, the vessel would have foundered," his statement concluded.

Denies Ships Fled.

Capt. Johnson of the Mary F. Ruth tonight scoffed at the statement of Capt. Randolff Ridgley Jr., commandant of the United States coast guard in the New York district, that the ramming of the two rum boats was the result of smoke screens laid down by the two boats which, with doused lights, were zigzagging to escape.

"We were hit in broad daylight," Capt. Johnson said. "I invite inspection by any one to see if my craft contains an apparatus for laying down a smoke screen."

LIFE TERM SLAYER PLEADS WITH COURT FOR DEATH SENTENCE

Hartford, Conn., June 16.—(AP)—Dr. Harold N. Guilfoyle was told today that the Superior court was powerless to grant his request that he be hanged for a slaying for which he is serving a life sentence.

The Hartford veterinarian based his plea on the contention that the court erred in convicting him of second degree murder when the indictment charged him with first degree murder. He was accused of slaying Mrs. Claire Kavanaugh Gaudet in 1928.

Judge Patrick B. O'Sullivan told Guilfoyle:

"Of course, I can't order you hanged, but you have no desire to be hanged, no more than I do."

"But I do," the veterinarian insisted. "Death is preferable to a life sentence. I am friendless and penniless."

Guilfoyle reiterated he was innocent and said he had presented the petition in the hope of a new trial. Judge O'Sullivan took this phase of the petition under advisement.

Fat Men!

Take This Doctor's Advice

"Gentlemen: I've repeatedly read your ads quoting testimonial letters. I have one to offer which goes them all one better. On August 22, 1931, my physical condition forced me to seek medical aid. After being alarmed by a local physician I sought and found a doctor who rates one of the leading reputations in Hudson County. On the above date I weighed 242 lbs. (only 5 ft. 4½ inches in height). Also an advanced cardiac (heart) condition (valvular), blood pressure 170. Only 36 years old.

"After a thorough examination he instructed me thusly: One teaspoonful of Kruschen Salts in warm water every morning with a diet similar to yours.

"This morning, October 21, 1931, less than 2 months I've lost 41 lbs. My present weight 198 lbs., blood pressure 138 (normal). I feel better than in years and am told I look years younger. Bernard Shapiro, Brooklyn, N. Y. October 21, 1931."

Millions of men the world over are taking the little daily dose of Kruschen because they know that it keeps them feeling fit and active—life really becomes a glorious adventure—well worth living

Get on the scales today and see how much you weigh—then get a bottle of Kruschen Salts, which costs but a trifle and will last 4 weeks. Take one half teaspoonful in a glass of hot water every morning—cut down on fatty meats and starches—persist in this method every morning and when you have finished the contents of this first bottle weigh yourself again—and know that the six mineral salts of Kruschen have presented you with glorious health.

To take off fat harmlessly and SAFELY, take Kruschen every morning — don't worry—it's the SAFE way to reduce.

But be sure for your health's sake that you ask for and get Kruschen Salts. Get them at any drug store in the world and if the results one bottle brings do not delight you—do not joyfully satisfy you—why, money back.

SUMMER JUDGE JOB IN NEW YORK LOSING APPEAL

Thirty-seven Invited; Only One Accepts.

BY TOM PETTEY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, June 16.—[Special.]—This city may have to work along with its own eight federal judges this summer and its own eight federal judges may have to forego their month's vacation in the mountains or on the seashore, for Broadway has lost its appeal to the visiting hot weather federal jurists of the south and west.

There are no pinch hitting judges in sight and the usually sought after bids are going begging. Judge John C. Knox, senior federal judge in this district, has sent out thirty-seven invitations over a period of several weeks and up until today had received only one definite acceptance. Judge Knox needed at least six visiting jurists and could have found seats for about ten during July, August, and early September.

Cases Piling Up.

There was no official explanation of the phenomena of a judge refusing several weeks in New York City at the expense of the government. Unofficially it was attributed to the fact that this city is lessening its welcome every season to its judicial visitors who are not always in tune with its hot weather sentiment on beer and prohibition enforcement.

Congressman La Guardia's attack in the house last May on New York's judicial visitors as "judicial joyriders" also may have had a depressing influence, and then the prohibition agents are piling up enough cases here to keep even enthusiastic visiting judges from enjoying much time for recreation along Broadway.

At any rate the bids are going begging this season. Right now there is only one visiting judge sitting here. He is Judge William I. Grubb of Birmingham, Ala. Judge Harry B. Anderson of Tennessee has promised to pay the town a visit and serve later in the summer.

Deny Design in Selection.

Elsewhere in the south and the west from districts where judges have been easily recruited for New York service in the past has come only notes of apology. One of the latest to send in his regrets was Judge I. M. Meeker of North Carolina. Judge Meeker has been here several times in the past and has been in the news columns each time.

In the past some critics have held that the vacation jurists have been purposely drawn from very dry districts.

This, however, has received official denial. Today it was explained that for many years it has been the practice to invite out of state judges to sit on the local benches during the summer vacation period. They were usually invited from selected districts where the court calendars were clear or almost clear. The government, it is said, bears all traveling expenses of such visiting jurists and allows them $10 a day for living expenses and is generous on "incidental expenses."

In some cases, according to Mr. La Guardia's recently published statistics, visiting judges have turned in $4,000 and $5,000 expense accounts.

UPHOLD NEW LAW LIMITING SIZE OF HIGHWAY TRUCK

Danville, Ill., June 16.—(AP)—Constitutionality of the recent law governing the length of trucks and trailers operating on Illinois highways was upheld in an opinion filed here today by three federal judges.

The law provides that after Jan. 1, 1933, no trucks more than forty feet in length may operate on Illinois highways. The maximum legal length of trucks and trailers combined is to be forty feet. At present the legal length is sixty-five feet.

More than sixty cartage firms attacked the amendment to the motor vehicle law. Most of them are engaged in interstate transportation of freight.

The opinion was signed by Federal Judges Samuel Alschuler, Walter C. Lindley, and Charles E. Woodward.

PEARSONS TELLS COURT HE CAN'T PAY ALIMONY

Harry Pearsons, former mayor of Evanston, told Judge Harry B. Miller yesterday in the Superior court that he is unable to pay the alimony of $40 a week ordered by the court. Mrs. Elizabeth Schmitt Pearsons was granted a decree of separate maintenance two months ago.

Pearsons filed a petition to reduce the alimony in which he contended that at the time of the separate maintenance hearing he had failed to make a proper showing of the reduction of his income within the last two years. He formerly had accumulated considerable money in real estate deals. Judge Miller referred the matter to a master in chancery.

Mrs. Pearsons charged in her suit that following their secret marriage her husband had refused to acknowledge her publicly as his wife.

35 POLICEMEN ADDED TO FORCE IN WEST PARKS

Thirty-five new policemen have been added to the west park force within the last ten days, it was revealed yesterday by W. R. James, president of the park board. The men were selected from a civil service list of 146 who passed examinations recently.

Park officials said that the rookie policemen would be paid in the same manner as other park employés, which is by tax anticipation warrants, until cash is obtained. The employés of the system have received pay checks for only one month out of the last eleven.

The reason for the addition, the commissioners explained, was that no new men have been taken on in the last three years, and the force had been greatly depleted by resignations, pensions and deaths.

KILLS SELF IN HOSPITAL.

John Bennis, 35 years old, 4838 South Wabash avenue, a Negro, shot and killed himself in the view of a dozen other patients yesterday in the waiting room of the Hines Memorial hospital as he was waiting treatment for a nervous disorder.

F. VAN EEDEN, FAMOUS DUTCH POET, IS DEAD

[Copyright: 1932: By the New York Times.]

THE HAGUE, June 16.—Frederick Van Eeden, the poet, is dead.

Long before the bolshevik revolution Dr. Van Eeden, poet and physician, was also a practical economist. About thirty years ago he established in Holland a model community which he called Walden in tribute to Henry Thoreau. All types of idlers and adventurers flocked to Walden at first, but from this material he produced an army of industrious, satisfied citizens. The later difficulties of the colony were attributed by its founder to lack of a capable administrator.

On his visits to the United States, beginning in 1899, Dr. Van Eeden delivered many lectures on his sociological theories. He was the son of a Dutch tulip grower and botanist.

INDICT WOMAN WITH SLAYERS OF POLICEMAN

Mrs. Adriana Tersler, 40 years old, operator of a rooming house at 1349 West Van Buren street, and Alanson D. Cook, 28, were reported charged with being accessories to the murder of Policeman James J. Caplis in true bills voted yesterday by the grand jury. Caplis was shot to death during an attempted robbery of the Beach View Gardens, 804 Wilson avenue, on Dec. 21, 1931.

Frank [Red] Freeman, leader of four hoodlums sentenced for the murder, lived at the Tersler home. Mrs. Tersler and Cook, her employé, had knowledge of the murder and shielded the gang, the state charged. Freeman is under sentence of 99 years and other members of the gang have been given sentences varying from 14 to 50 years.

SECURES TITLE TO MADISON AND LAVERGNE BLOCK

Final Step Taken in Its Reorganization.

If you have a defaulted real estate bond and haven't been able to get the desired information regarding it from the bondholders' committee or from other sources, The Tribune may be of assistance to you. "Write to "The Tribune Real Estate Bond Service, Chicago Tribune." Don't ask for information regarding more than one issue at a time. Give name of underwriter and full title of the bond. Inquiries must be accompanied by stamped, self-addressed envelope for personal reply.

BY AL CHASE.

Harold R. Weinacker yesterday took title to the three story Madison-Lavergne building, at the northwest corner of Madison street and Lavergne avenue, in behalf of a syndicate headed by George Donnersberger. The property was conveyed by the Madison and Lavergne Building corporation and others by master's deed. This is the final step in the reorganization of the property, which was financed by an H. O. Stone & Co. $350,000 first mortgage bond issue, paid down to $270,000.

AVERY BRUNDAGE.

All of this $270,000 was due March 1, 1930, and defaulted on that date. About half of the bonds of this issue were held by a bank as collateral on an H. O. Stone & Co. loan. On Feb. 1, 1931, the bondholders' protective committee sold all the bonds represented by it at a price which yielded the bondholders $74 in cash per $100 of bonds, according to Avery Brundage, chairman of the committee.

Calls It Fair Settlement.

"The purchaser of the bonds paid all commissions, fees, and committee charges," said Mr. Brundage. "In the opinion of the committee this was a very fair settlement considering that there was over $30,000 due for taxes, that the building was in a poor state of repair and that the property would probably be tied up for two or three years before the bondholders could gain possession."

The building contains eleven stores facing on Madison street and 104 unfurnished apartments. The new syndicate owners are contemplating a stock issue of $300,000. The bonds have been canceled. Joseph D. Daly was attorney in the transaction.

6751 Jeffery Building.

Morgan L. Fitch, receiver for the 6751 Jeffery building, reports $2,614 cash on hand on May 6, 1932. Following is his statement of receipts and disbursements from Jan. 1, 1932, to May 6, 1932:

Receipts:
Gross income	$10,405
Disbursements:
Operating expenses	$6,702
1929 general taxes	789
Fees of receiver's lawyers	200
Receiver's fees	100
Total disbursements	7,791
Cash in receiver's hands May 6, 1932	$2,614

Walter C. Palmer, secretary of the bondholders' protective committee, states that the occupancy of the building on May 1, 1932, was 90.24 per cent. This was a Lackner, Butz & Co. bond issue of $225,000, at 6½ per cent, since paid down to $221,500.

Luella Building.

The West Side Trust and Savings bank, receiver for the Luella building, at the southeast corner of East 71st street and Luella avenue, yesterday reported through T. E. Williams, assistant secretary of the bondholders' protective committee, that there was $617 cash on hand May 31, 1932. In a statement of receipts and disbursements for the period from Jan. 12, 1932, to May 31, 1932, gross receipts are given as $2,185. Operating expense was $936, and insurance, $632. This leaves a cash balance on May 31 of $617.

This was a Holzer, Inc., first mortgage bond issue of $155,000, at 6½ per cent, reduced to $133,500. The building is leased at a flat rental of $300 per month for use as a hotel. The annual gross income estimated by the underwriter at the time of issue was $33,420.

WORLD'S GRAIN MARKET NEWS

All bulges in the wheat prices brought out selling by the largest buyers of Wednesday. There also was profit taking by houses with eastern connections. Traders who believe that many of the leading stocks now selling at record low prices are to be advanced argue that in such a case wheat and other grain prices should work higher.

Those who have placed confidence in the stock market gradually bringing prosperity to agricultural interests are taking advantage of breaks to accumulate wheat, and take profits on advances, believing that it is a little early to look for a big bull market. Aside from this faction in the wheat market there is an undercurrent of bearishness based on the belief that there is too much wheat in North America and cling to the idea that prices must get down to a world's parity before there can be permanent good on the buying side and are only trading in and out.

At this time last year July corn was 10c premium over December. At present July is 2¼c and September ¼c under the December. The latter means new crop which is making an excellent start and promises to make a big crop. With good stocks back in the country and no enthusiasm on the part of buyers in general there is a tendency to sell December short on bulges.

INSIDE STORY ON FRENCH GOLD DEMANDS ON U. S.

Americans Outsmart Paris Bankers.

BY O. A. MATHER.

The "inside" story concerning the most recent and heavy withdrawals of gold from the United States by the Bank of France was told in La Salle street yesterday. And for once it appears that American financiers outsmarted the French bankers and statesmen, who for some time had adopted a rather patronizing attitude toward this country.

The story goes back to last September, when spokesmen for the Bank of France informed the New York Federal Reserve bank and reserve board officials that France would be compelled to convert its large balances in the United States into gold and take it home. The reason for this action, as so regretfully explained by the French, was that considerable French balances had been tied up when England suspended the gold standard and the Bank of France wanted to replenish reserves by drawing gold from the United States.

Laval's Visit Recalled.

French balances in this country then were estimated at more than a billion dollars. Sudden withdrawal of such a vast sum was calculated to disrupt American finance. So there were conferences and the well remembered visit of the French premier to this country and his negotiations with President Hoover and reserve board officials. Just what Premier Laval obtained has never been made public, but at all events the French were mollified to the extent of agreeing to withdraw gold gradually.

According to the story, American financiers were forced to eat humble pie while the French held the whip hand. Although the French attitude rankled, they decided to bide their time. Throughout the winter months the Bank of France steadily cashed in its balances and withdrew gold. The passage of the Glass-Steagall bill creating a larger supply of "free gold" in our reserve system, which means gold not needed to back up paper currency, was the first real alleviation of the French threat. However, France still continued to withdraw gold.

Financiers Decide to Act.

Last week the American financiers decided the time was ripe to end the adverse psychological effect of the constant outflow of gold from this country. The Bank of France had cashed in the larger part of its balances. So officials of the New York reserve bank suggested that the remaining French balances be converted into gold and "earmarked" for shipment. In this way the remaining French balances would be deducted from our total gold stock at one time, instead of dragging on from day to day. The Americans reinforced their suggestion by removing a preferential interest rate previously granted to the Bank of France and other European central banks, whereby they were paid ½ per cent instead of the one-half of ½ per cent allowed to other depositors.

The Bank of France agreed to the plan and immediately the American bankers let it be known to the world that France had got practically all the gold that it could take from this country, that French influence in finance and international politics was ended, as far as this country was concerned.

A Bit Chagrined.

As the story ends, the French financiers didn't quite anticipate such a "declaration of independence" and were a bit chagrined.

A sequel to the story was written yesterday when the American gold stock showed the first substantial gain in months. At the same time, the dollar surged upward again in the exchange market to a rate level that made gold exports unprofitable. There were exports of gold amounting to $2,102,400 to France and $6,002,500 to Switzerland, but these were virtually offset by a decrease of $5,097,400 in gold held under earmark for foreign account. Moreover, gold amounting to $5,172,000 was received from Japan. So our total gold stock gained $5,164,100 for the day.

U. S. GOLD STOCK

Despite the long drain on our gold stock, it still stood at $3,909,000,000 on Wednesday, according to the weekly statement of the federal reserve board. The net loss in the last week was $76,000,000. Total money in circulation is $5,467,000,000. Therefore, our currency had gold backing exceeding 71 per cent.

While the credit expansion program of the federal reserve system is expected to continue until the additional credit begins to find its way into commercial channels, the ending of the gold outflow may permit the reserve banks to modify their purchases of government bonds in order to expand credit. The banks reduced their purchases in the last week to $47,640,000, but furnished additional credit by purchasing $29,944,000 of bankers' acceptances. However, the member banks reduced their borrowings at the reserve banks by $5,672,000 and their reserve accounts declined $10,430,000.

Note Circulation Gains.

Federal reserve note circulation increased $15,630,000 to a total of $2,576,799,000. Gold reserves declined $65,766,000 to a total of $2,561,195,000. The ratio of total reserves to liabilities eased to 67.9 per cent, compared with 69.4 per cent last week.

The New York Reserve bank made no change in its 3 per cent rediscount rate yesterday.

The reserve board's weekly report on brokers' loans showed an increase of $29,000,000, bringing the total to $402,000,000. This, however, is $1,017,000,000 below the total of a year ago. The increase in the last week was entirely the result of the New York banks expanding their own loans.

House Votes More Wheat for Destitute

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., June 16.—The house of representatives today voted more farm board wheat for the relief of destitution. This time cotton was added.

The house adopted the Fulmer resolution turning over to the American Red Cross and affiliated organizations 40,000,000 bushels of the wheat and 500,000 bales of the cotton now held by the farm board's Grain and Cotton stabilization corporations, to be distributed for the relief of urban and farm destitute.

Vote Reveals House Sentiment.

There was no record vote on the adoption of the resolution. A motion to recommit the measure, however, was voted down, 185 to 64, over the protests of wheat state members. They objected, during the debate, to allowing the wheat to be exchanged, claiming such a procedure would further depress the price of the grain and do injury to their already suffering wheat farmer constituents.

Early last March the house, by the overwhelming vote of 344 to 2, gave 40,000,000 bushels of wheat to the unemployed, through the Red Cross, but no cotton was authorized in that legislation. Today's bill brings the total amount of wheat to be taken from the farm board's store to eighty million bushels. At present the board holds about 94 million bushels of wheat and 1,300,000 bales of cotton.

Provides Method of Barter.

Both the wheat and cotton, under the Fulmer bill, may be processed or exchanged for food and clothing, provided that the cotton be bartered only for clothing made of cotton. The grain, in addition, may be used or exchanged for feed for live stock.

The farm board, under the bill, will bear the cost of the wheat and cotton. It is directed to cancel so much of its loans to the stabilization corporations as will compensate for the grain and cotton, and to deduct the amount of such cancellations from its own revolving fund.

According to the committee on agriculture which reported out the resolution, 25,000,000 bushels of the 40,000,000 bushels of wheat authorized last March have been used up, with indications that the entire allotment will have been consumed by Sept. 1.

Board's Vast Holdings.

Holdings of wheat by the federal farm board are about 88,500,000 bu of cash grain and 25,000,000 to 30,000,000 bu futures as reported by Chairman Stone. Included in the holdings are 10,000,000 bu of Red Cross wheat that has not been taken up.

Mr. Stone is disappointed that the board is not granted credit for the sale of wheat holdings before the end of the old crop year which expires July 1. He says that if congress had provided export credit the board might have sold a considerable quantity to China.

Attacks Farm Board.

Characterizing the federal farm board as "an organization backed by treasury money engaged in the direct merchandising of cotton," J. W. Garrow of the American Cotton Shippers association today told the so-called Shannon committee, investigating government competition with private business, that if it intends to put an end to federal invasion of the field of private enterprise it might well start with legislation to abolish the farm board.

"In actual practice," Mr. Garrow asserted, "the cotton stabilization operations of the farm board have developed into a method whereby this bureau has paid the debts of cotton cooperatives that have failed to observe the principles of economy, and a further result has been the launching of a governmental bureau in the cotton business under the name of the stabilization corporation."

Shipbuilding Assailed.

Government shipbuilding also came in for criticism at today's hearing before the committee, when H. G. Smith, president of the National Council of American Shipbuilders, declared that out of some 295 million dollars' worth of shipbuilding done during the last decade by the government, about 155 million dollars' worth was done in government shipyards, thereby taking that volume of business from private yards.

"I think this policy is all wrong," Mr. Smith declared, "because these naval vessels are built from funds raised by taxes and when the vessels are built by the government it is just taking that large volume of business from private industry on which taxes are paid."

Representative Robert Bacon (Rep., N. Y.) lodged a protest with the committee against the navy's policy of manufacturing its own clothing. He had been studying the situation for several years, said Mr. Bacon, and he took serious exception with the contention of the navy department that it can manufacture its own uniforms for less than it would cost to obtain them from private manufacturers.

Insull Firm to Liquidate Employes' Stock Pool

Public Service Company of Northern Illinois has notified subscribers to the employes' investment fund that the trust is being liquidated and subscribers will be repaid their subscriptions in full. Payments will be made in ten yearly installments, according to the plan. Subscribers will be paid interest on balances until the trust is completely liquidated. The arrangement is similar to that recently announced by the Commonwealth Edison company. According to present plans the funds will be retired by 1942.

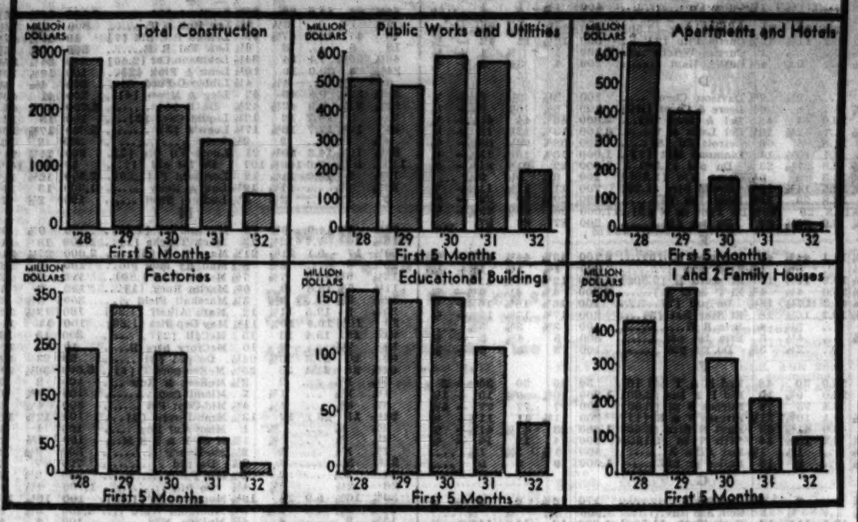
Value of Building Contracts in the First Five Months for Five Years Compared



WHO WILL PAY TAXES AND HOW GIVEN IN DETAIL

Effect on Profits Is Analyzed.

New York, June 16.—How the new tax bill will affect corporation profits is analyzed as follows by the Standard Statistics company:

AUTOMOBILES—The 3 per cent impost on passenger cars, and 2 per cent on trucks, will doubtless be passed along to consumers, as was the case formerly when this tax was levied.

CHEWING GUM—The 2 per cent tax will probably be borne by retailers.

COPPER—The impost of 4 cents per pound on imports will serve to shut out foreign low cost metal from domestic markets. Steps are being taken whereby metal ordinarily refined in this country can be imported under bond and reexported free of duty, avoiding the need of new refining facilities outside of the United States.

MATCHES—Tax of 2 cents per 1,000 [one-half cent per 1,000 on paper matches] will probably be distributed between manufacturers and distributors, with the result that profits would be affected only slightly.

MECHANICAL REFRIGERATORS—The 5 per cent tax will amount to much less than recent price reductions by leading manufacturers, and can probably be passed on without materially restricting sales.

Tax on Amusement.

MOTION PICTURES AND THEATERS—Tax of 10 per cent on admissions over 40 cents will undoubtedly serve to curtail box office receipts in some measure, although the average price of admission to movie houses is only 35 cents.

PETROLEUM PRODUCTS—Tax of 1 cent per gallon on domestic sales of gasoline and 4 cents per gallon on lubricating oil probably will be passed on to the consumer, with little adverse influence on consumption. Import levies of 2½ cents per gallon on gasoline, 4 cents per gallon on lubricating oil and one-half cent per gallon on crude and derivatives other than those mentioned are likely to restrict imports and result in shifts in the international markets.

PIPE LINES—The tax of 4 per cent on the amounts charged to shippers would curtail net earnings of pipe line companies.

RADIO—Tax of 5 per cent on producers' sales of receiving sets will restrict profits.

SOFT DRINKS—The tax of 2 cents per gallon would amount to ½ cent per quart, or ¼ cent per pint. Soft drink syrups will be taxed 6 cents per gallon. Added prices could be passed along to jobbers and dealers in most cases.

TIRES—The 2¼ cents a pound tax on casings and 4 cents a pound on tubes will be passed on to the purchaser, according to present opinion in the trade, in the form of slightly higher prices, so that present low profit margins will not be further curtailed.

Toilet Preparations.

TOILET PREPARATIONS AND COSMETICS—A tax of 10 per cent is levied on producers' sales of all articles, except mouth washes, dentrifices and toilet soaps, upon which the impost is 5 per cent. Manufacturers must absorb a good portion of the tax.

UTILITIES—Impost of 3 per cent of the amount billed for consumption of electrical energy will be paid by domestic and commercial users; industrial power sales are exempt. The charge is not expected materially to affect demand for current. Telephone, telegraph and radio communications concerns, however, are more seriously affected. Telephone calls costing between 50 cents and $1 will be taxed 10 cents; calls costing $1 to $2 will be taxed 15 cents, and calls costing $2 or more will be taxed 20 cents. Telegraph dispatches will be taxed 5 per cent of the amount charged, and cable and radio messages, 10 cents. While it can logically be argued that the more urgent messages will be sent regardless of increased price, it is likely that some business will be lost.

ANOTHER COMPANY PUTS ITS EMPLOYES ON FIVE DAY WEEK

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, June 16.—Impetus was given today to the growing movement for a shorter working day for industrial and railroad employes by the announcement of the Ethyl Gasoline corporation that it had adopted a five day week for its entire personnel, that Procter & Gamble are contemplating a shorter working schedule and that the eastern railroads will make a test of the proposed six hour working day for their operatives.

The action of the Ethyl Gasoline corporation, which is owned jointly by the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey and the General Motors corporation, follows a similar move recently announced by Walter Teagle of the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey in respect to a five day week for that company's employes.

In announcing the adoption of the five day week, E. W. Webb, president of Ethyl Gasoline corporation, said the change effective July 1 would apply to the entire organization.

"The action of the company was taken," it was said, "to meet the changed conditions of industry, which demand a wider diffusion of the service of labor without total expense in industry. Under the plan the income of each employé will be reduced by one-eleventh, which corresponds to the reduction in the number of working hours.

"Except as above stated," according to the announcement, "the corporation will continue to function and conduct its business as heretofore."

Reports from Cincinnati indicate that Procter & Gamble will announce presently a revision of its present forty-eight week a year guaranteed employment plan to thirty-six weeks. The present plan was placed in effect Aug. 1, 1923.

The Humble Oil and Refining company and Humble Pipe Line company will adopt a five day week for all employés effective July 1. They are Standard Oil subsidiaries.

COTTON MART TO CLOSE JULY 2D IF CONGRESS QUITS

New York, June 16.—(AP)—The board of managers of the New York Cotton exchange took an unusual action today in voting a holiday on July 2 "contingent on adjournment of congress in the interim."

Since July 2 is the Saturday preceding Independence day, members of the exchange had wished to forego the half day session. While no formal explanation of making the Saturday closing contingent upon adjournment of congress was made, it was understood the managers felt that a holiday would be undesirable with legislative uncertainties still hanging over the market.

It has been pointed out in cotton circles that the Liverpool market will be open for a half day on July 2 and will be open on July 4 as well, so that a Saturday closing here would give Liverpool a considerable advantage over the American market in discounting any legislative developments here were congress in session.

United Drug Extends Time Limit on Exchange Offer

The United Drug company, a subsidiary of Drug, Inc., announced a day to day extension of the time limit in which Owl Drug company preferred stock holders may deposit their stock in exchange for Drug, Inc., stock, with the exchange privilege definitely to expire July 14.

HARTMAN CO. WILL CARRY ON UNDER RECEIVERS

Following the institution of receivership proceedings against the Hartman Furniture and Carpet company and the Hartman corporation in the federal court yesterday Martin L. Straus and Elias Mayer were appointed co-receivers by Judge Wilkerson. Mr. Straus and Mr. Mayer are president and general counsel, respectively, of the companies which operate a chain of furniture stores in this and other cities.

A statement issued by the co-receivers follows:

"The equity receivership proceedings instituted before Judge James H. Wilkerson against the Hartman Furniture and Carpet company and the Hartman corporation were consented to by both parties. These proceedings will protect and conserve the best interests of the corporation's creditors and stockholders. There will be no interruption in the operation of the business, as both companies have ample working capital with which to operate under the receivership.

"The assets of the companies are estimated to be in excess of nine million dollars and their liabilities less than four million dollars.

The receivership action was filed by the law firm of Schwartz & Cooper on behalf of three creditors headed by A. A. Witz & Co. Their claims are estimated at around $1,000.

RAILWAYS REDUCE FARES FOR JULY FOURTH TRAVEL

The comfort, speed and safety of train travel at fares cheaper than any other method of transportation will be the railroads' offering to the public over the coming Fourth of July holidays, according to H. W. Siddall, chairman of the Western Passenger association, in announcing reduced fares for the annual holiday. Round trip tickets will be on sale by all railroads to all points west, north, northwest, southwest and southeast of Chicago. The first dates of sale will be Thursday, June 30, with return limit of July 12.

J. R. Leavell Is Elected Int'l Harvester Director

The directors of the International Harvester company at their regular meeting yesterday elected James R. Leavell, president of the Continental Illinois Bank and Trust company, a member of the board to succeed Arthur Reynolds, who had resigned on account of removal of his residence to California.

The directors also elected John Stuart, president of the Quaker Oats company, and William S. Elliott, general counsel of the Harvester company, as directors to fill vacancies that had existed since the death of Thomas D. Jones and Henry B. Utley.

Gold Found Once More in World Purse

New York, June 16.—(AP)—Bankers say that with the possible exception of Germany every leading nation now has a sufficient supply of gold bullion to enter into a revived world trade when that revival comes.

Since mid-September, 1931, the United States has returned $1,100,000,000 of gold to Europe, gold that belonged to Europe but had been placed in safe keeping here. Simultaneously, the 11 principal European nations have increased their holdings of gold by about the same amount.

Allowing for minor adjustments, and an exception in Germany's case, each nation now has its full supply of gold tucked away in the vaults of its central bank. There remains only a meager smattering of foreign balances—mostly British—in this country which can be recalled.

Strain of Withdrawals.

The manner in which this vast gold flow has been taken and redistributed by Europe, is shown in a study of gold holdings of principal European banks, for Sept. 17, 1931, when the movement began, and June 8, 1932, the last figures available.

France's gold holdings increased roughly from $2,340,000,000 to $3,205,000,000, or $865,000,000; Holland from $270,000,000 to $300,000,000, a gain of $120,000,000; Belgium from $230,000,000 to $350,000,000, a gain or $120,000,000; Switzerland from $165,000,000 to $400,000,000, a gain of $235,000,000, and Italy from $290,000,000 to $300,000,000, a gain of $10,000,000.

Nations with Losses.

Small losses were suffered by countries affected by the pound sterling's eviction from the gold standard. Gold stocks of England declined from $630,000,000 to $660,000,000, off $20,000,000; Sweden from $60,000,000 to $55,000,000, off $5,000,000; Norway from $40,000,000 to $30,000,000, off $10,000,000, and Denmark from $45,000,000 to $40,000,000, off $5,000,000. Germany's loss was severest, from $315,000,000 to $185,000,000, off $130,000,000.

However, the net gain for Europe as a whole was $1,175,000,000, so bankers point out, and this has placed European countries in position at last to finance and sustain international commerce when it reappears.

SWIFT ISSUE IS SPECULATIVE FAVORITE HERE

Interest centered in Swift International shares on the Chicago exchange yesterday. The issue commanded a price above 17 for the first time in several weeks on active dealings. Nearly 4,000 shares of the stock crossed the tape during the day. Total transactions amounted to 22,000 shares.

Strength in the Swift issue was credited to belated recognition of the current favorable earnings of the company and the prospect that directors will vote to maintain the present dividend rate in the near future. The heavy dealing in Swift International failed to stir any unusual activity in Swift & Co. stock which was quoted at its previous price of 10 on light sales.

Shares of the Chicago utility operating companies were slightly higher but trading was dull. Edison forged a 1 point gain on transactions of 2,300 shares and Public Service no par also added a point.

BALDWIN WORKS REPORTS 12 MO. LOSS OF $4,426,895

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, June 16.—The Baldwin Locomotive works released today its operating statement for the twelve months ended March 31, 1932, showing a consolidated net loss of $4,426,895 after interest, taxes, depreciation and other charges. The previous report covered the year ended Dec. 31, 1931, and showed net loss of $4,122,759.

In issuing its latest report Baldwin Locomotive, one of the two principal companies making steam locomotives, is departing from its usual practice of reporting earnings for the calendar year only.

Several other companies whose shares are listed on the stock exchange and whose operating statements previously covered only the calendar year have adopted the practice of reporting for the year ended as of the most recent quarter. In the case of Baldwin, no comparative figures with the preceding period are available.

Sales of the company for the twelve months ended March 31 were $17,689,359, and for the year 1931 the total was $20,836,356.

For 12 months ending May 31, net earnings applicable to common stock and reserves aggregated $15,314,794, compared with $29,243,490 for the previous 12 months.

BY FRED HARVEY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, June 16.—The stock market forged slowly ahead today in a drab session featured only by a mild flurry in rail shares during the morning. The absence of any selling pressure of importance throughout the list was the most hopeful sign of the day. The volume of trading fell off to 900,000 shares and at the close the market was easy, yielding fractionally on some of its earlier gains.

The trading fraternity showed only minor interest in the activities at Chicago, which included the naming of a Republican candidate for President and Vice President. The house bonus vote received scant notice, for the financial community feels that it is doomed in the senate. The keynote of the Lausanne conference spoken by the British premier was just another speech to the financial district. The traders were sitting tight, waiting for actual developments.

Swing Toward Rails.

The swing toward the railroad shares gave rise to the belief that the market is receiving a stronger and higher grade quality of support than it has in months. The rails as a group today managed to push through to new high ground, bettering their prices of June 4, but failed to hold all their gains.

New York Central touched 14¼ and closed at 13⅞, up a point; Pennsylvania climbed to 9½, but couldn't hold there and closed off ⅛ of a point on the day's trading; Union Pacific was up, Missouri, Kansas and Texas gained, so did Santa Fé, Chesapeake and Ohio, Southern Pacific and a lot of others.

Public utilities moved forward fractionally. Oils, mining shares, motors and amusements were firm, with some of the issues registering a point or more gains.

Prove Less Lively.

Stocks which recently have been causing the shorts trouble were quiter than usual today. In this group Auburn Automobile, after climbing above 77, dropped back to 7⅞ for a net loss of 1⅛ points on the day. J. I. Case & Co. lost a bit more than a point after climbing during the morning. Eastman Kodak was down a fraction.

United States Steel moved slowly and sluggishly, but ended with a fractional decline. American Telephone and Telegraph gained ⅛ of a point, American Can lost ⅝, while National Biscuit was up a point.

Sugar stocks continued to attract speculative interest on a further rise in the crude product, but National Distillers and other alcohol stocks lost fractionally.

The market for preferred stocks continued thin, with two to five point

Plenty of Credit

There are plenty of credit facilities available to the man of moderate means. He can borrow money, or buy almost anything—"on time." Installment credit, well understood, is universally offered—available to almost everyone.

That "puts it up" to everyone, particularly the man of curtailed income. He must shop—he must discriminate—he must choose. He should make sure that what he buys or what he borrows is costing not one cent more than it is necessary for him to pay—for money if he borrows money "on time," or for goods if he buys goods "on time."

May we give anyone who is desirous of borrowing from $50 to $1,000 or more an "open" invitation—call us up, come in, or write—to get the cost, the terms, and the conditions on whatever amount you may wish to borrow. Then you will be able to judge for yourself—and decide.

BROOKLYN TRUST ORDERS SECOND CUT IN DIVIDEND

Places Shares on Annual Basis of $10.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, June 16.—The second consecutive reduction in the dividend basis on the capital stock of the Brooklyn Trust company was announced today when the board of directors ordered a quarterly distribution of $2.50, placing the shares on a $10 annual basis. Three months ago the quarterly dividend was cut from $5 to $4. The latest dividend is payable July 1 to holders of record June 24.

A quarterly dividend of $3.75 a share was voted today on the stock of Sun Life Assurance Company of Canada, placing it on a $15 annual basis, against $25 a share annually heretofore.

Austin, Nichols & Co., Inc., has declared a quarterly dividend of 25 cents on the prior A stock, placing the issue on a $1 annual basis against $1.50 previously.

A quarterly dividend of 25 cents was declared on the common stock of the Creamery Package Manufacturing company, against 37½ cents three months ago.

Alpha Takes No Action.

The Alpha Portland Cement company took no action on the quarterly dividend of 25 cents due on the common stock.

The Guardian Detroit Union Group, Inc., voted to pass the dividend due at this time. Three months ago 25 cents was paid.

The Dow Drug company has omitted the quarterly dividend of $1.75 a share due at this time on the preferred stock.

The Railroad Securities corporation has notified the New York stock exchange that no payment will be made July 1 on the $4 Illinois Central stock interest certificates, series A. The semi-annual dividend on these certificates was reduced six months ago from $20 to $17.50.

The Aeolian company stated today that its original report that the quarterly dividend of $1.75 a share on the preferred stock had been omitted was in error and that it should have stated that no action was taken at the meeting held at that time. The company states that action on the preferred dividend will be considered at a meeting to be held June 28.

Pays an Extra.

An extra dividend of 5 cents and regular fourth weekly dividend of 5 cents were announced on the stock of the Hollinger Consolidated Gold Mines.

Directors of the Continental Insurance company declared today a semi-annual dividend of 60 cents compared with $1.20 semi-annually heretofore.

MacAndrews & Forbes announced a quarterly dividend of 25 cents on the common. Three months ago the rate was reduced from 50 cents to 35 cents a share.

Semi-annual distributions on the three Selected united type trusts sponsored by Selected Shares corporation have been announced. Selected American Shares will pay 19 cents per share on June 30; Selected Income Shares, 23 cents on July 1; and Selected Cumulative Shares will pay 18 cents on July 1. Selected American and Selected Cumulative will go ex-dividend on June 16 and Selected Income Shares, on June 15.

Columbia Gas Dividends.

Directors of the Columbia Gas and Electric company declared the regular quarterly dividends on the common, 5 per cent cumulative preferred, 5 per cent convertible preferred, and 6 per cent preferred stocks. Action on the dividends was not due until the July meeting of the board, but they were ordered today because of the possibility that a quorum of directors might not be obtainable next month.

Estimated receipts at Chicago today: Cattle, 1,000; hogs, 15,000; sheep, 11,000.

Live stock values continue to rise. The advance in hogs gained more momentum yesterday when eastern outlet expanded again. Prices have gone up 30@50c since last week's close on some of the lightest receipts in more than 20 months.

The exceptionally light supplies brought out the theory that hogs are in stronger hands and overloading of the market is not so likely as long as the undertone remains firm. Yesterday's top for load lots reached $3.95, while 40 hogs averaging 210 lbs sold at $4.00, highest since April 27.

Top hogs have been under $5.00 since March 14. The general average price gained 10c, going to $3.60. Peak prices at the various outside eastern and western markets ranged from $3.20 to $4.40, this range comparing with $2.90@3.75 at the low time. Buyers scoured the yards for choice grades. Competition between local and outside buyers was brisk so long as th.. meager supply lasted. This week's receipts are second smallest since September, 1930.

Best Cattle Also Higher.

Buyers successfully blocked an upturn in top grades of cattle, but everything selling below the top advanced again, resulting in the narrowest price range in more than a year. The top price at $7.65 was paid frequently for 1,166@1,274 lb averages, while a large share of total offerings sold at $7.00 and above. The bulk of beef steers were listed within a range of $6.00@7.25, comparatively few going below the inside figure.

Only thin ill bred stock with little "kill" sold at $5.00 and under. Two carloads of Texas grass cattle averaging 1,137 lbs sold at $4.50. Most cattle are selling 35@50c above a week ago and 75c@$1.00 and more above the low spot of the season. Large local hoosiers were the leading buyers in top grades. Swift and Wilson paid the peak price for Illinois and Iowa steers. Grain fed butcher stock ruled stronger and others steady. Yearling heifers averaging 773 lbs reached $6.65.

Sheep Receipts Small.

After those directly shipped had been deducted from sheep receipts yesterday the selection was small and, considering the quality, prices were fully steady to strong and in spots slightly higher. Numerous small lots reached $7.00, going to city butchers at that figure, while packers bought supplies lightly sorted at $6.50 and below, buck lambs mostly at $5.50 and under, with culls at $5.00 down. Bulk of sheep sold steady. Yearlings were unchanged at $5.25 and below. Receipts at Chicago during the last three weeks have been smallest for three consecutive weeks since June, 1930.

Receipts at Chicago for today are estimated at 1,000 cattle, 15,000 hogs, and 11,000 sheep, against 1,297 cattle, 14,373 hogs, and 9,927 sheep the previous Friday and 2,826 cattle, 18,878 hogs, and 7,534 sheep a year ago.

COTTON CHANGES SMALLER

Influences in the cotton market were not such as to cause wide fluctuations. The volume of business was fair and the undertone rather favored a hardening of values at times, but the recessions of grain prices and increased offerings toward the last eliminated part of the early gain. Prices follow:
